Senators Vote for Flexible Feature.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 19.—[Special.]—President Hoover won today in the senate in a final test of strength on the export debenture and flexible provisions of the tariff bill.

Administration forces barely managed to put through motions to recommit the Republican conferees from all obligations on the two sections. On the question of releasing the conferees on the export debenture provision the vote was 43 to 41, while on the flexible tariff it was 43 to 42. In the latter case the vote was a tie, 42 to 42, Vice President Curtis casting the deciding vote.

Leaders of the coalition of Democrats and radical Republicans exerted themselves to the utmost to hold their forces in line to force retention of the senate amendments for the export debenture farm relief scheme and repeal of the flexible tariff. Their failure was due to the defection of a group of high tariff Democrats.

Passage Appears Assured.

The effect of the action was to insure enactment of the long pending tariff bill. If the administration had got defeat today it would have meant a deadlock which would have prevented further action on the tariff at this session as the house already has indicated its unwillingness to accept the senate debenture and flexible tariff provisions. Retention of the debenture provision in the bill sent to the White House would have meant a veto by President Hoover.

The senate and house conferees now are expected to agree quickly on the half dozen sections of the tariff bill still hanging fire. The export debenture provision will be eliminated entirely. Under this scheme for a bounty on exports of farm products equal to one-half the tariff rates the cost to the treasury might have amounted to as much as 250 million annually, according to President Hoover. The conferees are expected to reach some sort of a compromise on the flexible tariff under which the executive will retain authority to make rate changes, but subject to some sort of congressional review. The other tariff provisions not settled by the conferees include duties on lumber, cement, and silver.

Sufficient Votes Seen.

Today's result made it evident that there will be sufficient votes for final adoption of the tariff conference report in the senate. The house already has adopted a partial conference report. The bill may reach the President within the next week or ten days, making possible final adjournment of congress about June 1, or at the latest by the middle of June; if the naval treaty leads to extended debate.

In the previous votes during the winter the senate approved the export debenture amendment by a vote of 42 to 34 and repeal of the flexible tariff by a vote of 47 to 42.

The Democrats who voted with the administration today to release the Republican conferees from their pledge to make no agreement on the export debenture provision without consulting the senate numbered six, and, with one additional Democrat paired on that side of the issue. The Democrats voting thus were Senators J. E. Ransdell and E. S. Broussard [La.], Park Trammell [Fla.], J. B. Kendrick [Wyo.], R. F. Wagner [N. Y.], and David I. Walsh [Mass.].

Democrats Back Hoover.

In the vote on the flexible tariff Senators Broussard, Ransdell, Trammell, and Fletcher continued to support the administration position and were joined by two other Democrats, Senators Daniel Steck [Ia.] and C. C. Dill [Wash.]. Senators Kendrick, Wagner and Walsh [Mass.] voted the other way.

Senators Broussard, Trammell and Fletcher voted for the debenture amendment when the senate adopted it several months ago. Senators Trammell and Dill similarly voted for the flexible tariff amendment. These senators were the only ones whose position today show a change in attitude.

Senators Charles S. Deneen and Otis F. Glenn [Rep., Ill.] voted with the administration on both roll calls, as did Senators James E. Watson and Arthur Robinson [Rep., Ind.], James Couzens, and A. H. Vandenberg [Rep., Mich.]. Senators Robert M. La Follette and John J. Blaine [Rep., Wis.] and H. W. Brookhart [Rep., Ia.] were among the radicals voting against the administration.

Youth Confesses "Ribbon Killing"

Prisoner Will Face Quiz Again Today.

The murder of Mrs. Mildred Helsing, the young housewife strangled to death seven weeks ago in her apartment at 5830 Lake street, was believed to have been solved last night.

William Putscher, 19 years old, former reformatory inmate and a thief, confessed the killing to Deputy Police Commissioner Stege at the detective bureau. He told how Mrs. Helsing caught him ransacking her bedroom the afternoon of April 1 and graphically described what followed.

"I had pulled nearly 100 prowls in broad daylight and had never been caught," the foppishly dressed prisoner narrated. "At sight of me standing in the bedroom door, she whooped. For a minute I lost my head.

Struggles with Woman.

"I ducked back to the bedroom ready for a window dive, but it was three stories down so I grappled with her. We struggled into the living room. She was full of fight and kicking.

"She began to scream. I closed my fingers around her throat and felt her growing limp. I let her sink to the floor and, to make sure she stayed quiet, I got a black ribbon from the bedroom and tied it tight around her neck.

"Then I tossed a blanket over her, skipped down the front stairs and drove to my girl's house, where I spent the rest of the afternoon," he concluded.

Early this morning Putscher grew reflective and gave evidence of intending to recant his confession. Margaret Killian, described as the sweetheart of Putscher, was sent to his cell with instructions to question him concerning the murder. He assured her that he had not committed it. The police, however, said he would be taken over the whole story again to remove any possibility that he may be a romancer.

Grins as He Tells Story.

Except for an occasional guilty look at his lean hands, nervously clasped in his lap, Putscher betrayed no signs of remorse. When Stege showed him police photographs of the disordered room in which his victim's body lay, the prisoner recoiled. He soon regained composure, however, and recounted other exploits with a grin.

Putscher said he had visited four other apartments in the same building previous to the murder. His method was to ring the doorbell and, if some one answered, to produce a card of garment hooks, which he would try to sell the housewife.

"I sold to one of Mrs. Helsing's neighbors," he recalled, "just as she was about to leave the house. When she was out of sight I got my jimmy out, forced the door, and prowled the place. That's how I got into the Helsing apartment."

He Enlists a Lookout.

For three days after the murder Putscher refrained from housebreaking, but on April 5, he said, he enlisted the aid of Paul McKinley, 18 years old, who acted as lookout on subsequent prowls. Putscher had run his score up to 150 when, last Thursday, he committed a burglary which led to his capture.

Henry Fail, a plumber, returning Thursday evening to his home at 5708 West 21st street, Cicero, saw a car parked in front of his house with a young man at the wheel. As Fail drew closer another youth ran out from behind the house, jumped in the car, and the two drove away.

Fail, having noted the last three numbers on the license of the suspicious car, entered his home and found it ransacked. The kitchen door had been forced and his wife's engagement ring was missing. Fail reported the burglary to the Cicero police, who notified the police of neighboring suburbs, including Berwyn.

Police Trap Burglars.

What Deputy Commissioner Stege characterized as a remarkable example of police work followed. With 31 burglaries on the complaint book at the Berwyn police station, Lieuts. John Cihak and Albert Marshall set to work comparing the license num-

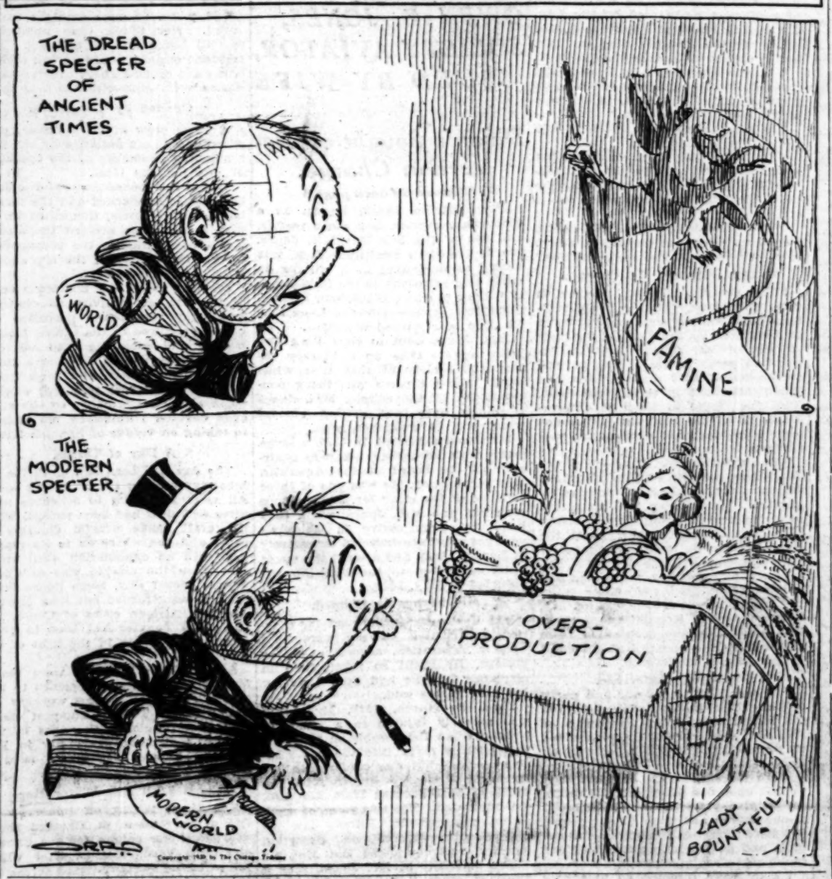
THE NEW WORRY



YOU CAN CRY FOR COP IN 7 TONGUES OVER POLICE 1313

The police department can be called in seven different languages, it was disclosed yesterday by Capt. G. F. Moran, in charge of the new board—Police 1313—installed at the detective bureau April 26. Besides English, it has linguists who can converse fluently in French, Polish, Swedish, Yiddish, Italian, and German.

"It is a great help," said Capt. Moran. "A call from an excited woman, which may not be understandable to Operator Fred Kelly, may be entirely plain to Operator Joseph Cohn."

The busiest hours for the board are from 11 p. m. to 1 a. m. The slack time is between 5 and 7 in the morning. Saturday and Sunday yield the most calls for the police, while Wednesday and Thursday the fewest.

Clear Cannon; He Pledges Not to Do It Again

Dallas, Tex., May 19.—(AP)—By a vote of 54 to 11, the Episcopacy committee of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, tonight exonerated Bishop James Cannon Jr., of Washington, D. C., of charges of stock market speculation.

The committee found that the allegations filed by Judge G. T. Fitzhugh of Memphis, Josephus Daniels of North Carolina, and a score of other laymen were not substantiated by the evidence presented.

A committee was appointed to draw up a formal report for the conference, in which the accusations will be listed, and the committees' findings upon them will be listed.

The formal resolution adopted was "that the character of Bishop Cannon be passed, and that a committee of five draft a statement for the conference, which shall include Bishop Cannon's letter."

Victim of "Sharpers."

Cannon told the committee, it was revealed, that he had "fallen into the hands of a bunch of sharpers,"—referring to Kable & Co., the New York firm with which his stock market transactions were carried on. He said he was "sorry" and that he would "not do it again."

He told the committee that in reference to his business dealings with Kable & Co. he had been accused of immoral conduct in that he knowingly engaged in stock market "gambling." He said that he thought he was dealing with a "proper" investment company and that when he realized he was not and had made a mistake he cancelled all his contracts with the company.

He said he was sorry his action had caused any embarrassment to the church or his friends; that his motives could not be questioned; and that he would never again engage in any such transactions.

Asked Complete Inquiry.

J. H. Therrell of Ocala, Fla., secretary of the committee, disclosed that Cannon himself first asked for a "complete investigation" of the charges against him in a letter dated May 2, a week before the conference opened.

Under the rules of the church, Cannon will be entirely free of the charges when the committee makes its report to the conference, since the committee's action in reference to the specific accusations, is final.

Mr. Daniels, when told of the decision, said he was "astounded and astonished."

"I never believed it possible," he exclaimed.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 19.—Great Britain's royal aviator, the prince of Wales, is to take part in the famous king's cup air race round England over a course of 750 miles on July 5. It is understood the prince is entering his Hawker "Tomtit," two seater biplane fitted with a mongoose engine.

The machine has a dual control, equipped for "blind flying"—the second cockpit being entirely inclosed Squadron Leader Don, the prince's service pilot, will fly the ship, but it is understood that the prince himself desires to accompany the pilot in the race.

By entering his plane, the prince made more aviation history, for it is the first occasion of a royal entry in the king's cup or any other air race in England. The race starts and finishes at Hanworth air park, just outside London, the route including Southampton, Bristol, Birmingham, Liverpool, Manchester, Newcastle, Hull, Leicester, and London.

BAR BOY ORATOR AS PLAGIARIST IN NATIONAL TEST

Washington, D. C., May 20.—(AP)—Pat Ahearn, 16 year old high school student of Kansas City, announced as the finalist in the national oratorical contest from his district, has been declared ineligible on the ground that he had plagiarized an oration delivered thirty years ago.

Randolph Leigh, director general of the contests, tonight said Ahearn's oration, "The Progress of the Constitution," followed closely the text of a similar oration delivered thirty years ago in the college contests of the Northern Oratorical league on "The March of the Constitution."

John Powers, Noted Council Figure, Dies

John Powers, dean of the city council until his retirement in 1927 after serving 38 years as alderman, and last of the old school of picturesque political leaders, died yesterday afternoon at his home, 6038 Sheridan road.

The immediate cause of his death was pulmonary edema and anemia, but he had been in ill health since May of 1929, when he was operated on for throat tumors. He had remained under the care of physicians at his winter home near Miami until last Tuesday, when he was brought back to Chicago.

Because of his age—he was 78—no hope was entertained for his recovery. Drs. Thomas O'Donoghue and Karl Meyer said a week ago he could not recover. He was aware of his condition and was conscious up to the moment of his death. At the bedside was his third wife, the former Mrs. Frances Lawler Wolff, whom he married in 1926.

"Friend of Everybody."

Mrs. Powers said last night that the funeral probably will be held Thursday, but that no plans had been made for the services.

"Johnny de Pow," as he was known on the west side, will be missed not only by chieftains of the Democratic party, but by the poor of the old 19th ward, now the 25th, whom he did not forget even after quitting politics.

However, the Powers methods of charity were vigorously combated by reform elements—the M. V. L. and Hull House, for example. Hull House never could be brought to agree that his distribution of turkeys among his poor constituents at Christmas was real or wise helpfulness.

But his personality was outstanding in his day. "He was the friend of everybody," said a colleague in the city council, and he never asked a man in need whether he was a Democrat or a Republican. They called him the godfather of the ward. He was a familiar figure at every wake, christening, marriage and death."

Known for Charities.

"It was he that initiated the custom in Chicago of turkey Christmas dinners. They were gala occasions. It was, however, by his daily private charities that he endeared himself to so many families. There was an adage that 'nobody ever went hungry in Johnny de Pow's ward'."

Powers was singularly lucky in politics. He was never defeated for an office to which he aspired but once. That was when he sought the Democratic nomination for congressman of the Eighth district.

The most celebrated association with his name is that concerning the saloon which he and Billy O'Brien operated in Madison street, near La Salle, opposite the La Salle hotel. It was there that the first spadefuls of earth were dug up for the Illinois tunnel, or Chicago's underground railway.

BORN IN IRELAND.

"Johnny" Powers, as he was called by those who knew him intimately, was a resident of the west side for more than half a century. He was born in Brannon, Kilkenny county, Ireland, in 1853, and came to Chicago when he was about 20 years old. One of his first employments was in a grocery store. Some years later he married Mrs. Mary Sorrell Clancy, a widow, who had a grocery on Canal street near Van Buren street.

About forty years ago Powers began to take an active interest in politics. He converted his grocery store into a headquarters for Cleveland and Hendricks, who that year were the Democratic standard bearers for the presidency and vice presidency.

Two or three years later Powers received the Democratic nomination for alderman of the old Nineteenth ward and was elected. With the exception of one term, which he served as state senator, Powers represented the Nineteenth ward in the city council since

SET JULY 1 FOR REFERENDUM ON TRANSIT PLAN

Aldermen Clash as Council Acts.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

By a vote of 47 to 3 the city council last night granted—subject to later popular approval—an indeterminate franchise to the newly created Chicago Local Transportation company, which is obligated under the grant to consolidate the surface and elevated lines, operate city owned subways through the central business district and feeder buses in the outlying areas. This new company is a merger of the financial interests in the existing transit facilities.

The three aldermen who voted against the franchise were Guy Guernsey [6th], Sheldon Govier [9th], and O. E. Northrup [19th].

Election Set for July 1.

The view of the voters on the ordinance, which requires their approval to become operative, is to be ascertained at a special election to be held July 1. An ordinance calling for a referendum on that date was passed unanimously by the council. It was argued that the expense is warranted to keep the question out of the political squabbles of the November election.

It is deemed improbable that this date would have been set in the ordinance if Mayor William Hale Thompson had not indicated that he will approve or veto the ordinance today or tomorrow, because, under the law, forty days' notice must be given of the special election. If the mayor takes more than today and tomorrow for his consideration of the permit, the date of the special election must be deferred. To THE TRIBUNE representative the mayor said that he had not decided what his attitude toward the ordinance will be, but it was rumored in the city hall that the mayor will not insist upon any important amendments to make it satisfactory to him and may sign it without suggesting change.

Could Pass Over Veto.

But, even if the mayor decides to veto, the demonstration last night indicates that sufficient votes are available to pass it over his veto.

So certain were the members of the local transportation committee that the mayor will not block the ordinance that the committee, at a meeting before the council session, adopted a resolution authorizing Chairman Joseph B. McDonough [13th] to provide for a citizens' committee to prepare a plan of campaign for the ordinance. Ald. Arthur Albert [43d] served notice that no city funds shall be spent for propaganda for the ordinance. He announced that he will start a taxpayers' suit if any attempt is made along that line.

Protective Committees Approve.

Representatives of various protective committees announced formally in letters to the council that they will cooperate in effecting the proposed consolidation. Each said that he will accept the ordinance and recommend it to his security holders. Further, each said that a financial plan has been proposed which recognizes the relative values of the existing properties in the new financial setup, subject to certain relatively minor adjustments.

These representations are made on the understanding that the investment of the new company will be $260,442,000, which will be represented by the following initial capitalization:

	Face or declared value.
First mortgage and refunding gold bonds, series A, 5½%, due Jan. 1, 1961	$ 40,500,000
Underlying divisional liens [closed]	47,977,500
Equipment trust and real estate mortgages [closed]	939,500
Total funded debt	$ 89,115,700
Prior preferred $7 series	40,300,000
Preferred $6 series	53,438,150
Common, class A	30,343,000
Common, class B	47,905,148
	$260,442,000

Among the signers of the pledge referred to are Albert W. Harris, chairman of the protective committee of the first mortgage bonds for the west and north side surface lines; John E. Blunt, representing the series "A" bonds of the Chicago Railways [north and west side surface]; Arthur Reynolds of series "B" of the same company; Walter Lang, for the purchase money bonds; Louis H. Schroader of the adjustment income bonds of the same company; Frank O. Wetmore, for the first mortgage bonds of the south side surface lines; Howard W. Camp, for the minority stockholders; B. E. Sunny of the collateral trust bonds, Edwin L. Lobdell for certain other securities, Britton I. Budd, president of the "L" interests; L. A. Busby, president of the south side lines, and Guy A. Richardson, vice president of the west and north side lines.

At the council session yesterday 17 amendments sponsored by the transit committee and four others suggested by aldermen on the floor were adopted. The committee amendments for the most part were technical changes.

Ald John S. Clark [36th] had the ordinance amended so that health employés will get free transportation, so that the city's transit trustee may invest his funds in tax anticipation warrants as well as other prescribed securities, and so that banks having $500,000 capital may be named as depositaries of transit cash. The other amendment from the floor came from Ald. C. F. Mellin [50th] and added a surface line on California avenue between Devon and Pratt avenues. This half mile was added because Ald. J. J. Hoellen [47th] relinquished a like stretch on Rockwell street.

Fight Made for Extensions.

The fight on the council floor came on extensions. The most strenuous battle was made for an "L" extension running south from the end of the Normal park branch to 79th and Halsted streets. Ald. Thomas F. Byrne [15th], Terence F. Moran [16th], Walter W. Morris [18th], with Northrup and Govier pleaded and threatened to get this extension. In a final roll call the suggestion was tabled by a vote of 29 to 14.

After that failed Ald. James G. Coyle [17th] revived the fight by urging an amendment putting a line from 53d street to 79th and Halsted in Halsted street. It was urged that this would save the company the cost of procuring a private right of way. This was shelved without a record vote.

Then followed consideration of other extensions, on "L" line from the end of the Englewood branch west to Clearing, a line north from the Ravenswood branch along California avenue to the city limits, a more definite routing of the South Chicago "L" extension, and others. The answer of Ald. James B. Bowler [25th] and O. F. Nelson [46th] to all of these requests was that only $200,000,000 has been provided for extensions. They asserted that the bankers had refused to increase the amount.

Answer Is Always "No."

On three requested extensions consideration was deferred temporarily so that an effort could be made to get the company representatives and the bankers to agree. But in each case the answer was "no."

Finally Ald. Bowler exclaimed: "I would rather the ordinance is defeated than bunk the people with promises of extensions which we cannot get the companies to agree to build."

The most threatening clash in the more than four hours of debate came when Ald. Nelson started to explain his vote near the tail end of the roll call. The trio who voted against the ordinance — Guernsey, Govier, and Northrup—had made their attacks on the ordinance. Nelson launched into an attack upon the 1925 Dever ordinance, claiming that it was a perpetual franchise.

Ald. Clark claimed that Nelson was out of order and asked Mayor Thompson to rule on the point. His honor smiled and Nelson went on. Clark again shouted that Nelson was out of order and insisted upon a ruling by the chair.

Nelson Assails Dever Ordinance.

"I think he has the right to show the contrast between the ordinances," ruled the mayor. That spurred Nelson to more stinging comments on the Dever ordinance until he finally said that the aldermen stepped into line and voted for that ordinance "at the crack of the whip."

"That's not true," shouted Ald. George Maypole [28th].

"We don't have to be insulted, do we?" yelled Ald. T. J. Bowler [41st].

"What Ald. Nelson says isn't so," put in Ald. Moran.

"I'll appeal from the decision of the chair," cried Clark several times and Nelson, to save the situation, voted and sat down.

Guernsey Voices Opposition.

Ald. Guernsey voiced his opposition to the ordinance first, coming first on the roll call. He said: "This ordinance is not satisfactory to me. I do not like the indeterminate feature at all. The proposed compensation of three per cent of the gross receipts does not appeal to me. There may be no compensation for the city after a return has been paid on 75 per cent of the capitalization. We are giving away the right to operate on, under and over our streets, and we are getting no rent whatever for the subways. We are promised the extensions under certain condition. The subway starts badly from my viewpoint. In a word, we are giving too much for what we are getting."

Ald. Govier was more vigorous in his speech. He said: "I denounce this as a perpetual, everlasting franchise which we are giving to a lot of contract breakers. They intend to raise the fares. The transit we are to receive is to be given by a local commission, which will prove to be illegal. Then we will be pleading again to the Illinois commerce commission about the most autocratic enemy the city has ever had. This is the worst transit ordinance ever brought into the council. I hope that the mayor will veto it and I believe that the people will defeat it."

Ald. Northrup devoted much of his speech to defending the Ridge Civic council, which he said is a delegate body from 31 organizations representing 10,130 families. The representatives of this council opposed the ordinance in committee. Ald. Northrup said that he was afraid that there will be delay in building subways by special assessments and predicted that the ordinance will increase fares.

Ald. Albert freely criticized the ordinance before he voted for it. He referred to the leases between the "L" lines and the North Shore and Aurora & Elgin lines as "crooked and dishonest."

"We are only getting what Samuel Insull wants us to have," said Albert. "He is the boss of this situation here today. There are a number of unsatisfactory provisions in this ordinance, but we seem unable to get any farther toward a fair settlement. The city can't stand still and I shall vote for the ordinance."

Clark Offers Criticism.

Ald. Clark was another critic before casting his vote for the grant. He thought that the company should have paid rental for the subway and that the tearing down of the elevated loop should have been made mandatory. He argued at length that the ordinance is not perpetual. He predicted that at the next or subsequent session of the legislature valuations for taxing purposes will be at the fair cash value instead of 37 percent of it, as at present.

Ald. John A. Massen [48th] started with an adverse note by saying that he, too, was not entirely satisfied with the ordinance. "But," added Massen, "I am satisfied with the honesty, ability and integrity of Walter L. Fisher, and I believe that he has done the best possible under the circumstances. This ordinance does not solve the question. It cannot be solved while the city grows; but this ordinance makes for transportation progress."

Nelson Clash Hurts Stand.

The only extended defense of the ordinance was undertaken by Ald. Nelson, the effect of which was injured by the squabble which quieted him.

The council, on motion of Ald. Jacob Arvey [24th], adopted a resolution expressing appreciation of the work of Ald. McDonough, chairman of the local transportation committee.

Ald. Massen and D. R. Crowe [42d] presented a resolution asking the commerce commission to revoke the permit by which car tracks were placed along the lake shore between Chicago avenue and the Navy pier. It was referred to the transit committee.

John Maynard Harlan presented to the council a franchise he desires for the Chicago Metropolitan Transit company. It was referred to the transit committee.

COMMITTEE REPORTS ROBERTS TO SENATE FOR SUPREME COURT

Washington, D. C., May 19.—(AP)—Unanimous approval of the nomination of Owen J. Roberts of Philadelphia as an associate justice of the Supreme court was voted today by the senate judiciary committee and confirmation is expected tomorrow by the senate.

The committee report was laid before the senate by Senator William E. Borah [Rep., Idaho], who will ask consideration of the nomination tomorrow at the regular executive session. Republican leaders were confident Roberts would be confirmed without delay.

The Philadelphian was nominated by President Hoover after the senate rejected Federal Judge John J. Parker of North Carolina. Action by the judiciary committee was taken after a subcommittee appointed to consider the nomination unanimously had reported in favor of confirmation.

The subcommittee was composed of Senators Borah, Lee S. Overman [Dem., N. C.] and Felix Hebert [Rep., R. I.]. Approval of the nomination was voted by the full committee after only a few minutes of discussion. Chairman George W. Norris [Rep., Neb.] of the committee said no protest had been filed against the nominee.

CHURCH LEADERS CLEAR CANNON OF STOCK GAMBLING

He Promises Never to "Do It Again."

INNOCENT OF EVERYTHING

Dallas, Tex., May 19.—[Special.]—Bishop James Cannon Jr. of Washington, with three other high bishops—E. D. Mouzon, J. M. Moore, and H. H. Dubose—recently received what amounted to acquittal by the episcopacy committee of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, on the charges of political activity filed by the Rev. Rembert G. Smith of Washington, Ga.

The formal charges filed by Mr. Smith opened with this statement:

The brief then quotes article of religion thirteen as follows:

"The episcopacy is not political but apostolical with prophetical and pastoral functions. This is shown by the vows taken by a bishop when he is consecrated.

"The discipline," the brief adds, "nowhere directs or permits a bishop to go into personal and party politics."

Church Flouted, He Charges.

"The accused bishops," the Smith declaration adds, "pointed to the resolutions of recent general conferences as to prohibition as the warrant for their support of Mr. Hoover and the Republican party in 1928. The general conference of 1926 made a wise and timely utterance in these resolutions. The chief topic in them is enforcement, which has been the paramount issue ever since the amendment was adopted.

"In supporting Mr. Hoover and the Republican party in 1928 these bishops did not do what these resolutions requested. Mr. Hoover had no record as an aggressive prohibitionist before 1928. The Republican party, with the Hon. Andrew W. Mellon in charge of the enforcement of the dry laws, had a record of nullifying negligence and this record was well known.

"Accordingly the support of Mr. Hoover and the Republican party in 1928 because of the prohibition issue by these bishops constituted contempt of the general conference.

Disobeyed Conference.

"In going into personal and party politics these bishops also disobeyed the voice of the general conference of 1926 as it was heard in the resolutions on prohibition. The last sentence in those resolutions is as follows:

"'To the attainment of these ends we call upon our preachers and teachers to give voice to the social creed of our church and upon all our people to assert their full influence as Christians and as patriotic citizens of our republic.'

"They were directed as preachers in the church, as all other preachers were, to use specified nonpolitical ways and means in the interest of prohibition. In their outspoken support of Mr. Hoover and the Republican party they went beyond and disregarded these directions.

Affronted Dixie Democrats.

"In supporting Mr. Hoover and the Republican party in 1928 these bishops trespassed on the rights of the members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, who do not support bishops with their substance or their loyalty for political functions, and they particularly trespassed on Southern Methodist Democrats, who do not support bishops to attack their political party or its candidate.

"Bishop Cannon admits that he borrowed from Dr. E. L. Crawford, secretary and treasurer of the board of temperance and social service, $303.52 to pay on the expense of the call for the Asheville anti-Smith meeting. This loan should not have been made, particularly as many contributors to this fund were Democrats who did not desire the defeat of Gov. Smith.

"In the report filed with the clerk of the house by A. L. Burroughs, treasurer of the anti-Smith committee, it appears that there was paid to Bishop Cannon for expenses in the campaign $1,873. This committee is asked to decide whether it is proper for a bishop to receive funds for expenses from a political committee."

TWO ENVOYS TO U. S. CRITICIZE TARIFF IN RADIO ADDRESSES

Washington, D. C., May 19.—[Special.]—Utterances of Señor Don Alejandro de Padilla y Bell, the Spanish ambassador, and Marc Peter, the minister of Switzerland to the United States, critical of the pending tariff bill, led today to considerable interest in political Washington as to what official notice, if any, the Hoover administration might take of them. Secretary Stimson declined to comment.

Both diplomats gave their views in speeches broadcast by radio. Those who took the view that the diplomats had been guilty of impropriety pointed out that about thirty-three countries in all have made representations through the state department on the American tariff, and that if these two instances of public speeches by diplomats were to be allowed to pass unnoticed by the government the country might be treated to the spectacle of many other diplomats openly criticizing the prospective action of congress.

Owen Barton Jones, known as a sportsman, aviator, and globe trotter, and son of the late David B. Jones, one of Chicago's wealthiest men, was named as defendant in a bill for divorce filed yesterday in the Lake county Circuit court at Waukegan by Mrs. Constance Bridges Jones of Lake Forest. The bill charged desertion.

Mrs. Jones went to New York two years ago to take up a literary career and society at that time whispered that a divorce was being contemplated by the couple. Mrs. Jones is said to have been writing a novel which will be published soon.

Mr. Jones inherited, in 1923, a large estate from his father, who was chairman of the board of the American Zinc corporation. He was one of three children of the elder Mr. Jones. Since then Mr. and Mrs. Jones, when they have not been active in Chicago's younger set, have traveled extensively in Europe, Asia, and around the world until, according to the bill, the rift occurred in May, 1928.

His Flying Is Blamed.

The husband's enthusiasm for aviation contributed to the agreement upon a separation, according to the gossips. He spent so much time in airplanes that he had little time for his wife, it was said.

Then, in March, 1928, Mr. Jones was severely injured in a crash at Nassau when the amphibion plane he was piloting dived into the bay. He was rescued, but was confined to bed for many weeks. A month after the crack-up he separated from his wife, the bill stated. The two years of separation required by Illinois law as ground for divorce on desertion charges, was completed last May 4.

The marriage of Mr. Jones, then a Harvard student, to Miss Constance Bridges of Boston, member of one of Boston's Back Bay families, was a notable social event in June, 1917. The marriage was performed at Cambridge, Mass., shortly after Miss Bridges' graduation from Radcliffe.

Hearing Expected Soon.

The bill recites that Mr. Jones deserted his wife without provocation and has refused since to support her. Any agreement upon alimony will be private, it was said. The divorce will be uncontested, according to report, and will be heard in a few days. The Joneses have no children.

The residences of Mrs. Jones were given in the bill as 10 West Deerpath road, Lake Forest, and 900 North Michigan avenue, Chicago.

ZEPPELIN LANDS IN SEVILLE; LOAFS TO AVOID HEAT

Starts 5,000 Mile Hop Over Ocean Today.

SEVILLE, Spain, May 19.—(AP)—The German dirigible Graf Zeppelin rode peacefully at anchor here tonight at the end of the first leg of her voyage from Friedrichshafen, Germany, across the equator to South and North America.

Twenty-five hours from her starting point, the giant of the air had experienced as her first difficulty a heat wave that enveloped Spain. To avoid this heat wave, she had been flown off her course two hours, adding the African continent to her journey.

The Graf nosed up to her mast at La Tablada airport, her own specially constructed anchorage, at 5:40 p. m. [12:40 p. m. Chicago daylight saving time]. Her flying time unofficially was 25 hours and 20 minutes. This included several hours during midday when she cruised about over northern Africa outmaneuvering the heat wave.

Greeted by Thousands.

A large crew of ground men, composed of soldiers assigned by the government, had charge of the operation of mooring the Graf.

When her passengers and officers had been disembarked and the former had gone to hotels, thousands in the vast throng that greeted the airship remained to witness the preparations for her resumption of the trip shortly after dawn tomorrow.

On the ground was enacted a scene of the greatest activity as crewmen and army troops and postoffice employés perspired in the titanic task of loading and unloading mail and putting on board stores of various kinds, including ice, water, and fresh fruits.

The Graf's larder was well stocked when she left Germany, so the stewards devoted themselves particularly to taking on viands of Spanish flavor.

A Day of Thrills.

The day had been full of thrills for inhabitants along the dirigible's route. All went according to schedule until after Gibraltar had been passed, when the craft made drastic changes in route and conjecture as to its reason met with no explanation until virtually when the airship was at Cadiz, Spanish coast city, some hours later. Then it was learned her long sojourn over the African cities of Ceuta, Tetuan, and Tangier had been to avoid approaching Spain in the heat of the day.

Such volumes of mail were ready for her tonight that it seemed to the special staff of postoffice workers assigned to the Tablada sub-post office, as they struggled with sacks in the intense heat, that everybody in Europe must have decided to send a letter or postcard on the Graf.

Faces 5,000 Mile Water Hop.

The Graf, taking off tomorrow at 7:15 a. m. (2:15 a. m. Chicago time), will shape her course for the Canary and Cape Verde islands, after which she will head southeastward across the equator to Pernambuco, Brazil, her first scheduled stop after this city.

From Seville to Pernambuco the line distance is about 5,000 miles, almost entirely over water.

The Infante Alfonso of Orleans, King Alfonso's cousin, arrived this morning from Madrid by airplane to board the Zeppelin for the flight toward the Americas. His wife accompanied him here. Lieut. Col. Emilio Herrera of the Spanish air forces also will board the airship here, as will Mrs. Mary Pierce of New York and the Duchess Victoria.

Plane Races with More Mail.

BERLIN, May 19.—(AP)—A Lufthansa freight plane of the Junker type W-33, with more than 20,000 pieces of mail for South America, left Tempelhof airdrome today to intercept the Graf Zeppelin before the latter's departure tomorrow from Seville for Pernambuco.

RULING FAVORS INNOCENT OWNER OF BOOZE AUTO

Supreme Court Holds He May Recover.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 19.—[Special.]—Innocent owners of automobiles or other vehicles seized under the Volstead act for illegal transportation of liquor are entitled to recover the vehicles, and the government may not confiscate them under the revenue law, it was ruled today by the United States Supreme court.

In the opinion, written by Justice Holmes, the court held that, having seized a vehicle as a rum runner under the Volstead act, the government must prosecute forfeiture proceedings under the same law. Millions of dollars have been lost by innocent dealers and finance companies whose liens for unpaid balances were ignored when seized vehicles were confiscated under the revenue law providing for forfeiture of vehicles used in the transportation of non tax paid commodities.

Lower Courts Reversed.

The opinion overturns decrees of Circuit Courts of Appeal in Virginia and California, both of which upheld the confiscation under the revenue law of automobiles seized as rum runners under the Volstead act, and in both of which cases the innocent automobile dealers who sold the cars were not allowed to recover.

In his opinion Justice Holmes pointed out that, in passing the Volstead act, congress obviously sought to protect the interests of innocent owners by "careful chosen language," and that its purpose "was to preclude the nullification of the protection which section 26 [of the Volstead act] had extended to innocent third persons."

"In providing for forfeitures under this section," the opinion continued, "congress was unaware that the enactment of the national prohibition act would enormously increase seizure of vehicles beyond those made under section 3450 [of the revenue laws], and that their forfeiture would place an increased and heavy burden upon many innocent persons unless afforded some protection by the new legislation.

Court for Protection.

"By section 26 it gives such protection in all cases where the prosecution of the person of the transportation is had under the national prohibition act. This would have been but an idle gesture, and the congressional purpose would have been defeated if, in practically every case where the transporting vehicle is seized, the prosecuting officers could compel forfeitures of the interests of innocent third persons under section 3450."

NTS STIMSON ENT TO LONDON READY TO YIELD

[Copyright, 1930: By the New York Times.]

TOKIO, May 20.—(Tuesday.)—Commander Yeiji Kusakari, member of the naval general staff, attempted to commit hari-kari in a moving car on the way from Kobe to Tokio this morning. His motive is undetermined, but it was believed to have been a protest against the London naval treaty. He was removed to a hospital in a critical condition.

ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 19.—[Special.]—Rear Admiral Hilary P. Jones told the senate naval affairs committee today how Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson explained in London why he receded from the demand for 21 eight inch gun cruisers which the American navy general board had announced essential to Anglo-American parity.

"At a meeting of the American delegation on Feb. 5," said Admiral Jones, who was an expert adviser to the delegation, "the secretary of state stated he had had a talk with Prime Minister MacDonald and that Mr. MacDonald had said that if we insisted on our demand for 21 eight inch gun cruisers we would wreck the conference."

It was after his talk with the British prime minister that Mr. Stimson altered the American proposals in which he came down from 21 to 18 big cruisers.

Hinted on Jan. 27.

The first inkling Admiral Jones got that the recession was in a draft of tentative American proposals submitted to him for his advice by Mr. Stimson on Jan. 27. That draft named 18 instead of 21 as the allocation of eight inch gun cruisers to America and accepted what the British had declared their minimum cruiser requirements.

Upon being called before the delegation the next day Admiral Jones protested vigorously against receding from the parity proposal of the American navy general board, which had been submitted in September as an answer to the British minimum proposals. His protest was based on the view that under the Stimson proposals America would obtain neither parity nor the preponderance of big cruisers essential to our peculiar national defense requirements.

"At the meeting of the delegation on Feb. 5 I again expressed disagreement with the tentative proposals on cruisers," said Admiral Jones. "I felt my disagreement so keenly that I prepared a memorandum of my views which I sent to the members of the delegation."

His Protest Disregarded.

The admiral's protest was of no avail, however, Mr. Stimson sending the proposals containing the American concession to the British on Feb. 5 and making them public the next day.

The Stimson decision to come down from 21 big cruisers, however, was not entirely surprising to Admiral Jones. Before going to London he had a premonition that some such concession was to be made.

"What made you think so?" asked Senator Frederick Hale [Rep., Me.], chairman of the committee.

"I was informed by Senator Reed, and also by Admiral Pratt," Admiral Jones replies, "that there were matters that they were not at liberty to discuss with me. I got a very strong impression that we were going over to London to accept what the British wanted us to accept, which was 18 instead of 21 eight inch gun cruisers and a larger number of six inch gun cruisers than we have need of."

Went to London Reluctantly.

It was this sort of impression that caused the admiral to decide at first that he would not go to London. He decided when Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams was appointed to the delegation and Adams asked him to go.

In his written protest of Feb. 5 Admiral Jones said that in his opinion the Stimson cruiser allotment "weakens us in sea power relatively to the allotment submitted by the general board of the navy," which was 21 ten thousand ton eight inch gun cruisers and 105,500 tons of six inch gun cruisers, a total of 315,500 tons.

"This allotment," says the Jones protest, "was the result of careful study and full consideration of the cruiser program submitted by Great Britain as her minimum, now adhered to by Great Britain without change, and was agreed upon by the general board as constituting a sufficiently close approximation to parity to warrant acceptance.

Calls Change Dangerous.

"I am in complete accord with the opinion of the general board, and consider that the tentative plan as outlined departs dangerously from the standard of parity accepted, in that the tonnage in the type of cruiser most useful to us is decreased and the tonnage in the type of cruiser less useful to us is increased. Furthermore, the plan is a distinct further departure from the attitude consistently maintained by the United States, that limitation should be based on total tonnage in categories, with freedom for each nation to build within that tonnage the type of vessel most suited to its strategic and geographic needs.

"The tentative plan has the effect of standardization to a certain extent in a type most suitable to Great Britain, due to her possession of numerous and strategically well located bases as well as a greatly preponderant merchant tonnage readily convertible into auxiliary six inch gun cruisers, and less suitable to us, due to our lack of such bases and merchant tonnage."

Submits Expert Analysis.

In support of his views Admiral Jones incorporated in his protest an analysis of American cruiser needs by Rear Admiral J. R. P. Pringle, president of the naval war college, designed to demonstrate that acceptance of the British terms would give us more six inch cruisers than we need for fleet operations and too few eight inch gun cruisers for protection of our communications in distant regions.

Earlier in the day Senator David Reed [Rep., Pa.], a member of the delegation to the London conference, called Admiral Jones before the foreign relations committee to explain a letter he wrote to the secretary of the navy last June in which he attributed a high value to six inch gun ships.

"In view of the fact that the larger eight inch gun unit cannot carry protection against a six inch gun, the advantage lies somewhat with the eight inch gun due to its greater range, but this advantage rapidly disappears when the two units come within range of gun fire control, in view of the much greater rapidity of fire of the six inch gun and the fact that its destructive effects are sufficient to properly disable an eight inch gun unit if sufficient hits are made," said this letter. "In view of the above, the percentage evaluation given to the gun caliber factor for the six inch gun should be not far from unity."

Admiral Jones Explains.

Senator Reed thought this utterance destroyed the validity of Admiral Jones' protest against the settlement under which we are to have more six inch gun and fewer eight inch gun ships than the general board contemplated. Admiral Jones denied that there is any inconsistency of his views in this letter and his protest of Feb. 5. He explained that in the letter he was merely seeking to show that the six inch gun is entitled to a higher valuation than the British had attributed to it in all discussions relating to the balancing of eight inch and six inch gun ships.

"Nothing in this letter," said Admiral Jones, "impairs the validity of my contention that the eight inch gun ship has a better chance of survival than the six inch gun ship in unit operations in distant areas."

Senator Hale questioned Admiral Jones on the alleged jokers in the treaty. It has been asserted that if Britain, for example, should avail herself of the "escalator clause" to build six inch gun cruisers to offset French building, we could not put the equivalent tonnage into eight inch gun ships. Admiral Jones disagreed, insisting we would have the right to build eight inch gun ships. Senator Reed agreed with Admiral Jones and said that any misunderstanding of the phraseology could be cleared up by an exchange of notes.

Bristol and Robinson Clash.

Rear Admiral Mark Bristol, chairman of the general board's executive committee, defended before the foreign relations committee his suggestion that the negotiation of a limitation treaty ought not to have been attempted at this time.

Senator Joe T. Robinson [Dem., Ark.], a member of the American delegation, heatedly suggested that an opinion on such a matter of policy was beyond the admiral's province. Admiral Bristol said, nevertheless, he had an opinion as a freeborn citizen that it would have been wiser to have waited until we had completed our cruisers before negotiating a treaty.

Reach Edinburgh

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

EDINBURGH, Scotland, May 19.—Mr. and Mrs. James Brown, a modest scotch couple, who have been paying less than a dollar a week for their cottage at Ayrshire for 35 years, today took over the great Holyrood palace in Edinburgh where, for a fortnight, Mr. Brown will be the direct representative of King George.

Once a coal miner, Mr. Brown is now lord high commissioner of the church of Scotland, the position held last year by the duke of York. He will sit on a throne, hold levees, receive a 21 gun salute, move about in the state coach, and to all intents will be a king holding court at Holyrood.

The couple arrived here today, Mr. Brown wearing a stovepipe hat, but otherwise plainly dressed. Mrs. Brown was dressed entirely in brown, and carried a voluminous bag and an equally voluminous umbrella. But Cinderella-like gowns awaited Mrs. Brown at the palace, and she and her husband will be dressed in gorgeous costumes during the whirl of society events of the coming ten days. The Browns are teetotalers, and refuse to serve anything stronger than lemonade and ginger ale at state functions.

27,000 MORE LOSE JOBS IN BRITAIN; TOTAL IS 1,739,000

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 19.—Great Britain's jobless figures jumped another 27,000 this week, chiefly from the Lancashire cotton industry areas, bringing the total up to 1,739,000. Minister for Unemployment J. H. Thomas made this admission in the house of commons tonight, adding that the increase included a "tremendous number of women."

A gloomy picture of industrial depression with a continuance of the crisis was painted by speakers in the jobless debate.

Mr. Thomas denied government responsibility for industrial unrest, arguing that social conditions in England are better than in other European nations.

Disappointment at the government's attitude was indicated by the result in the division on the Conservative motion to reduce formally the minister for unemployment's expenses. The government only obtained a majority of 15. There were cries of "Resign! Resign!"

New York, May 19.—[Special.]—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, who will celebrate the third anniversary of his epochal flight across the Atlantic on Wednesday, has flown approximately 30,000 miles since the last anniversary of his hop from Roosevelt field to Le Bourget, in Paris.

CELL ROOM FIRE HAZARDS WILL BE ELIMINATED

The alterations needed in some of the police station cellrooms to furnish additional safeguards from fire will be made immediately, according to Commissioner of Police Russell. The major repairs called for in some of the fire survey reports from the police captains will be referred to the council finance committee for appropriations. In four of the stations extensive changes are necessary, according to the reports. Sixteen captains reported that only minor changes are needed to make possible a rapid exit of prisoners in case of fire, and fifteen captains reported that no changes are necessary.

JAPANESE NAVAL MINISTRY SPLITS ON LONDON PACT

Admiral Asks to Resign in Row with Chief.

TOKIO, May 19.—Admiral Takarabe, minister of the navy, lost no time after he arrived at Tokio this morning to set aside rumors of his possible resignation. He made clear at a cabinet council that he had no intention of resigning his post in connection with the issue raised here over the London naval treaty.

Vice Admiral Yamanashi, vice minister of the navy, called upon Admiral Takarabe immediately after the cabinet council and is reported to have expressed a desire to resign, ostensibly because of ill health, but actually because of differences which have arisen in the naval group over the London treaty. Admiral Takarabe is said to have tried to dissuade him, but it seems doubtful that Admiral Yamanashi will continue.

O. K. Compromise Plan.

Admiral Yamanashi attended the cabinet meeting, at which it was decided to accept the Reed-Matsudaira compromise, and made known his opposition to the plan, but he was overridden by the cabinet. Vice Admiral Kobayashi, chief of naval construction, is mentioned as his successor.

Admiral Takarabe arrived in Tokio at 8:30 a. m. He was greeted at the station by all members of the cabinet, Admiral Togo and Count Yamamoto. A large crowd assembled at the station and an extra force of police was on hand to prevent disorder.

Admits Pact Has Faults.

The navy minister drove immediately to the official residence of the prime minister, where the cabinet went into a two hour session. Addressing the cabinet, Admiral Takarabe said that while Japan was not entirely satisfied with the result of the London conference, none of the other signatories were entirely satisfied and that he had done the best possible. All Japan could do now, he said, was to be content with the ratio accorded her by the treaty.

He declared he had no intention of resigning, now or in the future, because of the London treaty, and pledged himself to do everything possible to smooth out the difficulties with the naval general staff and to bring about ratification of the pact.

SEEKS BAN ON PARKING OF CARS WITHOUT LIGHTS

Corporation Counsel Ettelson yesterday was requested by Samuel W. Maltz, president of the National Garage Owners' association, to advise the police to enforce the city ordinance which prohibits the owners of automobiles from leaving their cars parked in the streets between 2 a. m. and 6 a. m. without lights. Mr. Maltz said he feels that if the ordinance is enforced the motorists will store their cars in garages overnight.

"The association is not a racket," said Mr. Maltz. "The garage owners have to pay a license fee to the city and we can't compete with the city streets. If the police enforce the ordinance members of the association will tow the cars to garages and store them free for the night. The motorists probably will be fined in court and after that I believe that they will park their cars in a garage."

Mr. Ettelson took the request under advisement. He directed James M. Kearns, assistant corporation counsel, to make a survey of the city ordinances on the subject and report to him.

Canadian Fruit Growers Get 'Seasonal' Duty Barrier

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., May 19.—Instead of the proposed year round tariff protection against American fruits and vegetables, as originally proposed in the new Canadian tariff bill, Canadian growers are to have "seasonal" protection. Finance Minister Dunning tonight announced this as the first major change in his budget proposals.

DECISION ON WET AND DRY VOTE UP TO J. HAM LEWIS

Supporters Disagree Over Expediency.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

James Hamilton Lewis, Democratic nominee for senator, is to be given the say on whether the Democratic party shall initiate an Illinois wet and dry referendum. A controversy between Anton J. Cermak, county chairman, and Michael L. Igoe, national committeeman, over whether the party would gain or lose strength by promoting a small ballot vote on liquor as a public policy question, was bubbling merrily yesterday.

After a lunch table conference, Mr. Cermak announced the question would be submitted to the candidate for settlement upon his return to Chicago. Word from California was that Mr. Lewis is on a homeward bound train, and that just before his departure from the west he had been arrested and fined $10 in San Luis Obispo for speeding in a taxi while hurrying to a dentist for treatment of an ulcerated tooth.

He'll Pass It Back.

Expectation among the Democratic chiefs is that Mr. Lewis will refer the question right back to the county committee, saying in substance, "I am confident to leave it in your hands, gentlemen"—and on this hypothesis preparations were made to call the committeemen together within the next week or so.

Chairman Cermak said he is more convinced than ever that the Democrats should engineer the task of getting the question submitted to a popular vote, in order to retain anti-Volsteadism as a doctrine of the Democratic party.

"The question of prohibition is going to the people anyhow," said Mr. Cermak, "so let the Democratic party take the lead. The Democratic party is making the fight for temperance and liberalization and a return to constitutional guarantees and original principles, so let us maintain our leadership. This, too, will head off any racketeering organizations, some of which are already avowing their intention of circulating petitions and are soliciting funds. I have received several letters soliciting contributions. Some of them are from bona fide groups and some of them appear to be nothing but rackets. The Democratic party is opposed to prohibition, let's keep the leadership in the fight."

Igoe Opposes Referendum.

Mr. Igoe argues that the candidates themselves constitute a referendum.

"My objection to a referendum," he said, "is that it will muddle up the real issue. We've had two votes on this question and Illinois has gone wet. In the coming campaign the voters have their choice between a wet Democrat and a dry Republican, and that itself is the best kind of referendum. It was a referendum that defeated George Brennan in his race for the senate, and I fear a referendum would injure Mr. Lewis."

A pronunciamento on prohibition was put forth by the Democratic county organization yesterday, which remarked:

"We are familiar with the history of America under the Volstead act and the Jones law. We are shocked at the daily stories of murders committed, citizens outraged, homes invaded, and the youth of America despoiled—all under the guise of enforcing the federal prohibition laws.

"An experience of ten years indicates that these laws cannot be enforced. They are violated generally and they constitute our greatest national disgrace. We favor the repeal of the Jones law and the Volstead act. We also favor the repeal of the Illinois search and seizure act, provided, however, that saloons must never be legalized. We believe the saloon is a defunct institution."

If the Democrats decide to sponsor the wet and dry referendum, it is proposed to split it into three questions: "Shall the eighteenth amendment be repealed?" "Shall the Volstead act and the Jones law be repealed?" "Shall the Illinois search and seizure act, known as the state prohibition law, be repealed?"

GETS DIVORCE

MRS. NONA HAKES SCHINZ.

Mrs. Nona Carolyn Hakes Schinz yesterday at Reno, Nev., obtained a divorce from Walter Schager Schinz, world war aviator and now employed as salesman for a loop investment securities firm. His home is at 1114 Grove street, Evanston.

Mrs. Schinz charged her husband would say "there's a fine picture tonight at the theater," knowing she liked the movies, and then would go to the show without her. She also testified he objected to her visits to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James R. Hakes of the Georgian hotel, Evanston, and would absent himself from their home three months at a time when she saw them.

Mr. Schinz last night denied all of her charges in a telephone interview.

Grandmother Operator of Tiny Still Wins Probation

A 60 year old grandmother of five who faced a possible maximum Jones law sentence of five years and a fine of $10,000 yesterday was given probation for one year by Federal Judge Woodward. The defendant, Mrs. Rose Beller of 1256 South Kildare avenue, pleaded guilty to manufacturing and selling liquor after dry agents testified they had found a still of the proportions of a tea kettle in her home. Attorney A. E. Aberman, who represented the woman, declared she never had heard of the prohibition laws.

BATTLE TO GET FIRST ACTION ON RELIEF PROGRAM

Assembly Will Reconvene Today.

BY PARKE BROWN.

During the second week of the special session of the general assembly, which opens today, Cook county members may unite solidly in a refusal to vote on the amendment of the revenue article of the state constitution until after action has been taken on the bills prepared by the Strawn committee for the relief of the local governments of Cook county that are in financial straits.

If that program is set by a caucus of the county delegation in either or both houses and followed by the members from Chicago and its immediate suburbs it would be impossible for Gov. Emmerson and those favoring the amendment plan to obtain in the near future the two-thirds action required for the revenue commission's resolution.

Must Get Quick Action.

The attitude of the members of Cook was determined, they said, by their conviction that if Gov. Emmerson forces early action on the constitutional question the attendance will drop to such a low point that the Strawn bills will be endangered. Springfield veterans, including Speaker Shanahan, already have predicted that the attendance will fall off even for this week.

It is contended by the proponents of caucus action also that if debate is started on the basic law change at this time there is danger of a deadlock in one or both houses which might delay enactment of the Strawn bills until after June 30, which then would require a two-thirds vote in both houses to make the new laws effective this year.

Some of the members also were worried by reports that the total number of bills introduced in the special session will be much larger than has been expected so that the time required for this form of business will extend to four or five or even the full six weeks remaining before June 30. The constitutional resolution, they pointed out, could be adopted after June 30 and still go on the November ballot.

No Restrictions on Tax.

A long battle on the amendment is considered certain under any circumstances. The amendment considered in the regular session last year contained specific limitations concerning an income tax law. They restricted the state to 17 per cent of the net receipts and prohibited creation of this form of impost by less than a two-thirds vote of each house. Those restrictions are not included in the resolution now pending and efforts to incorporate them in it are under consideration.

The projected fight to obtain first consideration for the Strawn bills on grounds that, while the amendment plan will not suffer by delay, they are intended to meet serious emergencies that require immediate attention probably will be led by Representative Elmer J. Schnackenberg [Rep.], who went to Springfield yesterday to look over the ground in advance to today's meeting, and by Minority Leader Michael L. Igoe [Dem.].

Both, it was said, are prepared to argue to advocates of the amendment plan that it should be given a free field for consideration without complications such as its being interlocked with other matters before the special session, that votes for or against it should be neither coerced or persuaded, and that this situation can be reached only by first disposing of the relief bills and other measures.

There was comment among the legislators that a Hearst newspaper indorsement of the amendment resolution referred to it as the "Emmerson revenue program," although the governor has emphasized the fact that he is not supporting any specific form of wording for the amendment. It was pointed out also that the indorsement said that Gov. Emmerson "has promised to use his influence to secure reapportionment at the regular session in 1931."

Those legislators pointed out that the governor's message contained no such promise.

"Let us at this time take up the revenue system," said the message's only reference to this subject, "and then, at the regular session next year, undertake to find a satisfactory solution of reapportionment."

It was recalled that Roy D. Keehn, William Randolph Hearst's personal representative in Chicago, has not yet been reappointed major general commanding the Thirty-third division, a post to which he was named by Len Small, that he has urged Gov. Emmerson to reappoint William H. Malone as chairman of the state tax commission, and that he is asking the special session to make possible the expenditure of $600,000 for an artillery range now blocked by the wording of the appropriation bill.

Give Arguments Today.

Today's joint session of the assembly is set aside for a public hearing on the constitutional question. Among those to be heard are Prof. Harley L. Lutz of Princeton university, who is expected to discuss the desirability of "wide open" grants of revenue power to the legislature; Harrison B. Riley of the Chicago Title and Trust company, a member of the revenue commission, and Attorney David R. Clarke, counsel for the Illinois Manufacturers' association, which is opposed to the proposed amendment and to an income tax.

Attorney William H. Sexton, in charge of the preparation of bills for the Strawn committee in addition to the thirteen introduced last week, said that some questions concerning the amounts to be written in the new measures will not be determined until conferences are held in Springfield today.

$120,000,000 CANAL BOND PLEA IS SENT TO GOV. EMMERSON

A copy of the resolution adopted by the trustees of the sanitary district last Thursday urging Gov. Emmerson to authorize the legislature to consider permitting the district to issue 120 million dollars in bonds without referanda during the next six years was mailed to the governor yesterday.

If the governor does not take action on the resolution a trustee will go to Springfield and present the case to the governor in person, Walter Beebe, attorney for the board, said.

The resolution points out that sewage disposal plants to be erected with the proceeds of the sale of the bonds have been ordered by the Supreme court. This is a condition under which diversion of water from Lake Michigan is allowed. If the money is not obtained for the plants the sanitary district can be held in contempt by the Supreme court. Therefore, the resolution urges, the law requiring a state referenda on sanitary bonds should be suspended.

HURTS FATAL TO AUTOIST FORCED FROM PAVEMENT

Vincent Valentenas, 48 years old, 727 West 18th street, died at Holy Cross hospital yesterday, two hours after his automobile plunged into a ditch at Archer and Harlem avenues. Valentenas lost control of his machine when he was forced off the road by a passing motorist who did not stop.

This death raised the county motor toll for the year to 329.

Twenty-five crippled children escaped injury yesterday when the bus in which they were riding crashed into an automobile driven by Roy Layton, 20 years old, 4330 Berkeley avenue, at West 43d street and Princeton avenue. The children were being driven home from the Christopher school by Lawrence Damato, 6916 Diversey avenue. Layton was cut about the head. He was arrested by Stockyards police on a charge of assault with an automobile.

SCHOOL CUSTODIAN DIES.

SERVANTS JOIN INDIA'S FOREIGN CLOTH BOYCOTT

BY CHARLES DAILEY.
[Copyright: 1930: By The Chicago Tribune.]

CALCUTTA, India, May 19.—India's civil disobedience campaign, including the manufacture of illegal salt, raiding of the government monopoly salt factories, boycott of British made cloth and the picketing of liquor and opium shops, took on a new aspect today. Servants—even cooks and barbers—refused to serve wearers of clothes made of foreign fabrics.

Wants of natives, clad in homespun garments and Gandhi caps, were readily attended to by the Nationalist servants. Wearers of foreign made cloth merely received a shrug.

Fear Business Chaos.

Meanwhile, financiers of Calcutta, Bombay and other important cities have taken a gloomy view of the situation, particularly since the economic boycott has become increasingly effective.

An intensive effort is being made by the government to minimize the revolt campaign, since, with the Indian press virtually suppressed and a total printing holiday in force on Tuesdays and Wednesdays, the British press is ignoring or trying to minimize the nation-wide movement. Telegrams from the interior of daily happenings are often held up for several days by authorities.

The jute mills will renew a movement for reduced hours coupled with the entire closure for a fortnight in July. Cargo space is rapidly being created in both directions and on all lines. The India chamber of commerce has informed Lord Irwin, viceroy, that a continuance of the present political policy will lead to business chaos.

Mobs Besiege Salt Bins.

Rebel mobs are still besieging three government salt factories. Crowds of rebels are arriving in constantly increasing numbers to aid the salt war, particularly at Dharsana and Wadala. Police reinforcements have been rushed to the plants to halt any further raids on the bins.

Only five real leaders of the Gandhi campaign remain unjailed, and these are being closely watched. They are V. T. Patel, resigned speaker of the legislative assembly; Pandit Mallaviya, Pandit Motilal Nehru, Dr. Roy and Mrs. Sarojini Naidu, the present generalissimo. Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, president of the all-India congress, is still imprisoned near Allahabad with his seat remaining vacant.

Throughout India, arrests of the congress presidents and secretaries continue. Thousands of ordinary rebels are being seized daily for participating in parades and picketing. They are being given swift sentences. Firearms are also being confiscated from holders of licenses.

Police Club Raiders.

BOMBAY, May 19.—(AP)—India's battle against the government salt monopoly continued unabated today, but there was no mass violence nor were there any serious clashes with the police.

The activities of civil disobedience volunteers centered chiefly around the salt pans at Dharsana and Wadala. At the latter place the police used their sticks to drive the raiders away from the salt pans, injuring seven. They perspired heavily at this task, for the volunteers worked in small groups, one batch rushing to get into the barbed wire inclosure while the police were busy driving another out.

Hoot at Police.

The same system prevailed at Dharsana, where raids on the government salt works were instituted unsuccessfully last week by Mrs. Sarojini Naidu, woman leader of the civil disobedience movement.

Nationalists split into groups to provoke the police, while spectators chanted and sang nationalist songs. Wednesday is expected to be a critical day at Dharsana, for mass action by thousands of volunteers has been arranged for that date.

Most of the prisoners have been interned in a prison compound at Worli. Reports of mistreatment there caused some Hindus to go on strike in Bombay today. Some of the prisoners went on a hunger strike, alleging that cement had been put in their food. Prison officials denied it.

Bidapur, scene of serious rioting recently, has quieted down under more than ten days of martial law and the mills resumed their regular hours today, but will close a trifle earlier than usual because the curfew law is still in effect. Banks and branch postoffices also opened, and the Civil court went into session Saturday.

A government statement said most of the reports of mob atrocities in Sholapur at the height of disorder were false.

One development, which may have significance later, was the arrest today at Jhelum of a large party of Akalis [Sikh devotees], who were marching to Peshawar, key city of the Indo-Afghan frontier, to "express sympathy with the Pathans of that city." Police prepared to intercept another group of 100 Sikhs reported on the way.

Police Fire on Riot Mobs.

BOMBAY, May 19.—Police rifles cracked again into riotous mobs in several parts of India today and in Multan, Punjab, a bomb was thrown among civil authorities, who, with police, were removing the property of a shopkeeper for the discharge of his water tax. Nine police, including the white superintendent, R. A. Hill, were injured.

In another clash near Lahore police who had been called to protect loyal Indians in a village outside Jhelum, fired buckshot into a crowd which wrecked the car in which Deputy Commissioner F. L. Brayne was traveling.

By an agreement made out of court, Smith will pay his wife $1,500 a month during the remainder of her life or until she remarries. It is understood there was a cash settlement of nearly half a million dollars.

Mrs. Smith alleged lack of affection on the part of her husband.

McAdoo to Defend Editor on Court Contempt Charge

Los Angeles, Cal., May 19.—[Special.]—The Los Angeles Daily Record today engaged William Gibbs McAdoo, ex-secretary of the treasury, to defend the Record on a citation to show cause why its publisher and two editors shall not be punished for contempt of court. The Record was made a court defendant Saturday when the Los Angeles Bar association brought court action, sponsored by Foreman Frederic Morris of the grand jury, to hold the newspaper guilty of contempt for publishing cartoons lampooning the grand jury, because the grand jury is to be construed as an arm of the court.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 19.—[Special.]—Ruth Chatterton was sued in Superior court here today for $2,270, asserted due on a New York dressmaker's bill. The complaint says the actress paid $1,800 of an original $3,770 order.

HECKLE BRITISH CHIEF FOR INDIA ON REVOLT MOVES

Ply Him with Questions in House of Commons.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 19.—Monday being the regular question day for the India office in the house of commons the afternoon was devoted to heckling Wedgwood Benn, secretary of state for India. Answering Commander J. M. Kenworthy, Mr. Benn said he had ordered an inquiry into the recent riots in Peshawar and the sittings of the committee would begin May 26. He declined to say whether the findings of the inquiry would be laid before the house of commons.

Answering further questions he promised to lay before the house a summary of the situation up to last Saturday as received from the Indian government.

Another question exacted the information that the salt tax, which has been selected by Mahatma Gandhi as the focus for agitation, amounts to between eight and nine cents per annum per head.

Ask About Red Activities.

Sir William Davison and the marquess of Titchfield, Tories, pressed home a series of questions about the bolshevist influence behind the Indian riots, the marquess declaring it was a fact that the sickle and hammer emblem was frequently seen in India. Mr. Benn insisted that he had no official information indicating communist influence. Davie Kirkwood, Clydeside, left wing Laborite, then injected:

"Is it not true that the unrest in India is due to the fact that we British have bled India white for the last century and a half?"

The speaker ruled the question out of order and Sir Assheton Pownall, Tory, returned to the attack on communist lines.

Urges Martial Law for India.

Brig. Gen. Clifton-Brown was told that martial law had been proclaimed May 16 in the city of Sholapur and had not been extended to any other part of India, upon which the general demanded to know why the government did not apply it to the whole of India and "cease fooling about with revolutionary anarchy?"

Mr. Benn ignored the question, and A. Fenner Brockway, Laborite, a pacifist leader in the war, asked whether there had been public floggings of Indians for breaking the curfew law. Mr. Benn declared he had no information on this point, except press reports, and Mr. Kirkwood again asked whether Mr. Benn has been acting any differently from Lord Birkenhead, his predecessor in the India office. There was no answer to this, but Mr. Benn was able to assure T. I. Mardy Jones, Laborite, his next questioner, that the story of the removal of Gandhi caps from Indians by British soldiers was quite untrue.

This information was greeted by conservative cheers, after which the hecklers turned on Foreign Secretary Arthur Henderson and gave him the usual weekly grilling about soviet propaganda in England.

"No Weakening of Control."

The Indian government, in an official communique today, stated that there is "no weakening of control" by authorities in India. It adds that there are signs of improvement in the revolt in several districts. The communique concludes by saying that the public as a whole is tiring of sympathy strikes and loss of business.

CAPTURE "KING" NAMED AS BOSS IN BOMB RACKET

Suspect Denies Part in Extortion.

"King George" Hillarbos, alias George Hillson, named by Frank R. Phillips, who was caught early Sunday morning in the act of setting a bomb, as the man who hired him and directed his operations, was arrested late last night on the south side by Patrick Roche, chief investigator for the state's attorney's office.

Hillarbos, said to have come here 18 months ago from Waukegan, was taken to the Criminal Courts building for questioning. He denied he knew Phillips or that he was in any way connected with his activities.

Roche received confidential information early in the evening as to where Hillarbos could be captured. He sent six of his men to raid the place in the hope of rounding up others of the gang, but only Hillarbos was found. He was held without being booked.

Accused as Extortionist.

Phillips accused Hillarbos of being the head of an extortionist ring and said that he had set off several bombs for him at $150 a bomb. Hillarbos' collections from Greek restaurant owners, coffee shops and places where gambling was conducted in a small way were considerable, according to Phillips, who is a former convict.

Roche and Assistant State's Attorney Wayland Brooks spent yesterday investigating Phillips' story and they and their assistants visited shop owners who had been threatened with bombing if they did not pay extortioners. The officials obtained several names to guide their investigation of the alleged bombing ring.

Trailing "Big Shots."

One name led to another, the investigators said, and late in the day they said they were on the trail of "the big men of the bombing industry." They could not reveal names, they said, but their information suggested that some well known criminals were back of "King George," who, the officials asserted, merely acted as a go-between so that the actual bombers, like Phillips, would not know the "big shots" for whom they were working.

Feed Them Right and How They Grow

Look at this proud mother and father measuring their boy's height on Thompson's Life Line Chart. No wonder they are happy!

Two years ago the lad was two inches under average height for his age—and even ten pounds under weight for his height. But now he's up to normal in height and even a few pounds over average in weight. How did this boy make this astonishing progress?

Just one simple change accomplished the whole thing. Instead of urging him to drink a glass of raw milk two or three times a day mother added two teaspoonfuls of Thompson's Chocolate Malted Milk to the raw milk. After that he needed no urging.

The added food value in Thompson's gave this boy the extra nourishment he needed to grow at the proper rate. Sturdier bones and stronger muscles came naturally. His stomach very easily handled the additional food in this form, because Thompson's "Double Malted" process makes the most quickly digestible food.

Serve it at Home

Thompson's now prepare a special "Double Malted" Malted Milk already mixed with powdered chocolate to serve at home in a jiffy. Two teaspoonfuls in a glass of milk—a little shaking—that's all. Your druggist or grocer will be glad to deliver right now, today, the one pound can of this new Thompson's Chocolate "Double Malted". Order it now.

Gives it to your children for luncheon. It's so delicious it will make them eager for that best of all foods—milk. And it will do wonders for their health because Thompson's adds 75% to the food value of milk. Phone your druggist or grocer now.

COURT REMOVES PERIL TO BILLION IN REALTY HERE

Kills Suit Attacking the Torrens System.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 19.—[Special.]—Titles to more than a billion dollars' worth of property registered in the Cook county recorder's office at Chicago were safeguarded today by a decision of the United States Supreme court upholding the constitutionality of the Illinois Torrens act.

The highest court unanimously affirmed judgments of the Illinois courts dismissing a petition by Edward and Elin Eliason to compel the county recorder to cancel deeds to property bought by Charles and Carrie Wilborn and the Noel State bank of Chicago on the ground that the deeds were obtained with a forged conveyance.

Alleged Swindle Told.

Counsel for the Eliasons showed that they were holders of a certificate of title under the Torrens act which they trusted to one Napletone. The latter was alleged to have presented it, with a forged conveyance to himself, to the registrar and obtained a new certificate which he later sold to the Wilborns. Discovering the alleged forgery, the Eliasons demanded cancellation of the deeds and took the case to court on a plea that the statute deprived them of their property without due process of law.

County Recorder Clayton F. Smith bought and obtained the right to enter the case as party defendant when it was appealed to the United States Supreme court. Mr. Smith was represented by his attorney, J. Scott Matthews.

Justice Holmes, presenting the court's decision, held that the Eliasons assumed a risk when they trusted Napletone with their certificates and thus waived their constitutional rights.

Own Fault, Court Holds.

"There are plenty of cases in which a man may lose his title when he does not mean to," Justice Holmes wrote. "If he intrusts a check indorsed in blank to a servant or friend he takes a chance. So when he intrusts goods to a bailee.

"A man may be deprived of a title by one who has none; as when an owner who has conveyed his property by a deed not yet recorded executes a second deed to another person who takes and records the later deed without notice of the former. There are few constitutional rights that may not be waived.

"There is not the slightest reason to suppose that Napletone would have got a certificate on which the Wilborns could rely without the delivery of the old one by the appellants. As between two innocent persons one of whom must suffer the consequence of a breach of trust, the one who made it possible by his act must bear the loss."

Allies Set Fire to Billions in German War Debt Bonds

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, May 19.—Bonds to the value of 148,000,000,000 gold marks [$35,224,000,000], representing series "A," "B" and "C" of the German reparations bonds under the Dawes plan, today were formally burned before the representatives of the allied powers and the German delegate, today.

The destruction of the securities marks the opening of official operation of the Young plan for reparations with the Bank for International Settlements at Basel, Switzerland, receiving and disbursing payments.

Two ceremonies occurred, the first at the headquarters of the defunct reparations commission, where bonds to the value of 132,000,000,000 marks [$31,416,000,000], representing the scale payments from May, 1921, according to the Dawes plan schedule, and railway debentures amounting to 11,000,000,000 marks [$2,618,000,000], representing the first mortgage on the railroads, were burned.

Industry Bonds Up in Flames.

In the afternoon at the Bank of France 5,000,000,000 marks [$1,190,000,000] worth of bonds pledging Germany's industries were consumed by flames.

The ceremony was marked by auto da fe, with important and serious looking gentlemen in frock coats and white spats solemnly checking off the numbers of various bonds and placing them carefully in the chimney after insuring that the total number was present in the pile.

Then the French delegate lighted a match, but the solid mass of bonds refused to ignite. Someone placed a tissue paper beneath them and soon the flames were licking the billions of bonds. An acrid, thick white smoke poured in the room from the blazing parchment until the draught began sucking the fumes up the chimney.

The German representative breathed a sigh of relief as the flames flickered and only a little pile of ashes marked the remains of Germany's financial obligations under the Dawes plan, and left only a reduced total under the Young plan.

There was an identical scene at the Bank of France later, only there was less smoke and less flame from the smaller bundle of industrial mortgage bonds.

Watch on Rhine Ends.

Simultaneously Premier Tardieu, Foreign Minister Briand and War Minister Maginot formally notified the German ambassador, Herr von Hoesch, that the French military forces would begin the evacuation of the third zone of the Rhineland immediately, and that the last pollu will have left German soil by June 30 as agreed at The Hague.

Premier Tardieu instructed Paul Tirard, president of the Rhineland high commission, and Gen. Guillaumat, commanding the army of occupation, to proceed without delay in retiring the soldiers across the frontier back into France.

They acknowledged the orders and assured the premier that the final zone, including Mayence and the Palatinate, would be freed within a few weeks. Only a few small scattered detachments of troops are left in certain centers while affairs will be wound up when the last garrison is withdrawn from Treves. Ambassador von Hoesch thanked the French officials for speeding up the liberation of Germany and promised there would be no unfriendly demonstrations by the local populace attendant with the withdrawal.

STRUCTURAL IRON UNION DEMANDS WAGE INCREASE

Members of the bridge and structural iron workers union met last night at 938 West Madison street and dicided to demand a wage of $1.70 per hour, effective June 1, and to strike if the demand is refused. Their present scale is $1.62½ per hour under an agreement which expires May 31.

Joseph Corr, business agent, said he would present the ultimatum of the union to E. M. Craig, secretary of the Building Construction Employers' association. A conference is to be held. It is understood the employers will oppose a wage increase.

At present there are but 400 members of the union employed, officials of the union said, and there are 2,000 waiting for jobs which are expected to be open this summer.

EVACUATION OF RHINELAND TO BE BEGUN TODAY

WIESBADEN, Germany, May 19.—(AP)—The final evacuation of the Rhineland occupied area, for more than a decade the goal of German diplomacy and the dream of the German people, will begin officially tomorrow.

The custodian of German properties today received notification to this effect from the supreme command of the French army of the Rhineland.

Details of the program of evacuation were not given, but the actual movement of French soldiers is expected to begin some time this week. The troops at Landau, Germersheim, Kaiserslautern and Treves will probably be the first to go. The entire operation may be finished by May 30.

PUBLISHERS OF 14 STATES OPEN MEETING TODAY

The business will consist largely of reports on investigations made by the newspapers on service, advertising rates, cost finding, and like subjects.

Will V. Tufford, secretary-treasurer of the association, said yesterday at a directors' meeting that "interesting revelations in the policies of small papers toward national advertisers and chain store influences in the smaller cities" would be made during the meeting.

The first formal step in the Boy Scouts' new younger boy program will be taken this evening at a meeting in the City club. Plans for organizing cub packs for boys 9 to 11 years throughout Chicago will be made, E. Urner Goodman, scout executive of Chicago, announced yesterday. Presentation of the cubs' program will mark the real beginning, Mr. Goodman said, of the four year expansion and maintenance program which is to be made possible by the $1,250,000 campaign now in progress. At present $826,884 has been raised.

PLEADS ALIEN'S RIGHT TO DECIDE WAR FEALTY VOW

MacIntosh Citizenship Appeal Argued.

New York, May 19.—[Special.]—The appeal of Prof. Douglas Clyde MacIntosh, professor of theology at Yale, from the decision of the United States District court in Connecticut denying his application for citizenship was argued before the federal Court of Appeals today.

Prof. MacIntosh, a native of Canada, was represented by John W. Davis before the court, composed of Judges Martin T. Manton, Thomas W. Swan and Learned Hand.

Prof. MacIntosh, an ordained Baptist minister, when asked to take the oath of citizenship in Connecticut, reserved for himself the right to bear arms without first judging of the necessity of the occasion, submitting a memorandum in which he said: "I believe in the general form of the government of the United States, but I do not regard it in all respects as ideal."

Depends on Personal Belief.

According to his counsel, Mr. Davis, Mr. MacIntosh represents himself as unwilling to subscribe to the code, "My country, right or wrong," believing that he should be first guided by his duty to his Christian principles.

Judge Manton interrogated Mr. Davis concerning his client's attitude toward the government's right to draft him for duty. Mr. Davis replied that conscientious religious objectors had been excused from military duty from the revolutionary war to the late world war and that it was unjust to demand that prospective citizens subscribe to an oath to which even citizens are not held.

Nurse Also Appeals.

The appeal in the case of Miss Marie Averil Bland, a private nurse, from a decision similar to that in the MacIntosh case, is scheduled for argument tomorrow. Miss Bland, also a native of Canada, who was a nurse during the world war, is the daughter of an Episcopal minister and says her personal religious beliefs will not permit her to bear arms against her fellow man, although she is willing to serve this country as a nurse in time of war.

FRANCE AROUSED BY WARLIKE TONE OF DUCE'S TALKS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, May 19.—The inflammatory speeches of Premier Mussolini, with accompaniment of military displays, are beginning to arouse comment from the French press, which, however, keeps a calm and dignified attitude.

Following Il Duce's warlike speech at Florence and the great review of Fascist forces Saturday, the semi-official Temps tonight devoted an inspired editorial on his threatening words, and comparing the present situation with pre-war days in 1914, when bellicose verbiage was flourishing beyond the Rhine.

"Disquieting Spirit."

"The tone of the last discourse by Sig. Mussolini reveals the existence of a disquieting spirit across the Alps, the same as before the world wide calamity," says Le Temps, "when one could hear imperial voices across the Rhine deliver the same threatening sayings. That was when the former kaiser believed that his high and mighty and disdainful expressions and threats could increase Germany's prestige or create a diversion of internal troubles."

"But such catastrophies as the world war must not be envisaged with Sig. Mussolini, who has political and moral courage which the downfallen Hohenzollern ignored."

Calls Attitude Deplorable.

The majority of the press here term the Italian attitude as "deplorable," as it threatens to remove all hopes of a Franco-Italian accord.

This morning the Daily Volonte issued a warning to Mussolini declaring that if Italy is ever fool enough to declare war, she will be confronted with a union of France and England, and even Germany, who will rise to defend her interests.

CARSON PIRIE SCOTT & CO

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., May 19.—[Special.]—The Republican primary fight which for more than two months has raged in Pennsylvania with intense bitterness came to an end tonight with all factions claiming victory. The voters go to the polls tomorrow. The outcome of the primary is in doubt.

Ambitious Republicans have made the campaign a veritable scramble for place with four candidates for the United States senate and the same number of aspirants for the governorship. On the Democratic side there was no contest, the ticket slated by the Democratic state committee being unopposed.

Charges and counter charges of corruption and double dealing were almost daily features of the campaign.

Davis Has Organization.

While the result of the campaign is admittedly in doubt, it is apparent that a great advantage lies with the faction controlling the organization and machinery best equipped for getting out the vote. The faction is the Philadelphia organization, supporting James J. Davis, secretary of labor, for United States senator and Francis Shunk Brown for governor.

Reports from upstate counties indicate that Mr. Davis will run far ahead of Mr. Brown outside of Philadelphia, and that he probably will be the winner over Senator Joseph R. Grundy, his principal opponent. Francis B. Bohlen, wet candidate for senator, is expected to run third. Webster Cardeld Drew of McKean county, lacking the support of any organization, will poll a small vote, it is declared.

Upon the vote of Philadelphia and Pittsburgh depends the result of the contest. If Brown and Davis can carry Philadelphia by 175,000 or 200,000 and take Pittsburgh by a substantial vote, they should win, with former Gov. Gifford Pinchot and Grundy running second for governor and senator, respectively.

What Observers Say.

While the campaign managers of Thomas W. Phillips, wet gubernatorial candidate, and Bohlen, his running mate for the U. S. senate, declare they have a chance of winning, it is generally agreed by those who are supposed to know their politics that they will run third in the race. The vote cast for them, however, may turn the scale in favor of another candidate. If there should be an undercurrent of wet sentiment in Philadelphia, sufficient to be translated into votes for Bohlen and Phillips, the Davis-Brown chances of victory would be greatly reduced.

In the governorship fight it is the wets against Brown, who favors a referendum on the prohibition question. The wet managers are frankly endeavoring to attract as many votes as possible from Brown in order to help in the nomination of Pinchot, a confessed dry.

Should Pinchot be nominated the wets plan to precipmt a state ticket in the general election and make a vigorous campaign on a straight wet and dry issue.

MIAMI POLICE ARREST CAPONE FOR THIRD TIME

For the third time in 10 days Alphonse Capone was arrested on a vagrancy charge in Miami last night. Miami's chief of police, Guy C. Reeve, held the gangster and his companion, Al Prignano, believed to be the former Chicago alderman, as the pair were about to enter the American League boxing show.

They were taken to police headquarters, according to an Associated Press dispatch, but were released after each had posted a $100 bond. Both returned to the boxing arena, and will be arraigned in Municipal court this morning.

Other developments yesterday in the fight Florida authorities are making to eject Capone from the state, included the ruling appointing a master in chancery to hear the testimony in the padlock proceedings against Al Capone's winter palace. Judge Paul D. Barns entered the ruling after Capone's attorney, Vincent C. Giblin, asked him some time would be needed to obtain defense testimony protesting the padlock. Depositions of two Chicagoans who have visited the estate will be taken, he said. Giblin also announced that Capone will leave Miami for Chicago this week.

CHILDREN WIN NEW CHANCE FOR GUILTY MOTHER

Mrs. Nellie Smith, 25 years old, mother of three young children—one of them a baby in arms—was one step nearer probation yesterday when Judge Harry B. Miller in the Criminal court indicated that he would be lenient with her for the "sake of the children." She was convicted last week on a charge of burglary along with her husband, Edward Smith, 36 years old, and John Pociak, 30 years old. The men were sentenced to the penitentiary.

Attorney Thaddeus C. Tudor, representing Mrs. Smith, pointed out to the judge that under the law burglary is not a crime for which probation can be allowed. He agreed to let her plead guilty to a charge of receiving stolen property. This was done and she is now subject to probation when the case is called again on May 26.

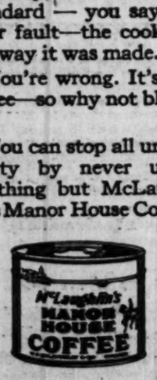
"I am not granting you a chance because of yourself," said Judge Miller to the woman whom he called a "Fagin" last week. "It is because of your children and especially the baby that I am inclined to give you another chance."

Yesterday, the coffee did not taste just right—you blamed the pot.

Today, it was not up to standard — you say it's your fault—the cook's—the way it was made.

You're wrong. It's the coffee—so why not blame it?

You can stop all uncertainty by never using anything but McLaughlin's Manor House Coffee.



FRELINGHUYSEN IS OUT OF RACE FOR SHORT TERM

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Trenton, N. J., May 19.—[Special.]—Former United States Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, candidate for the Republican senatorial nomination in New Jersey, today requested the secretary of state to withdraw his name for the short term nomination, thereby leaving Dwight W. Morrow, ambassador to Mexico, the only Republican candidate for both the long and short terms.

J. S. FRELINGHUYSEN.

Like Mr. Morrow, Mr. Frelinghuysen had his name in for both terms, the long term beginning on March 4. Congressman Franklin W. Fort, a dry, who is the third man in the G. O. P. primaries, is running for the long term only and never considered contesting the short term nomination.

This means that, if he defeats State Senator Alexander Simpson, Democrat, at the general election next fall, Mr. Morrow will go to the senate until March 4 anyway, completing the unexpired term of Walter E. Edge, now ambassador to France.

The reason for Mr. Frelinghuysen's withdrawal is attributed to an opinion on his part that he stands a better chance of winning the nomination if his name appears only once on the ballot. Many persons, not conversant with the election laws, might think that by voting for him once they had also voted for him as a candidate for the long term. On the same theory, Mr. Morrow's chance of winning the long term nomination would be somewhat impaired by being the only candidate to appear twice on the ballot.

Mr. Morrow faces a hard battle. Those in close touch with the campaign that he is making against his two opponents do not minimize the combined strength of these two men, while a third factor has suddenly, and quite unexpectedly, entered.

It is reported that the great liquor interests in New Jersey, instead of supporting the man who has pledged his word to try to repeal the eighteenth amendment, are going to back Mr. Frelinghuysen.

Faced with the dilemma of supporting Mr. Morrow and deserting her own brother, or supporting her brother and deserting Morrow, Miss Margaret Fort, sister of Congessman Fort, today decided in favor of her own family ties. She resigned from the campaign committee of the ambassador whom she had urged from the very beginning as an ideal candidate for United States senator from New Jersey.

OFFICIALS PLEDGE PROTECTION FOR CLEANING PLANT

Chief of Police Harry McInnes of La Grange and several members of the village board were called before Chief Investigator Pat Roche of the state's attorney's office yesterday and questioned on the troubles of the cleaning and dyeing concern of Abarbanell Brothers. Irving Abarbanell last week told the prosecutor that during a recent strike at his plant the police of the village had allowed union pickets to intimidate his employes and customers.

The chief denied that he had intentionally allowed Abarbanell to be harrassed. He and the other officials promised to give the Abarbanell plant all the police protection that is necessary to prevent any damage and to protect the employes and patrons of the company.

Roche said he would continue his investigation.

"Palmolive, blended of the cosmetic oils of olive and palm, we find, is an excellent skin cleanser. Its careful use results in fine textured, satiny skin. A thorough cleansing with its rich lather morning and evening keeps the pores free from the accumulations that cause blackheads and eruptions."

THE MARINELLO COMPANY
America's Great Beauty School

"We recommend Palmolive"

say the great MARINELLO Beauty Schools

"because it assists in our own treatments"

"THE bland olive and palm oils in Palmolive Soap are nature's great cosmetic oils," the heads of Marinello teach their students of beauty culture. And they say, further, that "its rich lather gently cleanses the pores, keeps the texture fine, the surface satiny."

Every year thousands of Marinello graduates join the ranks of professional beauty operators. There are, today, over 50,000 graduates . . . trained, skilful professionals who have the benefit of the Marinello background, with its twenty years of scientific research on beauty culture.

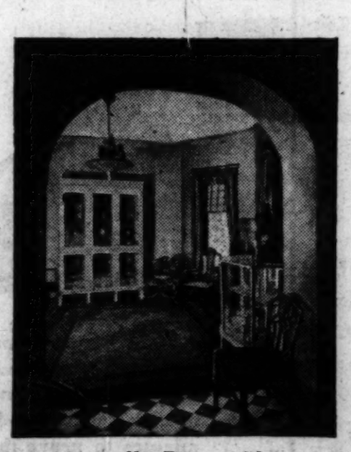
What Marinello means

The name Marinello represents a high standard of scientific beauty culuture. It is nationally recognized, not only by the smartest women in America, but by State Boards, State Examiners and Health Departments. Professional operators, you know, must pass many examinations before they are eligible to serve you. And no Marinello graduate has yet failed to pass a state examination, according to the heads of these 15 schools.

Think what it means, then, to have such a group of schools advise one particular soap! Such approval is authoritative! And such approval is given to Palmolive!

The pores must be carefully yet thoroughly cleansed of impurities every single day. Some soaps may irritate the skin. Palmolive does not. It cleanses safely and keeps the skin soft and smooth at the same time. That is why such experts as Marinello advise it.

The heads of the greatest chain of beauty schools in the world—with fifteen schools and over 50,000 graduates—explain how this olive and palm oil soap helps to keep the skin lovely



Palmolive is made of vegetable oils. It is not artificially colored. It needs no heavy perfume to mask undesirable fat odors. It is a true beauty soap.

"The basis of skin loveliness," heads of Marinello say, "is the properly cleansed skin. In our instruction in the care of many types of complexions, we urge the proper use of soap in dermatological hygiene, laying great stress upon the soap itself that is used.

"In conjunction with our special creams—Marinello Astringent Cream and Marinello Acne Cream, for instance—we find Palmolive Soap a valued auxiliary."

Use Palmolive this way

With both hands massage Palmolive lather into the skin. Rinse with warm water, then with cold. And after that you're ready for powder and rouge. Use Palmolive for the bath, too. Take the advice of Marinello and 19,800 other great experts both here and abroad. They know.

Middle Age Is the Dangerous Age

As middle age approaches, there is a tendency among most men and women to decreased physical exertion and increased nervous activity, the latter a result of the growing demands of business, professional, social and domestic life.

The increased mortality at these ages would indicate some undue or increasing strain in our modern mode of existence, or a lessening resistance to disease. To meet this critical period successfully, certain principles of living should be followed.

Exercise—

After 35, strenuous, competitive exercise, such as tennis, baseball, football, boxing and wrestling, should be followed with great caution, as the strain on the heart and circulation may be injurious.

The habit of regular outdoor exercise should be fully established. Walking, rowing, swimming, hunting and fishing are all outdoor sports that can be followed into old age and are usually automatically self-regulated so that over-exertion or undue fatigue is not likely to occur. Billiards is an excellent indoor form of exercise and very helpful to the man in middle age.

Diet—

As middle age advances, the consumption of meat, all flesh foods and salt should be decreased, and that of fruit and vegetables, especially those of bulky character and low food value (such as spinach, lettuce, tomatoes, carrots, turnips, watercress, celery, parsnips) should be increased. The leafy vegetables are valuable for their vitamines. Constipation should be combated by proper diet, exercise, and the regular use of water between meals, especially before breakfast.

Mental Hygiene—

The habit of system and order in business methods; the avoidance of nervous worry over trifles; the facility of playing and following some hobby aside from business, and thus avoiding a lopsided use of the brain functions; courage, poise, self-control—all of these are almost magical in their protective influence during the perilous middle period. For this is when men and women break down more frequently from the cumulative effects of pin pricks of worry and nerve strain rather than from the sword thrusts of heavy cares and troubles.

Periodic Health Examinations—

There is probably no measure for the benefit of both men and women generally that has received such overwhelming scientific endorsement as that of a yearly health examination. The Life Extension Institute has examined nearly a million men and women in the past sixteen years. It has demonstrated according to independent and unassailable scientific authority that the death rate among people who take such examinations can be substantially reduced and an equivalent degree of physical suffering, unhappiness and life failure wiped out.

By such examinations minor defects that would otherwise develop into full-fledged diseases can be detected and corrected. Faulty living habits that cause organic strain can be pointed out and the various types of infection that constantly injure the tissues and cause organic disease can be located and attended to.

The Life Extension Institute was the pioneer in establishing and popularizing such periodic health examinations. The Institute has established in its Western Headquarters in the Tower Building, 6 North Michigan Boulevard, Chicago, a health examination unit similar to that which it has at its Home Office in New York City, with every scientific facility necessary to the making of these critical and searching examinations.

Free Books on Health—

If you are interested in the Institute's health service, for yourself or any member of your family, send in the coupon below for further information and many interesting free reprints on the subject, including the booklets, "How to Live Long," "Hygiene at Middle Life" and "Prevention of Organic Disease."

The Life Extension Institute is carrying on a national educational campaign to disseminate knowledge on correct personal hygiene and to teach people the value of periodic health examinations by the family physician, by the Institute, or any other approved scientific center. The Institute has been carrying on this work for more than sixteen years, and knowledge of its scientific work has reached all parts of the world.

These Life Extension examinations are available for men and women everywhere, as the Institute has medical examiners in all the principal cities and towns of the United States and Canada and in several foreign countries.

The Institute renders no treatment, performs no operations, but makes a scientific survey of your life and body to determine the need for medical treatment, for correction of defects, or the regulation of ways of living. In addition, the Institute will place before you the consensus of opinion of the foremost scientific authorities on the right kind of living habits. Send in the attached coupon for further information, or you are cordially invited to visit the Institute's headquarters in Chicago.

SPONSORS CHEER AS BLACK HORSE TROOP RIDES OUT

New Crack Cavalry Unit Has First Drill.

Chicago's new Black Horse troop last night made its first public demonstration in a full dress drill, accompanied by its mounted band, in the arena of the Chicago Riding club, Erie street and McClurg court.

Society was there to view the new troop and 36 piece mounted band. The troop was organized by Chicago business men following the first announcement early in 1929 that a fund of $225,000 was sought to finance a Black Horse troop and band, "to be made up of the finest young men in Chicago." It was organized for the purpose of forming a crack troop to be used as a guard or honor when distinguished visitors came to Chicago.

Mustered Into State Service.

The troop was mustered into state service and federally accepted as Headquarters troop, 106th cavalry, Illinois National Guard on April 27, 1929. Later a committee headed by Mrs. Waller Borden chose a dress uniform for the troop. It is a dragoon uniform worn by troopers of 1812.

Preceded by the band, which also rode black horses, the troop entered the arena in single file to applause. Maneuvers continued for more than an hour. The troop is commanded by Capt. Chauncey McCormick.

SEIZE AUDITOR ON CHARGE OF $36,000 THEFT

William F. Gaertner, 43 years old, former auditor for the James E. Berry Sons company, petroleum dealers at 6 North Michigan avenue, was arrested last night at his home, 6200 South California avenue, on a warrant charging him with a $36,000 embezzlement. He had been pursued to California and back. When a police squad reached Gaertner's residence, his spinster sisters at first refused to admit them and denied their brother was in Chicago. The squadmen found him in a bedroom closet, buried under a hamper of soiled clothes.

REVEAL WEDDING OF F. J. LEWIS TO MISS JULIA DEAL

The marriage of Miss Julia Mildred Deal to F. J. Lewis, 63 year old multimillionaire roofing manufacturer, building contractor, and philanthropist., on Nov. 12, 1928, in Phoenix, Ariz., was announced yesterday by the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Morris Deal, 4919 Washington boulevard.

Following the marriage, which was performed by the Rt. Rev. D. J. Gereke, Roman Catholic bishop of Arizona, Mrs. Lewis made her home in Tucson, where she has lived most of the time since, it was explained by her sister, Miss Mary Deal of the Washington boulevard address.

"Mrs. Lewis has not been in good health and that is why she did not return to Chicago with Mr. Lewis," Miss Deal said. "As for their reasons for keeping the marriage secret until now, they are personal and I am not in a position to explain them."

It was announced that Mr. and Mrs. Lewis will be at home in Chicago after June 1 in the Lewis residence at 4929 Woodlawn avenue. Mrs. Lewis is in Tucson, her sister said, and Mr. Lewis has gone to join her there.

Mr. Lewis, who is head of the manufacturing company bearing his name, is a Knight of St. Gregory, an honor bestowed by the pope, and vice president of the Associated Catholic Charities.

DETECTIVE SHOT, RETURNS FIRE AS GUNMAN FLEES

Detective Charles McCann of Sergt. Walter Miller's bureau squad was shot in the leg by one of two hoodlums whom he tried to question at Chicago and Crawford avenues as he was going to work at midnight last night.

McCann was on his way from his home at 1419 North Lawler avenue and was waiting to meet Sergt. Miller when he thought he saw a holdup in progress about midway in the block. When he announced himself at a distance of a few feet one of the men fired a volley of shots. McCann fell and returned the fire as the two fled.

Among those attracted by the shooting was McCann's brother, James, 1637 North Sayre avenue, who was on his way home from a union meeting. He took McCann to the Robert Burns hospital, where it was said that his wounds were not serious.

SCHOOL GROUP ACCEPTS TERMS OF AIR LEASE

Approves Land Rental at Municipal Field.

BY ROBERT WOOD.

Indication that the board of education has arrived at terms for the Municipal airport lease which are agreeable to the board as a whole was seen yesterday in the action of the committee on buildings and grounds. The committee accepted the report on the new terms, which grew out of a conference with city and aviation officials, and instructed the boards' attorneys to draw up a lease on that basis.

The new terms call for a 50 year lease on 585 acres of school land at Clearing. The proposed lease will contain a clause which would make it possible for the city or the schools to terminate the lease at the end of 20 years. Discussions yesterday indicated that city officials and the airport interests may object to this clause when it comes up before the city council.

By the terms of the proposed lease the city is to pay the schools $25 an acre for the property for the first ten years, $27.50 for the next five years, and $30 an acre per year for the following five year period. Rental for the remainder of the lease, should it be renewed, is to be six per cent of a valuation to be set by appraisers.

Sees Advantage to Schools.

The subcommittee of the buildings and grounds committee headed by Trustee Louis E. Meyers, reported in part the following reason for the recommendation of the proposal:

"It has not been possible to lease this land at satisfactory prices, in view of which the agreed rental of $25 per acre for the first ten years seems to be entirely justified and satisfactory from the viewpoint of the board of education. Also there is the matter of the escape from special assessments." By the new lease the city is to pay all such assessments.

Trustee Carter Blatchford introduced a resolution which asked that a disinterested lawyer be retained to give an opinion on the right of the school board to lease property for airport purposes or for any other purpose.

Protest Beacon Service.

Meanwhile operators at the Municipal field were protesting against the failure of the electricians on the airport staff to turn on the landing beacons at night for planes not on scheduled runs. The protest grew out of the report that flyers bringing pictures of the Kentucky Derby into Chicago Saturday night were forced to make haphazard landings in the dark after circling above the airport several times waiting for the landing lights to go on.

Walter W. Wright, city director of aviation, stated that the matter was being investigated. Airport operators and aviators declared that failure to light up the city field at night for incoming planes was a frequent occurance.

LOBBY COMMITTEE WILL MAKE REPORT ON HUSTON INQUIRY

Washington, D. C., May 19.—[Special.]—Senator Thomas J. Walsh [Dem., Mont.] announced tonight that a formal report of the lobby committee's investigation of the part played by Claudius H. Huston, chairman of the Republican national committee, in the activities of the Tennessee River Improvement association, a Muscle Shoals lobby, will be submitted to the senate tomorrow.

Earlier tomorrow the lobby committee will not only resume its inquiry into the affairs of the Anti-Saloon league with F. Scott McBride, the general superintendent, on the stand again, but also will decide whether it will summon Joseph Radlow, partner of Henry L. Goldhurst in Kable & Co., the now defunct Wall street bucket shop through which Bishop James Cannon Jr. traded in marginal stock speculations.

The committee's investigator returned from New York today with copies of the letters, telegrams and cablegrams exchanged between Goldhurst and Cannon.

Baltimore, Md., May 19.—[Special.]—Joan Lowell, author of "The Cradle of the Deep," was injured in an automobile crash near Hyattville, Md., today. She is in a hospital here for treatment of a bruised shoulder and arm and possibly a fractured rib.

According to the police, Miss Lowell, who in private life is Mrs. Thomas Buchanan of New Hope, Pa., was motoring from Washington to Baltimore when another machine swerved in front of the car in which she was riding.

Miss Lowell was thrown to the floor of the machine and later was brought to this city by a state policeman and F. C. McCormick of Brooklandville, Md. She was treated in the accident department of the hospital and later taken to a private room for further treatment and observation. Her condition is not serious, physicians said.

Miss Lowell, it was said, had been visiting friends in Washington last night and was returning here early today when the accident occurred.

TEST JAYWALKER EDICT; ARREST 38 IN NEW YORK

Pedestrian Made to Wait for Crossing Light.

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 19.—[Special.]—The inalienable right of all New Yorkers to thrust their limbs under passing automobiles and offer themselves as sacrifices to the bumpers of wayward trucks was challenged today by Police Commissioner Grover A. Whalen.

The edict on jaywalking was a sort of farewell gesture on the part of the commissioner, who is planning an early retirement, but it was entered into enthusiastically by traffic policemen and pedestrians alike.

There were 38 arrests, including 22 motorists and taxi drivers, who made their right turn into traffic at their usual speed, not realizing that the open season on pedestrians had been closed. Those captured "red-footed" today will see Chief City Magistrate William McAdoo tomorrow morning and out of the lot one specimen will be selected for Mr. Whalen's test tube.

Not So Sure of Court Test.

The commissioner is not at all sure that the ultimatum against jaywalking is lawyer-proof and plans to take his test case to a higher court. Mayor James J. Walker also doubts the legality of the edict.

The day for Mr. Whalen's tilt with the 6,000,000 dawned through rain clouds, but the commissioner was unperturbed. He was firm in his resolve there would be no puddle jumping. Twenty-five raincoated policemen stood outside the commissioner's office.

"Go," ordered the chief, "to the four corners and let there be no jaywalking. Speak kindly but firmly. Tell them that green means go and that red means stop. Let no one, motorist or pedestrian, violate the light and let no one cross except at street intersections. And," concluded the commissioner, twirling his mustache neatly, "bring me in a test case."

Pick Four Test Corners.

The twenty-five marched bravely into the streets to meet the 6,000,000 dividing into smaller groups they stood guard at 23d and 4th avenue, 31st and 4th avenue, 27th and 4th avenue, and at 37th and 8th avenue. There already was a two-week old guard at 34th and 7th avenue in front of the Pennsylvania station.

These four test corners had been kept secret, for Mr. Whalen did not want New York to know where the law would strike first. For a time the cops continued their arm swinging practice. It was raining hard and nobody would pay them any attention. Then the noonday crowds came out and the cops went into action.

The first pedestrian to get a summons was in a hurry to cross 8th avenue. The following dialogue was overheard:

"Where do youse think youse is going? asked the cop politely.

"Aw, you guys make me sick," responded the prospective test case. "I gotta get to my office."

The pedestrian walked on and into the arms of another cop who signed him up in his little date book.

Woman Gets Lecture, Not Ticket.

Over on 6th avenue an elderly lady with a Queen Victoria hat and no umbrella lifted her skirts and skipped into the traffic stream. A cop blew his whistle, halted the rush and gave her a lecture in the middle of the street. She did not get a summons, as the police were not arresting women nor girls this afternoon.

BISHOP H. P. ABBOTT WILL RETAIN PLACE, SAYS CHURCH HEAD

Providence, R. I., May 19.—(AP)—Bishop James De Wolf Perry, presiding bishop of the Episcopal church in America, announced today that, at his request, the Rt. Rev. H. P. Almon Abbott, bishop of Lexington, Ky., has withdrawn his resignation.

BISHOP H. P. ABBOTT.

This action, Bishop Perry said, results from correspondence he has had with Bishop Abbott and officials of the Lexington diocese and from the conviction that "the best interest of the church would be served by the continuance of Bishop Abbott in his jurisdiction."

Bishop Abbott resigned after the Rev. Julius A. Velasco, Dayton, Ky., was acquitted in an ecclesiastical trial on charges brought against him after his marriage to a Roman Catholic girl. Bishop Abbott claimed the verdict was a reflection on his integrity.

Hunt Body of Girl Who Disappeared from Ship

The disappearance of Miss Phyllis Mericle, 21 years old, 287 Hickory street, Hinsdale, from the steamer Bainbridge, on which she took passage on Friday from Chicago to Benton Harbor, remained a mystery last night. She was missed when the boat was about 12 miles off the Michigan shore. Her suitcase was found in her stateroom, but there was no note or other clew to indicate a suicide motive. Coast guards at St. Joseph, Mich., were watching the shore yesterday for the young woman's body.

Yeggs Blow Safe in West Side Store; Get $4,000

Safe blowers, some time during the week-end, chopped a hole in the wall of the Leader Department store, 1537 West Chicago avenue, eluded an intricate burglar alarm system, and forced the safe with nitroglycerin, muffling the explosion with bedding they found in the store. The burglary was discovered yesterday by employés. The store manager, Otto Zodicka, estimated the loss in currency at $4,000.

Trio Take 70 Canaries in Holdup of Pet Shop

Seventy caged canaries, worth about $500, and $40 in cash were obtained by three robbers who held up Mrs. Hermine Engelmann yesterday in her pet shop at 1646 Larrabee street. They escaped in a sedan.

LEVINE, IN EUROPE WITH MABEL, SAYS DIVORCE 'ABSURD'

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, May 19.—Rumors that Charles A. Levine, first trans-Atlantic passenger, is coming to Paris to seek a divorce in order to marry Mabel Boll, the "diamond queen," gained momentum today when Mr. Levine, accompanied by Mabel and her new steak eating Schnauser, arrived unheralded in Europe.

The report here is that Charles was trying to get one of those "Mexican" divprces, but he denies it.

"The whole thing is utterly absurd," declared the flying junk dealer. "We just came over to spend a little vacation at Carlsbad. There is nothing unusual in the fact that Mabel is in town. We are good friends, you know."

LANE H. S. PLAN CALLED ORNATE; DELAY IS ASKED

Construction of the new $6,500,000 Lane Technical High school, to be erected at Addison street and Western avenue, may again be postponed and all bids for its construction rejected. This was indicated yesterday when a subcommittee of the building and grounds committee of the board of education reported that it considered the building too ornate and recommended the plans be sent back to the architect for revision and all bids be rejected. Bids are to be received today and will be passed on Monday.

ROB MUNICIPAL COURT BAILIFF.

Sol Netzer, a Municipal court bailiff, was robbed of $170 and two diamond rings yesterday afternoon by two men who gained entrance to his apartment at 914 Sunnyside avenue on the pretext of being friends of the family.

YOUTH ADMITS RIBBON KILLING OF HOUSEWIFE

Burglar Tells Slaying, Then Makes Denial.

bers Fail observed against descriptions of the fugitive car. By midnight they had traced the car to Putscher.

For 15 hours on Friday a Berwyn police squad lay in wait at the home of Putscher's parents, 1815 South Wesley avenue, Berwyn. At 5 o'clock that afternoon the pair of burglars drove up, were seized and relieved of the .45 caliber pistols they were carrying.

Both youths readily confessed the Berwyn burglaries and others in Cicero, Oak Park, and Austin. They said they had disposed of most of their loot through pawn shops, but led Lieut. Marshall to a caché along a creek at 45th street and Harlem avenue, Oak Forest, where they had hidden six pistols, three watches, and a quantity of cheap jewelry pending a deal with a pawn broker.

Sent to Detective Bureau.

It was Putscher's operations in the Austin district which prompted Berwyn police to send the prisoners to the detective bureau late yesterday. Under Stege's questioning McKinley said Putscher had told him he was "working" in the neighborhood of the Helsing apartment on the day of the murder.

In examination of Putscher Stege led up to the murder casually. He first won the prisoner's admission that he had tried to rob other apartments in the building. When finally Stege sprang the question "What happened between you and Mrs. Helsing?" Putscher blanched and began to confess it.

In a hunt for Mrs. Helsing's two fur coats, stolen by the strangler, Berwyn police brought into the station Miss Killian, who is 22 years old, and her sister, Rosalie, 20, who was a friend of McKinley. The sisters, who live at 2611 South Clarence avenue, Berwyn, denied they had ever received gifts from the burglars.

Parents of Killer Shocked.

Putscher's parents seemed stunned by their son's confession. The father said the boy had told him he was employed in a north side bowling alley. The mother said she had always believed him a dutiful son because he never failed to come home at 5:30 p. m. for dinner.

The elder Putscher is employed at the Hawthorne plant of the Western Electric company, where Reuben Helsing, husband of the slain woman, is an auditor. Young Putscher had also worked at the Hawthorne plant, but had been laid off about the time of the murder.

South Chinese Rebel Army Beaten; Marches on Hankow

BY JOHN POWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, May 19.—The victory of the Cantonese troops loyal to the central government over the Kwangsi rebels after a year of civil war in south China has precipitated a sensational development in the south China military situation due to the decision of the defeated Kwangsi forces and the "Ironsides" troops to attempt a dash toward the Yangtze valley for the purpose of capturing Hankow.

According to a dispatch from Canton, the loyal Cantonese troops under Gen. Chen Chi-tang have occupied the strongholds of Kewjiesien and Sunchowfu, in the province of Kwangsi. After the occupation of the towns Gen. Chen discovered that the Kwangsi rebels and the "Ironsides" troops had evacuated the province and started to march northward through Kwangtung and Kiangsi provinces, joining with communists and other anti-Nanking elements who were formerly under Gen. Tang Shen-tse of Hunan province.

30,000 Troops in Pursuit.

As a result of this development, the loyal Cantonese commanders, Chen Chi-tang and Chu Shao-liang, hurriedly returned to Canton yesterday from the Kwangsi front and announced their intention immediately of leading an army of 30,000 troops northward. The situation has thus developed into a race between the two armies.

The Canton air force of ten bombers and thousands of Cantonese troops are now evacuating Wuchow and other parts of Kwangsi. They are going to Canton to prepare for a campaign in central China on the side of Gen. Chiang Kai-shek's nationalist forces, which are now engaged in combat in eastern Honan.

A military report from Nanking today claims the nationalist government forces are advancing westward along the Lunghai railway from Suchowfu toward the northern rebel forces entrenched in the vicinity of Lanfeng, several miles east of Chengchow, Honan, where Gen. Feng Yu-hsiang's headquarters are located.

U. S. Women in Peril.

Washington, D. C., May 19.—(AP)—The state department today announced it had received information that five of the 25 magisterial districts of the province of Kwangtung, China, were in the hands of Red forces under Chute Ma Tse-tung. The information was telegraphed by David C. Berger, American consul at Swatow, Kwangtung, who reported that conditions in the interior of the district were chaotic. Mr. Berger said he had instructed the American women missionaries at Chiaying to go to Swatow immediately.

Mrs. George Campbell, address not given; Miss Louise Campbell, Toledo, O.; Miss Anna Forster, Buffalo, N. Y.; Maurice A. Ahern, Hartford, Conn.; Martin F. Barry and Francis Donnally, Ossining, N. Y.; William J. Downs, Erie, Pa.; John J. Driscoll, Girardville, Pa.; Charles C. Eckstein, Charles P. Hilbert, Patrick F. Malone, Hugh C. McKernan, and William M. O'Brien, all of Mary Knoll, N. COUNTRY FAILS WHEN PRESIDENT FAILS—COOLIDGE

Says Executive's Success Spells Nation's Success

Northampton, Mass., May 19.—(AP)—Calvin Coolidge today told a Republican school of politics assembly that "the success of the presidential office is more or less the success of the country and, unless the people give the President their support, the country will not be a success."

The meeting was conducted by local and state Republican women.

Mr. Coolidge expressed the opinion that "it is necessary for us to have parties if we are to retain our form of government."

"Those countries that we sometimes refer to as backward, not in any spirit of criticism, suffer most, in my belief, for the reason that they do not have a sufficient political organization and when they want to make some change and secure improvement in their position they are often driven to violent revolutionary methods," he said.

"It is for the purpose of providing peaceful action that we organize political parties. We ought not expect, and I suppose we do not expect, perfection in our government. Certainly we don't expect it when it is in the hands of the opposition, and the opposition does not expect it from us when it is in our hands, but we do expect from our party an honorable, honest, and conscientious administration of our affairs."

Grand Jury Hears of Pay Roll Padding on Sanitary District

First Assistant State's Attorney John E. Northup, conducting the renewed sanitary district investigation before a special grand jury yesterday, announced that a loop barber had confessed before the grand jury that he was only a "pay roll dummy." The witness, whose name the prosecutor would not give, admitted before the jury, Northup said, that $500 a month was drawn by him as a district employé under the régime of Timothy J. Crowe as president of the board and that two-thirds of the money was turned back.

He Knew Politicians.

The identity of the person or persons who received the two-thirds of the barber's salary was also kept secret. However, the barber worked in a loop shop patronized by politicians and it is reported that it was through the acquaintanceship he made with certain of these while plying his barber trade that he was able to get on the district pay roll without doing much more than collecting his check.

Another announcement by Prosecutor Northup was that Mrs. T. F. Fahey, wife of a passenger agent, was a witness before the grand jury Saturday. She was called regarding the appearance on district pay rolls of names similar to those of members of her family.

It was reported that railroad arrangements for a "whoopee" party of several years ago which ended up at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel in New York with a large bill for broken furniture was made by Mrs. Fahey's husband.

Call U. S. A. Company Official.

A crucial stage in the renewed investigation is expected to be reached tomorrow when George L. Chamberlain and his wife, Louise, are to be called before the grand jury.

The U. S. A. company, electrical contractors, of which Chamberlain is president, installed the $1,000,000 lighting system on the north shore channel road. He is to be asked who received gifts ranging from golf balls to expensive silver service sets and where the unaccounted money of the company drawn through currency checks was spent. The checks were disclosed by a recent income tax investigation by the government which resulted in the indictment of Chamberlain and others.

The investigation is being conducted with such secrecy that the prosecutor has surrounded the room in which the grand jury is meeting with huge screens, to shield witnesses from observation.

No other refrigerator costs as little to use as Electrolux

No other is absolutely silent

Why is Electrolux the only automatic refrigerator that is absolutely silent?

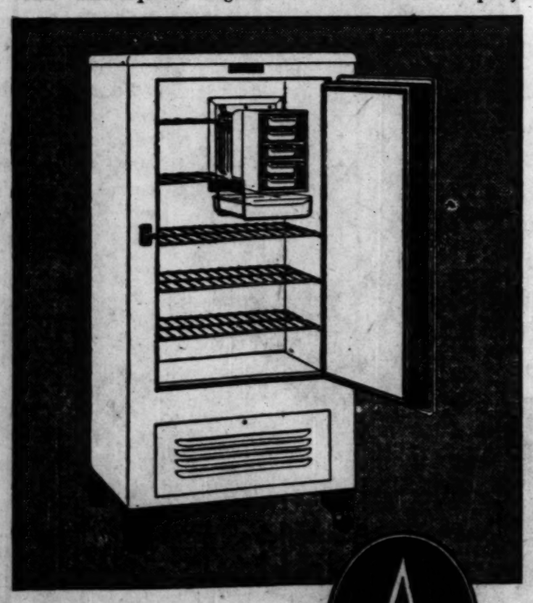
The explanation is simple. Electrolux is the only one that has no machinery, no moving parts at all. Machinery requires power. Where you have machinery you're bound to have some wear, some noise, and considerable expense for power to turn the machinery.

In Electrolux a tiny gas flame and a trickle of water do all the work. Gas and water are relatively inexpensive, and very little of each is required. That is why the operating cost can be so low—only a few pennies a day.

The way this refrigerator works is as simple to understand as the boiling of water in a tea kettle. The tiny gas flame vaporizes the liquid refrigerant. The trickle of water condenses the refrigerant back into liquid form again. This natural, endless cycle keeps your refrigerator cold, freezes ice cubes and desserts. The low temperature in Electrolux is constant because Electrolux doesn't have to stop and start. It works all the time.

Because no moving parts are necessary in Electrolux, it is absolutely silent in operation. You can't hear any machinery even if you press your ear close against this refrigerator. There isn't any to hear.

There's nothing to need your attention, to grow noisy as time goes on, to ever wear out. The liquid refrigerant is sealed inside a rigid one-piece steel unit. It never needs renewal. Even the little gas flame is guarded every minute by an automatic shut-off. No gas can flow unless the flame is lighted.



The Hostess Model Electrolux, a roomy refrigerator for average families, $225 installed. 9.2 sq. feet shelf space; makes 40 large ice cubes.

EXPAND SOCIAL SCOPE OF DINNER FOR ALDERMAN

Chain Invitations Bolster Feigenbutz Event.

A broad civic aspect was lent the proposed testimonial dinner for Ald. William H. Feigenbutz of the 45th ward yesterday when it was learned that the bars of hospitality have been let down to include practically every employé of every department in the city, from gas inspectors to dog catchers and sewer workers and on up to municipal court bailiffs.

Since Michael Carrozzo snubbed the party and forbade any of the 3,000 members of the Street Sweepers' union to attend—at $5 a plate—there has been considerable activity by the Feigenbutz Boosters' club to fill the chairs thus vacated.

500 Asked to Sell Tickets.

One of its leading officials conceived the idea of chain letter invitations and employés of the city license bureau, numbering 500, were deftly approached to put the scheme into effect. They were notified that each was expected not only to buy a ticket, but dispose of five more. The result would be 3,000 tickets, for a total of $15,000.

Oddly enough, R. O. Romin, superintendent of the license bureau, is not a member of the Feigenbutz Boosters' club but he is a partner of the alderman in the real estate firm of Feigenbutz & Romin. While this had nothing to do with the testimonial, it interested an inquirer, who questioned one of the bureau employes.

"We have had a tough winter," said he. "I haven't been able to meet all my household expenses. Personally, I drive a flivver—1923 model. I do not want to go on record as being jealous of Mr. Feigenbutz and his testimonial dinner, but why should he need a Lincoln car to come to work at the city hall, when a flivver would do just as well?

Jobs Depend on Salesmanship.

"The word has gone down the line in a lot of departments that jobs depend on the degree of high pressure salesmanship shown by the employés in this chain letter invitation racket.

"I understand they are also going after the garbage wagon drivers and the day laborers in the 45th ward, and that the screws have been put on deputy bailiffs of the Municipal court and the license bureau's investigators. I guess Mike Carrozzo will stop it for these latter, as he is an official of their organization."

Something of a further rift in the city hall lute as regards the dinner was hinted by Bernard Kelly, secretary to Municipal Court Bailiff Bernard W. Snow, when he declared that "none of our men will be permitted to peddle any Feigenbutz tickets," and added:

"Why, they weren't even asked to contribute enough for a meal in a one arm restaurant when Mr. Snow was first elected."

Mr. Feigenbutz could not be reached by phone last night to comment on the new developments, but politicial associates advanced the theory that the commotion in the city hall was merely due to "his well meaning friends acting again without his authority."

PANTAGES WITNESS SEEKS TO RECANT; DROPS DAMAGE SUIT

Los Angeles, Cal., May 19.—(AP)—Frederick Wise, a witness in the Alexander Pantages assault case last fall, appeared at the district attorney's office today and said he wished to recant a portion of his testimony at the trial of the theater multimillionaire. He said he also had instructed his attorney to dismiss a $250,000 damage action brought against Pantages.

Wise, one of the state's principal witnesses at the trial, said he had made a "private investigation" and obtained "affidavits and evidence" which caused him to believe that a portion of his testimony was incorrect.

Wise refused to say what part of his testimony he referred to. At the trial he testified to hearing screams come from the room in Pantages' theater building at the time of Pantages' alleged attack on Eunice Pringle, 17 year old dancer. Pantages was sentenced to prison.

JOHN POWERS, NOTED FIGURE IN COUNCIL, DEAD

Picturesque Old School Politician Passes.

1888. Originally the boundaries of the ward were from Van Buren to Twelfth street and from Loomis street to the river. When the old Nineteenth was changed to the Twenty-fifth ward the topography of the ward also was changed. The Twenty-fifth ward runs as far west as California avenue.

In his early aldermanic days Powers gained the friendship of his constituents by giving turkeys and other fowl. Every Christmas he would rent a vacant store in the ward, from which turkeys, geese, ducks, and chickens were distributed to all who came.

The complexion of the vote of the ward changed from 90 per cent Irish to about 50 per cent. The Jews and the Italians came into the ward, but ah a rule they all voted for Powers. Years ago it was a byword of the Italians to say "I vote for Johnny de Pow."

The first serious opposition Powers had for his seat in the city council was when James Marzano, an Italian undertaker, ran against him as a Republican years ago. Powers beat Marzano, but he afterward said the election cost him more than the office was worth. Friends of Powers say he spent $25,000 to defeat Marzano.

Bitter Contest with D'Andrea.

A few years later Powers was opposed for alderman by Tony D'Andrea, a Nineteenth ward labor leader. This probably was the most bitter aldermanic campaign ever waged in the old Nineteenth.

Both sides spent "barrels of money," but the old war horse, Powers, was victor by a safe majority.

The bitterness of the campaign did not end with the election of Powers. Several Italian killings followed, and D'Andrea was one of the victims.

Powers, however, never feared death. He went about the ward at all hours of the day and night and he was never molested.

"I've been a square guy with everybody," Powers was wont to say, "and why should I fear an assassin's bullet? Everybody in the ward is my friend."

"Johnny" Powers for years was the oldest and most picturesque character of the council. He was an alderman before some of the present members were born.

Always Stanch Democrat.

Johnny Powers was always a Democrat. He was a close friend of the two Harrisons and Mayors Cregier, Hopkins, Dunne, and Dever. Under Johnny Powers' management the Nineteenth ward was always Democratic. He was the friend and adviser of all the big Democratic politicians in Illinois for the last thirty years.

For many years Ald. Powers resided on Vernon park at Macalister place and Sibley street. After the death of his first wife he married a widow, Mrs. Mayme McKenna. For several years they lived at 4500 Michigan avenue, but Ald. Powers still retained his old residence in Vernon park.

He leaves, besides his widow, one son, John F., a resident of Los Angeles, and a daughter, Mrs. George Moxley, Chicago.

How Much Do They Eat—And Why?

IT's hard for us to realize that the very food we eat is closely related to the type of civilization we have, and even to the economic conditions of the time.

For example, here in America the size of cattle has grown smaller because the American family has grown smaller. Twenty years ago the average farmer raised a steer until it was three years old. Today he can't sell a three-year-old steer. He must sell his cattle at about eighteen months. The reason, of course, is that the butcher cannot dispose of the bigger cuts. Twenty years ago the average family wanted a four, five, or six pound roast. Today the average family wants a two, three, or at most a four pound roast.

Smaller families, smaller cattle.

* * * *

In the same way it is hard for us to realize that even the very quantity of our food intake is closely related to the type of civilization we are building up.

We have become a nation of factories with a very small leisure class. And over eighty percent of all our men are workers—exerters of muscular energy. We have thirty million men in the United States, five million sitters and twenty-five million physical workers.

* * * *

If we take their food intake purely on a basis of calories, we get rather a too striking result. We know that hard muscular work requires about four thousand calories per day. We know that sedentary work requires about twenty-five hundred. Therefore, twenty-five million physical workers would require one hundred billion calories per day. And the five million sedentary workers, or sitters, would require twelve and a half billion calories per day.

Put into figures, instead of words, the comparison would look like this:

Total calories for America's sedentary workers (sitters)	12,500,000,000

So, on the basis of calories, the physical workers consume eight times as much as the sitters, or, to be exact—88 per cent.

112,500,000,000 / 100,000,000,000.00
                  90 000 000 000 0
                  ----------------
                  10 000 000 000 00
                   9 000 000 000 00
                  ----------------
                   1 000 000 000 00

* * * *

But, if one does not like his values in calories, he can very easily get at them in another way—by foot-pounds of energy. And here, of course, we have the evidence of the eyes as well as the mind.

* * * *

The amount of energy exerted by a sitter, therefore, is the amount required to lift his own weight from his chair to his feet. True, if he is physically active and hurrying from office to office, he exerts an extra physical energy in pushing his body along upon the balls of his feet. And this is not a diatribe against the sitter. It is simply a scientific treatment of his case.

Let us put this energy output of a "sitter" alongside of that of a moderate muscular worker. Let us take a factory man at an automatic punch, handling hundred-pound metal sheets. The punching, of course, is done by machinery. All the man has to do is to lift these metal sheets from the pile an average of two feet onto the punching platform. He will handle, let us say, five hundred sheets a day. So he has handled fifty thousand pounds in a day. And he has lifted each pound two feet. So he has exerted one hundred thousand foot-pounds of energy.

* * * *

Now we are ready for an exact comparison in foot-pounds of energy.

All we have to do is to attach a hundred pounds of weight to the "sitter's" back and make him get up from his desk five hundred times a day.

* * * *

Any man at a desk is a "sitter" in the eyes of a worker. Therefore, you who are reading this page are probably as good an example as any for this comparison.

Just picture to yourself a hundred pounds of weight tied to your back, with you getting up and sitting down five hundred times a day. And you will have an exact measure of the energy output of that muscular worker.

* * * *

Now the question is, how much more will you eat under this new system than you are eating now—that is, if you are still able to eat.

* * * *

The trouble is we see this immense amount of physical effort going on and we get very little relation of the energy output and therefore of the necessary food intake of its requirement.

There is no muscular work that does not require a far greater output of energy, and therefore a far greater intake of food, than any sedentary work could possibly demand.

Take a bricklayer, for example. He works eight hours a day, lifts up and lays fifteen hundred bricks. A brick only weighs a pound and a half. And he lifts those bricks not more than two feet. Yet the actual foot-pounds of energy that he has expended at the end of the day in brick-lifting alone is probably greater than the energy that is expended by the entire office force that is directing the building.

* * * *

Of course, he eats—and how!

* * * *

Here at True Story this subject of food intake becomes very interesting, because we get the story not only from an economic but from a social viewpoint. You who may remember your Charles Dickens' stories will possibly recall that whenever Dickens wanted to show an exceedingly happy scene, he always set his characters down at a heaping table.

You would be surprised at the number of Dickens' episodes that creep into the True Story tales, wherein the high spot of the story is the dinner table, heaping with food.

"Give me liberty to know, to utter and to argue freely according to my conscience, above all other liberties."

THE NAVAL TREATY AND THE PHILIPPINES.

The secretary of war, Mr. Hurley, writes to Senator Bingham of Vermont, chairman of the committee on territories and insular affairs, that independence for the Philippines cannot be considered as possible now or in the near future. Filipino political leadership continues to ask for it. Even if it is not representative of Filipino intelligence and self-interest it is not discredited politically in the islands. The liberty party contains the spokesmen for the Philippines.

Presently two generations of Filipinos will have been taken through the American preparatory school of training for independent citizenship, but over here the Republican party is against the releasing of a free state and the Democratic party gives it nothing but lip service. The altruistic reasons for not granting independence are beginning to wear thin. The realistic reasons are not developed. In the drift there is nothing to indicate that the islands will be given up to ways of their own devising and regulating.

Under the Washington agreement the United States is prevented from taking any further measures for the defense of the Philippines or of any other Asiatic possessions, but under the policy prevailing in American government it retains the obligation to defend them. There is the extreme frontier of American territory and an aggression against it would cause a war almost as certainly as would an aggression against the California coast.

The naval treaty brought back from London by Mr. Stimson, secretary of state, disregards this frontier completely. The secretary of war protests against any recession or any abandonment of the country's far away border. The secretary of state and the secretary of the navy ignore its existence. They permitted Japan to break away from the ratio fixed at the Washington conference and to obtain authority for increased strength which will give the Japanese control of the approaches to American territory in the far east.

One department of government insists upon retention of frontiers which other departments are making indefensible, and the administration apparently agrees with both programs.

SENATOR VANDENBERG SPITES HIS FACE.

The objections of Senator Vandenberg of Michigan to the appropriation for the Illinois waterway, when examined in connection with the report on the project by Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, chief of army engineers, can leave little doubt of the meaning of the objections. The senator, speaking for the attorneys general of the lake states, says he will consent to a diversion of only 1,500 feet a second from Lake Michigan. Maj. Gen. Brown shows that such a diversion will require additional expenditures for locks and dams and to that extent will add to the cost of the project, delay transit through the waterway, and generally lower its usefulness.

In discussing the effect of the present diversion of 8,500 feet upon navigation in Lake Michigan the general says:

"The diversion at Chicago appears to have had no effect on lake navigation since the latter part of the season of 1928, and none is anticipated during the season of 1930."

It is evident from this that Senator Vandenberg has little reason to be concerned about lake shipping. Plainly, he is not seeking to make the Illinois waterway an asset to the nation. On the contrary, the aim of his activity is to render the Illinois waterway as nearly useless as he can. The waterway would be of great service to the farmers, and especially to the manufacturers of Michigan who are heavy importers and exporters, but this does not count in the senator's mind. His purpose, we conclude, is to cripple Chicago even if Michigan interests suffer in consequence.

THE SOFT BOILED YANK.

The activities of Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of the Carnegie Peace Foundation as well as of Columbia university, have included the function of adviser to various British cabinets, including Asquith's and Lloyd George's. The Manchester Guardian reveals that Dr. Butler sat in committee meetings considering the reconstruction of the house of lords and the makeover of the empire into the commonwealth of nations. There was probably nothing secretive in the doctor's part as counselor. He was an adviser familiar with the American constitution and the government machinery operated under it. The British were provoked by the drag of hereditary rule in the upper chamber and they doubted the reliability of empire sentiment in the dominions. A makeover was indicated and Dr. Butler was brought in as a doctor.

American administrators and advisers have been all over the globe, particularly since the war and particularly in the service of loans and the revision of finances. They have doctored revenue and budgets and have helped in the reorganization of shattered countries. They have been both official and private. They have taught farm and factory methods. "Taylorism" is a better known word abroad than here.

Dr. Butler is not exceptional to some of this, but there is a difference in other respects. The American financial mission to China has not advised the United States on its immigration policy and has not raised a moral issue against America because it keeps Chinese labor out. Dr. Butler, as an internationalist, not only assists the British government with advice which is good for it to accept, but he correlates this with advice to the American government which, although bad for it, also would be good for the British government if it were taken, on questions of international debt and tariff, for instance.

The American internationalist will indorse alien self-interest as an aspiration in accord with altruistic articles of faith, but native self-interest he regards as a debasement of nationality and dangerous to the welfare of humanity.

HOW TO IMPROVE JOHN'S MAP.

John Park, our production manager, has another map of Chicagoland, moist from the presses, all ready for distribution. It is a large blonde map, very pernickety about showing all the big roads and little roads, all the overpasses and underpasses, all the golf courses, forest preserves, parks, air fields, streams, and other details of interest to the motorist in the ten thousand square miles or so of Chicagoland. When interviewed, this map makes a clean breast of it and willingly reveals the facts. It handles easily, and John points with pride to its new accordion folding. We know of no map of the region that will compare with John's 1930 map of Chicagoland. Nevertheless, we would suggest a number of improvements.

First we would suggest five large, red highways, 100 feet across, to reach like spokes of a wheel across his map, from the loop north, northwest, west, southwest, and south out of the congested districts. They need not be long highways—30 miles north, 30 miles south, 25 miles northwest, west, and southwest will connect them fairly well with the general road system of the county and the state; but they should be through roads with underpasses and overpasses and built for high speed traffic.

If John complains that this improvement is too idealistic for his map, we would suggest some other, perhaps more immediately practicable improvements. He should connect and coördinate his big roads and print some good connecting links between the various improved projects. Where railroad tracks break a good road, such as Washington boulevard in Bellwood, or the road running north from 63d street, John should print a few concrete connections. He could, indeed, make a much more symmetrical road map if he would attend to these little things.

Unfortunately, John seems to have a conscience and will probably refuse to incorporate our suggestions in his map until the road system of Chicagoland can justify it. In that case the only thing to do, no doubt, will be to improve the roads themselves. When Chicagoland gets wide highways and connected ones John will record them.

PEACEFUL REAPPORTIONMENTS.

Wars are usually reapportionments. They come often from a differential growth of power and population, and a nation of 70 million or so finds itself confined to an area no greater than the area of a 30 million neighbor. Without a peaceful recourse open to change the status quo the crowded nation goes to war.

Within a state these differential growths are usually recognized by a legal process of readjustment. In Illinois, with each decade's census as a basis, the apportionment of representatives from the various regions of the state must by law be readjusted every ten years. By law this is—but the Illinois legislature has not obeyed the law. It has ignored the constitution of the state.

The reasons are obvious. They wish the status quo maintained because they profit by it, though illegally. The census for 1930 shows Beardstown for a loss, Danville, Freeport, Galesburg, Moline, Murrayville for small gains or none. Other towns dependent on the rural districts will show probably a small gain, not more than 10 per cent, or a loss. They have declined in population. The metropolitan areas, on the other hand, have gained. Wilmette doubles, Park Ridge triples, Glencoe, Des Plaines, Kenilworth, Downers Grove, Arlington Heights, Lombard, all have doubled, tripled, quadrupled or more in population. The Chicago area has gained. The larger towns have gained. The country districts have held fast or have lost. And towns that gain want reapportionment. Regions that lose do not.

Here are the reasons why there is no reapportionment. They are illegal reasons and unjust, but they are reasons. Those who profit by the status quo will at any price hold on to it.

ADVERTISING CHAIN STORES.

[Wisconsin State Journal.]

Wisconsin merchants have their problems, one of which is to meet chain store competition. The chain store's one advantage is the purchasing of goods in large quantities. To meet this the independent merchants are organizing, buying on a coöperative or community basis. For such practical purposes independent merchants should organize. It is a business matter, and this is a business method. Those who engage in it and get its advantages can meet any sort of competition, chain or otherwise, on even terms. And the independent merchant always has the advantage of his standing as a citizen in the community, part and parcel of its civic and social interests, its local prosperity, and its friendships.

But one step the independent merchants of Wisconsin should take, and take immediately. They should put a stop to the impertinence of politicians who are dragging their business into a campaign in a manner so detrimental to the independent merchant that he should not for a moment tolerate it.

The attack on the chain store, ostensibly to defend the independent merchant against the chain, is giving the chain store free advertising that could not be purchased for millions of dollars. The assumption of these politicians, broadcast over the country, that the independent store is in need of protection against the chain store can leave but one impression with the public. Obviously, if the chain store were hurting the independent merchant, it could hurt him in only one way, and that is underselling and outselling him. And so every speech delivered by the politicians is leaving with the consumers of the state the impression that chain stores do outsell and undersell the independent merchant. Nothing could be more damaging, and if the practice is permitted to continue until the November election independent merchants can look for a tremendous aggregate loss of business to the chain store in consequence.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

IT ALL DEPENDS ON HOW YOU LOOK AT IT.

Fifty thousand people watched the so-called "sport of kings" at the Derby in Louisville last Saturday. And the next day thirty thousand people cheered and whooped at Angels Camp in California over a bullfrog jumping contest. The people at the Derby got soaking wet and most of 'em bet on the wrong horse and they all came away from the track as mad as all get out. The hosses cost a lot of money and their training cost a lot more. All a bullfrog costs is a pair of rubber boots. You pull on the rubber boots and go along the side of a lake, or a slough, and grab your own entry for the frog jumping contest.

Gallant Fox, the winner at Louisville, did the mile and a quarter in 2:07 3-5; the Pride of San Jacinto, winner of the bullfrog leaping contest, jumped 12 feet 10½ inches. People who went to Louisville will sneer at those who stood up and cheered themselves hoarse to see a bullfrog jump 12 feet 10½ inches. But why not? In France, in the days of the late guerre, the lads in the trenches used to have the most breathless excitement racing cooties. Thoroughbred horses, stock market, big bullfrogs or cooties, it all depends on which one you want to get excited about. And the money you lose is just as thoroughly and positively gone on one as another. Hello sucker!

SOME DAY.

I think some day we'll meet again,
By then you may be gray,
And I'll have lost the slenderness
That made you glance my way.
But you will ask me out to tea,
And we shall sit and chat
Of automobiles, politics,
And love, and this and that.
And when I see the stocks and bonds
And lands that are your due,
I'll probably yawn and tell myself
I should have married you!

SEASONABLE HINTS: For chilblains and frozen feet soak the dogs in cold water and rub with salt. For frozen ears take snow and rub said ears until they look like boiled beets. Use smoked goggles when you go out and avoid snow blindness. And if it's this cold on the twentieth of May, what won't it be in June! Get your skates and skis ready for some invigorating winter sport.

HEY! You good news of good times editors, we're doing our best for you, and this morning we've got a peach. Lissen, boys, 20 guys made parachute jumps all at the same time from the same machine down at Roosevelt field in New York Sunday. Get the idea? Well, that was the biggest number that ever made a simultaneous jump. You can show that last year, 1929, only sixteen jumped from a plane all at once. That's a clean gain of 25% for 1930. BOOM! BOOM!

AND THEN THERE'S MALTED MILK! OH, HORROR!

Mrs. Archie Roosevelt says, in explaining why she is working for the repeal of the sacred 18th amendment, that it is because it's making all of us drink conscious. Isn't it just! In the old days of the saloon alcohol and its products was just one of those things nice people didn't think about. But now it's the main subject of thought and conversation. Why, after the government started raiding stores that sold bottles, caps, malt, and hops we even dreaded to buy a loaf of bread for fear some one would call us scofflaw. For, isn't bread mixed with the demon yeast and isn't it fermented? Certainly! And we saw a baby in Lincoln park in his hand-pushed carriage and the sly little rascal had a bottle! Yessir, maybe milk was in that bottle, but if bottles are contraband what right did that baby have with one? We hurried away before we should see the baby buggy raided by a dry enforcement officer.

COL. JIM HAM LEWIS has just been fined ten smackers for speeding out in California. That's the great trouble of having whiskers; when the wind blows through them, as it will at any kind of speed, it starts the darned things flying backward, and motor cops think the bird with the whiskers is going fifty miles a minute.

THE PAPERS yesterday afternoon headlined Secretary of Commerce Lamont as saying that business would return to normal in three months. Now, say what you will, that's news; for a long, long time now the custom has been for Washington prophets to say business would return to normal in sixty days. However, three months it is—that'll be August 19th. And probably at 12 o'clock noon, or 12:30. Mr. Lamont didn't say.

MAY.

Green and gay
Is the world today.
Green are the meadows—
The wide skies gray.
Silver rain
Streams on the pane—
And silvery tree-tops
Swirl in the rain.

OUR CIVIC PRIDE absolutely refuses to be daunted. In spite of the jibes about our Chicago hoss, Dick O'Hara, that ran (in a manner of speaking) at the Kentucky Derby Saturday, we refuse to lose hope, faith, and pride. We deny that Dick O'Hara finished last. Not yet. He may, but we will not concede it until he has. It is only Tuesday now, and not until Wednesday or Thursday, or whenever it is that Dick O'Hara comes under the wire will we admit he finished last. Civic Pride is our middle name. Come on, you Dick O'Hara!

A BISHOP of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, was scheduled to speak at the conference in Dallas last night on "Prohibition After Ten Years." We don't know what the bishop will say, but the subject could readily be handled in seven words, "And look at the damn thing now."

MENTALITY OF PRESIDENTS.

DR. K. A. MENNINGER thinks that at least five former presidents of the United States, to wit, Woodrow Wilson, Abraham Lincoln, Andrew Jackson, George Washington, and Theodore Roosevelt, had abnormal personalities. Woodrow Wilson he regards as a schizoid. We quote from "The Human Mind":

"He was a classical example of a well established personality type. It is a type characterised by queerness, and there is nothing else like it in the world. Some people succeed because they are queer and others fail for the same reason. If they have a schizoid personality the odds are against them. Their success is also tinged."

Dr. Menninger says of President Wilson: "He had an intelligence superior to that of any other President."

Abraham Lincoln had a cycloid personality. He says: "Fortunately for the world, Abraham Lincoln, characteristically a moody personality type, was preserved from a wretched failure by the intelligence and decisiveness of his friends. Judge Stuart considered him as a hopeless victim of melancholy; his future wife's relatives frankly considered him insane. He called his affliction hypochondriasis, but it was assuredly more than that. It was typical melancholia."

The depression that overtook Lincoln and King Saul and others—great and near great—are definitely recognized illnesses of a familiar type.

To the other three former Presidents Menninger makes only brief references. George Washington he pronounces a schizoid. He classes him with a certain querulous congressman whom I am afraid to name. This should call for a joint committee of investigation comprising the best sleuthing brains of both houses.

Of Andrew Jackson he said: "Among perverse personalities who appear to have achieved a kind of success notwithstanding their anti-social peculiarities were: Andrew Jackson, Voltaire, Ben Jonson, Richard Wagner, and Wallenstein."

It is well that Dr. Menninger waited until Andrew Jackson had been dead more than eighty years before making this statement. The references to Roosevelt are briefer and less definite. Lest some one should think he was picking on Presidents, Dr. Menninger compares surgeons with butchers, giving them a savage personality rating, and the detached objective attitude of scientists he says is possible because they are schisoids.

TELEPHONES AND DISEASE.

M. S. writes: How would you explain the reason so many people dread the use of the telephone, a thing from their standpoint rather uncomplimentary to that great, modern, everyday life necessity? You will agree with me that such unfortunates shun the phone almost no less than smallpox and they might prefer a five mile walk to a five minute telephone message.

REPLY:

Repeated experiments have shown that communicable diseases are not spread by telephones. This is true of public telephones. The conclusion applies to telephones in sick rooms used by convalescents. If there are people who avoid telephones it may be because they are afflicted with morbid fears or because they object to the tobacco odor and other odors that cling to some public phones.

COLLEGE BRED ITCH.

R. C. writes: In the winter of 1919, while attending college, I contracted a very annoying itch. Blisters ranging in size from a pinhead to a dime appeared on practically all parts of my body, except head, neck, and face. After three or four months the trouble was apparently gone, but ever since I have found, from time to time, small, almost unnoticeable blisters on my hands and arms. They contain water, but they do not itch. Can this be the same trouble after all these years, or is it something else?

REPLY:

My guess is that the eruption is caused by something to which your skin was exposed in 1919. Since then the exposures are infrequent and mild, or possibly your skin is less sensitive now.

DANGER IS NOT GREAT.

A reader writes: My husband's brother is convalescing from tuberculosis. He visits our home quite frequently and plays with the children. He does not cough and has a negative sputum. Is there any danger?

REPLY.

If he has no cough, no sputum, and no fever, he does not endanger the children.

64TH STREET HOLE.

Chicago, May 11.—[Friend of the People.]—Last September the Chicago water repair department had to break up the paved street in front of my house in the 3700 block West 64th street, on account of a broken pipe. They left a hole 5x10 feet which is very dangerous, especially at night. Every passing car hits it and my house just shakes. I would like to know when this can be repaired? J. W.

You have repair order No. 87845. You will please make permanent repair to this cut at once, as it is in bad condition at the present time.

S. J. FISHER,
Chief Street Inspector.

SIDEWALK REPAIR.

Chicago, May 9.—[Friend of the People.]—There is a bulge in the concrete sidewalk at the northwest corner of Parkside and Le Moyne avenues which causes scuffed toes, skinned shins and bumped knees. Can you have it taken care of it? It will be a great favor. J. L.

Necessary repairs will be made to the intersection, northwest corner of Parkside and Le Moyne avenues, when our concrete repair forces are operating in the 37th ward in this vicinity. JOSEPH J. BUTLER,

65 YEARS AGO TODAY

THE NEWS.—The trial of the assassins is rapidly drawing to a close. Several witnesses were examined yesterday, including William Wells, the colored servant; George Robinson, the invalid soldier nurse, and Maj. Seward, all of whom were present at the time of the assault upon Secretary Seward. They were confronted with Payne and completely identified him as the man who made the assault. The case will probably be closed next week.

NEW YORK.—The Tribune's Washington correspondent has seen the forthcoming report of the committee on the conduct of the war and says the testimony on the Red river campaign is of a character most damaging to any military pretensions of Gen. Banks. Gen. Butler, in the Fort Fisher affair, is substantially vindicated. Gen. Burnside is exonerated in the Petersburg mine failure, which is attributed to the lack of confidence on the part of Gen. Meade. The failure to capture Lee's army after the battle of Gettysburg by Gen. Meade is attributed to the same weakness.

WASHINGTON.—Gen. Sherman arrived here. He is preparing a statement in reply to Mr. Stanton's bulletin in reference to his alleged treaty with Gen. Johnston which his friends are confident will completely exonerate him from all blame in the transaction.

NASHVILLE.—Up to 11 o'clock tonight we have no intelligence of the whereabouts of Jeff Davis. We have reason to believe he was brought up to Atlanta and then, in consequence of some change of program, was taken back to Macon and thence to Augusta.

CHICAGO.—The lock of the Libby prison, the petticoats and skirts which Jeff Davis was wearing when arrested, and a complete set of the arms used in this war are to be forwarded from Washington to the sanitary fair in this city.

LONDON.—It is reported that the Pretoria government has decided to sue through Lord Roberts for peace. According to the report, which is brought from Lourenço Marques, the decision of the Boers to ask for terms was reached on May 13. The message to Roberts, it is stated, asks a cessation of hostilities, demands a guarantee that the lives of all colonials fighting with the Boers shall be spared, and states that unless these terms are granted the mines will be blown up and Johannesburg destroyed. It is officially announced at Pretoria that the Transvaal government has suggested to Lord Roberts a mutual exchange of prisoners.

LONDON.—The whole British empire has been carried off its feet by the news of the relief of Mafeking. Even the demonstrations on Ladysmith day pale before the spontaneous transports of delirium recorded in cablegrams from all parts of the world where floats the union jack. In London from dawn yesterday frenzied crowds thronged the streets until they were impassable and vehicular traffic had to be stopped. Silk hats were equally with the workingmen's caps enveloped in the nation's colors.

CHICAGO.—Miss Jane Addams of Hull house has accepted an appointment as a member of the jury of awards for the Paris exposition and will leave tomorrow for New York, whence she will sail on May 23 for Paris.

CHICAGO.—The testimony of Michael J. Synon's 10 year old son has brought the white haired old man to the gallows for wife murder. It was on Feb. 26 last that Synon beat his wife, Agnes, to death in their home at 240 Green street, and yesterday in Judge Baker's court he was sentenced to hang.

SAN FRANCISCO.—Chinatown is in a state of siege, with the board of health as the investing force, as a result of the discovery of the plague in the quarter, and the Chinese have withdrawn behind their defenses of barred doors, barricaded windows, and sullen silence. Federal troops are guarding exits from the city to prevent Chinese or Japanese from leaving.

MATEWAN, W. VA.—Twelve men were killed and three badly injured in a battle between police and the citizens on one side and private detectives employed by the Stone Mountain Coal company on the other. Among the killed was Mayor Cabell Testerman. Conflicting stories concerning the cause of the shooting were told. Police declared that the detectives came from Williamson to evict from company houses miners who had been dismissed by the company for joining a union. One hundred deputy sheriffs, armed with rifles, are on their way here from Williamson to maintain order until the arrival of Col. Arnold and the West Virginia state constabulary.

CHICAGO.—Mrs. Edith Rosenwald Sulzberger, daughter of Julius Rosenwald, brought suit for divorce in New York against Germon F. Sulzberger, formerly of Chicago. They were married in 1913.

A HARBOR FOR CHICAGO.

Chicago, May 16.—In THE TRIBUNE of yesterday an interesting editorial regarding small harbors appeared. As a member of the Chicago Yacht club of long standing this interests me very much and I believe the suggestion made in your editorial column is a good one.

However, there is a matter of greater import. THE TRIBUNE prints a platform at the head of its editorial column in which several worthy suggestions are made, but the outstanding need of Chicago is completely ignored. Those lines should include, "Build a modern commercial harbor." In these days Chicago no longer has a modern commercial harbor, THE TRIBUNE itself is active in advocating closed bridges on the Chicago river. In this THE TRIBUNE is, in a sense, right. The function of the Chicago river has ceased to be that of a harbor. As a lighterage channel and as an artery for transportation in distributing freight and passengers in a small way it may still have some advantages, but the largest boats on the lake cannot make the Chicago river a harbor; at least, not the upper reaches of it. The same is true to a less degree of the Calumet, except a half a mile or thereabouts of the mouth of the river. The steel companies across the Indiana line have solved the harbor question by building their harbor at the edge of the lake; slips into which large boats can come on their own power with very little expense for towage. To take even a moderate sized steamer up the Chicago river to one of the elevators that is well inland requires a tow bill of probably $250 to $500, and then the steamer, as compared with some of the big Canadian boats, is merely a pocket edition.

According to report, the Canadians will open the new Welland canal this summer. This new Welland canal, as I understand it, will have a 24 foot channel. The locks will be as big as those at Sault Ste. Marie and there will be 30 feet of water over the sills. The Canadians have modern harbors and 10,000 to 16,000 ton boats to carry grain from Fort William and Port Arthur at considerably less cost than grain can be shipped in small boats out of the Chicago harbors, and from, in many cases, obsolete and disappearing elevators.

Chicago has the best location for the concentration and distribution of grain of any city in the United States. The grain and packing industries laid the foundations for the greatness of the city of Chicago, but these two industries in a sense are forgotten, or apparently it is thought that they have outgrown their swaddling clothes and need no help. The grain trade of Chicago needs a modern harbor and so does every other industry. The place for such a harbor is, taking a leaf from the book of the steel companies, at the water's edge of Lake Michigan, on piers similar to the so-called Navy or Municipal pier. This in itself is a white elephant; just a playground and a plaything, but Lake Michigan is not merely a plaything for the benefit of the yachtsman. It is a real connection to the world's trade that will in the course of time be developed. The Chicago district should include all of the switching district up to Gary as it now stands, or even beyond, and that should be Chicago's harbor district. An imaginary state line should not restrict the growth of Chicago industry. Advocate a harbor. Advocate a real harbor. The opportunity for it exists where, in my duck shooting days, Wolf lake channel emptied into Lake Michigan. Wolf lake is little more than a swamp. Partly filled up, it would offer an ideal switch yard for a harbor. Trunk line railroads parallel the lake shore. Switching roads connect there. The situation is ideal. Why not capitalise this and boost Chicago and boost the most promising and best industry that can be had for patronage of a harbor—the grain industry?

I might go on to say that Chicago is ideally located as a milling center. There is a wonderful chance. Why not start your platform with, "Build a modern commercial harbor"?

JAMES E. BENNETT.

DEFEAT AT LONDON.

South Milwaukee, Wis., May 14.—Please allow me in this small way to compliment you on your attitude in regard to the London naval treaty as it affects the United States.

As a loyal and patriotic American, this treaty looks to me like a second Washington conference, in truth a complete subordination of our rights to Britain and Japan. This act may lead the generations to come of young Americans to accuse us, and rightfully so, of high treason. [I experienced enough of our unpreparedness in the last war.]

Mr. Editor, isn't it a fact that at the Washington conference we allowed Japan to finish the battle cruiser Mutsu, and Britain to build or finish the two most powerful ships in the world, the Rodney and Nelson? Have we any ships to compare with these? Now isn't it also true that in 1931 we were to build one or two capital ships as replacements? These ships, no doubt, would have been superior to those above mentioned. While not knowing all the facts in the case, I feel that this conference has robbed us of this right and still holds us in an inferior position.

In the reports of MacDonald's conversations with President Hoover we were given to understand that the question of British naval bases close to continental United States would be dealt with and amicably settled. I assume that this was salve, as this matter certainly was not forced by our delegates nor even brought up, as far as I can learn.

The lessons of two outstanding naval engagements of the last war absolutely demonstrate the relative value of six inch and eight inch gun cruisers. Off Coronel a small British squadron met the Germans, who were heavier gunned. The British were completely overwhelmed, the German heavy cruiser Scharnhorst inflicting severe damage in particular. Then just a few months later the British, who had sent out about four battle cruisers of the Indefatigable type, trapped the Germans off the Falkland Islands and victory perched on the heavier guns and the Germans were totally destroyed, Admiral von Spee going down with his flagship.

WHERE THE MONEY WENT.

Chicago, May 15.—Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick frankly admits that she spent $250,000 of her own money in the race to defeat Senator Deneen. Her books are wide open to the Nye committee, and when they examine the books they will find that a quarter of a million dollars was spent with Illinois printers, printing paper merchants, envelope manufacturers, mailing firms, and addressing houses—all industries which at this particular time need the business.

I venture to suggest to the Nye committee that its members line up the federal pay rollers of the state, the great majority of whom are on the rolls through the grace of Senator Deneen, and ask for a time accounting for the last four years. Then charge up the time these appointees took from their government work and devoted to the solidifying of the Deneen machine—and the committee will find that the United States government paid many thousands of dollars for the Deneen campaign. For months before the campaign ended federal officials in the state and Deneen appointees in Cook county devoted practically all their time to the senator's campaign, and built up a machine which even Mrs. McCormick's most enthusiastic supporters believed would be very hard to defeat.

"L-M-C" leads the way

A Personal Message to Parents and Public Minded People Generally

THERE is, perhaps, nothing in life so warmly appealing as the laughing, care-free, impulsiveness of childhood.

Yet now—with every street and highway a swarming, swiftly moving mass of cars—there has come a new and very acute worry to those who are charged with the responsibility of young children.

To the anxious parent—stark disaster stalks over every curb—and it is indeed true, unless the interest and intelligence of the child is enlisted for his own safety.

To help parents to instill safety in the minds of young children—we have developed a new and different kind of a booklet—a booklet that will definitely implant twelve important safety lessons in any child's mind.

Each lesson is illustrated with an attractively colored picture. The words are in simple rhyme to be spoken or sung. On the opposite page the illustration is reproduced twice in outline, so that it can be colored by the child with crayon or paints.

There are twelve pictures—twelve rhymes—twenty-four outline drawings to color. Children find these lessons fun, and their simple, plain teaching gives a child that common-sense caution that every parent so wants the child to have.

As one of the outstanding carriers of automobile insurance in the country, "L-M-C" has for many years been a leader in safety and accident prevention work. At our annual meeting which is being held in Chicago today, safety considerations will be a subject of keenest interest to our directors representing over 200,000 policyholders.

Our new booklet "L-M-C" Children's Safety Lessons has been acclaimed by leading educators as a most important contribution to child safety. On purely humanitarian grounds we would like to see this booklet in every home where there are children.

Message About Child Is Puzzle to Police.

Judge Samuel Heller, in the Stockyards court, at the request of Mrs. Kathryn Moroney of 5200 South Wentworth avenue, issued a warrant yesterday charging Mrs. Julia Otis, "alias Mary Doe," with the kidnaping of Mrs. Moroney's 2 year old daughter, Mary. Bonds were set at $15,000. The warrant was sworn out by Mrs. Moroney shortly after she received a second message concerning the child, who was taken from her home last Thursday. It assured the parents the child would not be harmed.

Written in pencil on yellow typewriting paper, the second message was signed, Mrs. Alice Henderson," but contained no other clew as to the sender. It was posted at the main postoffice, and apparently was the work of at least two persons, as the address on the envelope was in a different handwriting from the inclosure. The same hand addressed the envelopes of both the first and second letters, misspelling the street name in both instances. The first message, received last Friday, was from "Julia Otis," stating that she was taking the child to California.

New Message to Mother.

"My dear Mrs. Moroney," yesterday's message read, "I want to explain to you why my cousin had taken your child. Last year she lost her baby girl, the year before she lost her husband, and ever since she has been a nervous wreck. For some time she has been connected with a social welfare bureau which name I cannot tell you just now, and through them she knew of you, and your need for aid. She did not, however, go to your home to take your baby away, but for the purpose of helping you, and perhaps she took a great fancy to your child and took her for company on her trip to California, which her doctor prescribed for her nervous breakdown.

"I ask you not be alarmed, for she will bring her back to you safe and sound as ever. In fact, I ask you to forgive her, because I know she has meant no harm. She had pined for the company of a child, due to the fact of losing her own, that is why she took your girl with her on her trip.

"She has left word with me to send you help while she is away, which I will. Again I ask you to please forgive her and not to worry. Respectfully, Mrs. Alice Henderson."

Letter Puzzles Police.

The police looked upon the missive with uncertainty, feeling that the chances were even as to whether it was a sincere statement of fact or merely a blind sent at the direction of the kidnaper to divert the search for the child. If "Mrs. Henderson" had knowledge of the intention of Mrs. Otis to steal Mary Agnes, they pointed out, she is thereby made an accessory to the crime, which is punishable by a life sentence.

FROM OSH, RUSSIA

Osh is a Russian city in the government of Ferghana, situated 31 miles southeast of the Andijan railway terminal at an altitude of 4,030 feet. It consists of two parts, native and Russian. A good road up to the Pamir mountain range, practicable for artillery, begins here.

"The writer of this letter, my father," Miss Baze writes, "has lived in this part of Asia—namely: the city of Osh—for just about three weeks, having previously resided in the southern part of Russia, eight hundred miles south of Moscow.

"Some of the different nationalities represented in this section of central Asia are the Georgians, Persians, Turks, Russian Jews, and Armenians.

"Due to the sub-tropical climate in these parts [such as we have in California], many fruits and vegetables are raised. The fruits are used for wine making. There are several large tobacco factories and the territory also is known for its mineral products and oil fields.

"The inhabitants also engage in such diversified occupations as sheep herding and raising, and corn raising up on the mountains. They are weavers of fine fabrics and silks, and the Persians and Turks in particular are famous as makers of hand made oriental rugs, which they themselves sell."

Pilot H. Powell and his wife and J. B. Snyder of Chicago were forced down by lowering clouds at Sterling, Ill., yesterday. The plane was on its way from Des Moines to Chicago. Pilot Powell overshot the Sterling airport, landed in a plowed field and turned the ship up on its nose, bending the propellor. It was repaired at a local garage and the party took off later en route to Chicago.

DURING the night, germs have the best opportunity to attack your teeth by generating acids which collect in remote crevices and destroy the enamel. It is important that you carefully brush both teeth and gums before retiring.

Use Squibb's Dental Cream thoroughly every night and notice the difference. It contains 50% Squibb's Milk of Magnesia, a wonderful antacid. It penetrates crevices and renders the germ acids harmless — helps safeguard your teeth. Squibb's soothes tender gums. Keeps your mouth fresh and pleasant-feeling. If you've never tried Squibb's you don't know what a difference there can be in dentifrices. Get the large, economical tube at any reliable druggist's.

Washington, D. C., May 19.—[Special.]—President Hoover left Washington at 11 o'clock tonight for Hampton Roads, Va., to review the fighting ships of the United States fleet at noon tomorrow off the Virginia capes. Fifty-three war ships, manned by 24,500 officers and men, will pass in review during the naval exercises and later stage a sham battle for the benefit of the presidential party.

The maneuvers will be held on the southern drill grounds off the Virginia capes. The White House party, including Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams, Assistant Secretary of the Navy Ernest Lee Jahncke, and Admiral Charles F. Hughes, chief of naval operations and former commander-in-chief of the United States fleet, will arrive at Old Point early tomorrow and at once board the Salt Lake City, the first 8-inch gun Washington treaty cruiser completed by the United States.

Submarines Come First.

The review is scheduled to get under way at 11 o'clock when the navy's best submarines, the V-2 and V-3 steam past the reviewing ship. The underwater boats will be followed at once by the only three cruiser divisions now operating with the United States navy.

After the cruisers come the battleship divisions and the aircraft carriers, Lexington and Saratoga. Ten of the eighteen battleships now in commission will be in the review.

Major Naval Engagement.

Following the review the light cruiser division, aided by destroyers, will attack the battleships in sham battle. During this part of the exercises the airplane squadrons from the carriers will simulate the air operations of a major naval engagement.

An attempt will be made to send a message by airplane from the Saratoga to the navy's big dirigible, the Los Angeles. A plane is scheduled to hook onto the airship and later return to the carrier.

Fail to Identify Suspect in Murder of Salesman

Witnesses in the investigation of the murder of Edward Wolf, south side automobile salesman, yesterday failed to identify Lambert Webster as the mysterious "Mr. Webber" who left the McFadden Motor Sales Agency at 10858 Michigan avenue with Wolf a short time before he was found shot to death. Webster was returned to the Warren avenue police station to face charges of disorderly conduct for which he was originally arrested.

JAIL 5 NEGROES FOR ROBBERY.

Harrisburg, Ill., May 19.—(AP)—Five Negroes were placed in jail here today following a $7,000 filling station fire Saturday night. The Negroes were accused of accidentally setting fire to the filling station while stealing gasoline.

POPULATION OF WASHINGTON, D. C., IS ONLY 485,716

City Is Disappointed; May Seek Recount.

Washington, D. C., May 19.—(AP)—Suggestions for a recount of the capital's population today followed the announcement by the census bureau that the 1930 total was 485,716, a gain of only 11 per cent over the 437,571 count ten years ago.

Compilers of the city directory recently estimated the population of the District of Columbia at 501,616.

Some residents have complained they were not enumerated and Dr. George C. Havenner of the Federation of Citizens association, suggested that the police make another tabulation the first of next year.

J. Sterling Moran, supervisor, said the comparatively small increase was probably due to the fact that many persons who had their business in Washington lived in nearby Maryland or Virginia.

ASSOCIATED PRESS FIGURES.

WAUKEGAN GAINS 73 PER CENT IN LAST TEN YEARS

Lake County City Thrives with Industry.

Expanding industry and annexation of territory has brought an increase of more than 14,000 in the population of Waukegan during the last ten years according to census figures released yesterday by Mrs. Martin K. Northam, census supervisor for the third Illinois district.

Waukegan's present population is 23,434 as compared with 19,226 in 1920, a gain of more than 73 per cent. Despite the large increase shown Waukegan city officials were disappointed on the city's population figure, although they were unable to give a reason for a possible discrepency.

North Chicago Grows.

North Chicago, adjoining Waukegan to the south was shown to have a population of 6,666 by Mrs. Northam's figures. The population in 1920 was 5,839. Waukegan township outside of the city limits showed a population of 1,167.

Waukegan's industrial activity has increased greatly in the last ten years. Of the 65 industries located there at present, 40 were said to be new since the last census.

Territory Annexed.

Considerable territory has also been annexed in that time. Westward the city has grown almost to Green Bay road and northward nearly a mile and a half has been brought into the city limits. Most of this new territory has been added within the last four years and in that time there has been extensive building activity in the new regions. Indicative of the rapid growth of the city are two new hotels which have been erected in the last five years.

The gain of 73.5 per cent in the population has sent the Lake county metropolis out ahead of Bloomington, Freeport, and Galesburg and made the city a close rival to Elgin whose reported population is 25,504.

Plan Your Holiday Trip Now

Thousands of motorists now are making plans for Memorial Day. Friday, Saturday and Sunday of that week will be holidays for most motorists and they are going to be somewhere on the road. Some are going back to little towns to visit their old homes; others will spend the week end with friends; possibly you have planned a trip to some lake.

Accident prevention work, which seeks to cut accidents, especially among school children, by means of safety posters and by fostering school boy patrols.

Home district service, which attends to special conditions around your home, such as seeing to it that refuse is promptly removed.

Insurance service, which provides the following features: The valued form policy, which in the event of total loss, pays the face value of the policy. Accessories are covered without additional charge. Last year the "exchange" returned cash savings to subscribers amounting to $711,332.11. Automobile insurance sales amounted to $3,894,706.04, more than the total sales in Illinois of the three next largest insurers.

—AND THAT COMPLETELY DESCRIBES THE SMOOTHNESS AND COMFORT OF THE NEW AIRPLANE-POWERED FRANKLIN . . . . . .

Her first ride in the new Franklin. Several miles had quickly passed when she suddenly exclaimed—"It's just like floating, isn't it?"

He smiled. "Without looking at the speedometer can you tell how fast we're going?"

"About 40—I've driven cars long enough to be able to judge that."

Easy riding comfort, supreme smoothness, eager power and active acceleration are everyday experiences of Franklin Owners. Experiences unmatched by any other car, for Franklin's air-cooled, airplane-type engine—which has FLOWN AN AIRPLANE and is the most powerful type engine built—performs so remarkably that it has achieved a new, higher standard in motor car travel.

She said, "Like floating." Aviators call it the "airplane feel." Try it.

DOES IT PAY to Pray?

SHORTLY before his death, Dr. Charles Steinmetz, the electrical wizard, predicted that the great advances in the next fifty years would occur in the realm of the spiritual. Today an experiment is going on that promises to fulfill his prediction.

For, at the Divinity School of the University of Chicago, representatives of thirty leading churches are putting religion to the first test by the scientific method that has ever been made in the history of the world.

As Dean Mathews of the Divinity School explains:

"We take nothing for granted. Not even God!"

Then, it immediately occurs to the layman, does it pay to pray?

Listen in on this dialogue between Dr. Mathews and a representative of The American Magazine.

"Could a man make more money if now and then he prayed about his business?"

"I think so—if he is honest and serious."

"Could he get a better job?"

"I haven't much doubt of it."

"Certainly."

"Get just about anything?"

"Everything he might want intelligently and morally."

"Then God, you'd say, is still on the job here and now?"

"I think it's probable that he hasn't quit."

"In our religious laboratory" . . . and here Dr. Mathews shows you just how his experiment is progressing. He tells you what prayer is—when it is most likely to "work"—and gives some remarkable instances when it did. He demonstrates the effect of prayer and religion on personality—and explains just why he can answer the above questions on prayer as he did.

GRANTLAND RICE and ALEX MORRISON (above)—every golfer knows them—have hit on a scheme to end the horrible golf they've seen going on all over America.

Albert Einstein... The World's Greatest Thinker

ALBERT (Relativity) EINSTEIN is a famous fiddler—but that's only something on the side. An American Magazine reporter traveled 4,000 miles to get the first intimate close-up of the world's greatest thinker ever written. How Einstein studies, plays, works—why he had to invent an entire new system of geometry and how his wife gets him to come to dinner. You'll be fascinated to see how this little great man struggled with problems that no one else in the whole world could help him on—and won.

BORGLUM RUINED COOLIDGE TEXT, WRITER CHARGES

500 Word History War Flames Afresh.

New York, May 19.—(AP)—Former President Calvin Coolidge's disinclination to be criticised for the acts of another brought out the recently published fact that his 500 word history of the United States had been altered by Gutzon Borglum, sculptor who is to cut the history into the granite of Mount Rushmore, South Dakota.

Mr. Borglum, who is chairman of the committee on publicity and design of the mountain memorial, as well as its sculptor and engineer, himself invited Mr. Coolidge to write the tabloid history. Some time ago what was said to be the text of the first chapter as Mr. Coolidge wrote it [but was not] was made public. There was no comment at the time, either by Borglum or by Coolidge.

Outsider Takes Hand.

John Corbin, veteran newspaper man and author of a study of Washington, wrote a letter to the New York Times challenging the accuracy of several parts of what he supposed was Coolidge's text.

Borglum took no immediate action, the Corbin letter presumably not having come to his attention, but Mr. Coolidge wrote Corbin that the text as criticized in the Times letter was not his, his original having been altered "without any consent" on his part. A few days later he wrote suggesting that Corbin write another letter to the Times setting forth that the passages criticized in the first letter were not from the Coolidge pen. This Corbin did.

Reply from Borglum.

Borglum did not take the matter up directly with Corbin, but he gave a statement to the Times explaining the changes he had made in the text in detail. He also wrote to the Times that Corbin's statement as to the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution was "completely at variance not only with the spirit, the very soul," of those documents, "but also with the letter."

In reply to this, Corbin asserted that by the alterations he made Mr. Borglum "abrogates the supreme law of the land" and that the revised text "reads out of the Constitution its very soul and spirit."

MAKE TAG DAYS FIT CITY CODE, ALD. CLARK ASKS

A restriction of the number of tag days to the occasions and charities mentioned in the city code was urged yesterday in the council meeting by Ald. John S. Clark [30th], chairman of the finance committee, after he had been informed that the council had passed an order for another tag day introduced by Ald. Frank E. Konkowski [31st]. The order directed Commissioner of Police Russell to permit the George Washington post of the American Veterans of Polish Extraction to sell tags on Sept. 14 in the vicinity of Polish churches and in Polish communities.

"There are too many tag days," said Ald. Clark. "The city code specifies what tag days can be held legally. When an order like this one is passed a dozen requests come into the council for similar favors."

Tag days are limited by ordinance to the Federated, Adults' and Children's charities, and to two Poppy days for war veterans. Requests for tag days are passed on by a council subcommittee headed by Ald. Sheldon Govier [9th]. The request of the Polish veterans had been turned down by the subcommittee before Konkowski obtained passage of the order.

Century Old Music Box Is Radio Feature

BY ELMER DOUGLASS.

The merry little twinklings from a hundred year old French music box, WLS, 8 o'clock, made one of the outstanding features of last night's radio program. Its repertory consisted of ten pieces. The running down of the music box spring was an unintended comedy element.

Ossip Gabrilowitsch, pianist, Detroit Symphony orchestra conductor, made his first appearance as a radio soloist on the Family Party concert from New York through W-G-N, 8:30 to 9. The D flat nocturne and D flat waltz of Chopin, Gavotte in A major (Gluck-Brahms), Moment Musical (Schubert)—this number being given a strange and unusual reading—and the brilliant Rhapsody in E flat by Brahms made up an enjoyable program. Mr. Gabrilowitsch in a short address stated that he believed the piano is coming into its own in radio.

Miss Florence Trumbull, pianist, and the W-G-N Symphony orchestra, Gaston du Moulin conducting, played the Grieg piano concerto in its entirety, W-G-N, 9:30 to 10. It was a magnificent performance of one of the world's favorites in concerto literature.

CLAIMS PLANTER COURTED DUSKY WIFE 40 YEARS

The marriage of James Banks, a southern planter, to Dolly S. Gardner, a mulatto and former cook in the Banks' household at Atlanta, was the climax of a courtship of more than 40 years, Attorney Wendell Green, colored, representing Mrs. Banks, declared yesterday in Superior Judge Joseph Sabath's court. Mrs. Banks is fighting the suit brought by a Chicago friend of her husband to have the marriage annulled.

Mrs. Banks was only 14 years old when she and the son of her employer met for the first time, her attorney declared. The affair continued for years and Banks professed his love, Green said, but the laws of Georgia forbid inter-racial marriages. They came to Chicago three years ago and were married, so that she might have the protection of Banks' name and money, the attorney asserted.

Judge Sabath instructed Green to omit the conclusion in his answer to the suit that Banks was sane at the time of the marriage and to file an amended bill. Green had contended that because a jury in Probate court had found Banks insane on April 3, 1929, and for a period of six months prior to that date, Banks must have been sane when married.

The suit for annulment was brought by Joseph M. Lillie, a Chicago business man and friend of the Banks family. Banks is now 79 and his wife 58 years old. They are living at 4814 South Park way.

NEW YORK GANG VENDETTA COST 3 LIVES IN DAY

New York, May 19.—[Special.]—Three men were found murdered in Brooklyn early today, two in a Green Point factory district and one in Bensonhurst, which with the killing of Paul Gallo on Sunday in the Sheepshead bay district, makes four deaths in the latest gang war skirmish.

Detectives agree that all are gang executions.

Jack Valenti, 25, Brooklyn, was the first victim, discovered in a vacant lot on Bay 47th street and Cropsey avenue. He had been "put on the spot" at the place where he was found, because the empty jackets of four automatic pistol shells, which ripped holes in his face and head, were found near the body.

He wore mourning for a relative who had been killed recently in a gang vendetta. Detectives believe that Valenti sought to avenge this killing but "talked out of turn" before he could accomplish his mission.

Two other men who had been literally "taken for a ride" were found almost in the shadow of a police box in Green Point. A patrolman discovered their bodies piled one on the other. The men were Anthony Calderone, 26, and Salvatore Tavelino, 29. Tavelino carried only a worn dime, a luck piece.

CITY DEATH RATE FOR BABIES LESS THAN ILL. RATIO

The infant mortality rate in Chicago is lower than the rate for the whole state, according to figures released yesterday by Dr. Andy Hall, state director of health. In Chicago the rate is 60.3 per 1,000, while the state rate is 61.5, both of which are reductions over a year ago. The rate for eight of the towns in Cook county were given as follows:

Evanston	49.4	Maywood	70.8
Berwyn	48.7	Cicero	81.6
Blue Island	64.8	Forest Park	83.3

"The falling infant death rate," said Dr. Hall, "is a triumph for the motherhood of today who recognize and take advantage of health promotional services now available for the first time in the civilized world. Nearly one-half of all births in Illinois occur in hospitals. A large percentage of infants are taken regularly to physicians, and welfare stations during the first few months of life. There is no reason why an extension of child hygiene work should not be followed by a continued decline in the rate."

Mother Shot When She Takes Pistol from Baby

Mrs. Margret Mitchell, 27 years old, was shot and perhaps fatally wounded yesterday in her home at 7736 Oglesby avenue when she took a pistol from the hands of her 13 month old daughter, Joan. The child had found the weapon on the floor under a bed. Mrs. Mitchell was taken to the South Shore hospital. The pistol belonged to Mrs. Mitchell's father, Thomas J. Conley, a retired policeman, with whom she lived. Mr. and Mrs. Conley were in the basement when the accident occurred.

Charles Heiden, Retired Policeman, Is Dead at 75

Charles Heiden, 75 years old, a retired policeman and a Chicago resident for 67 years, died yesterday in St. Mary's hospital after a week's illness. His widow, five sons and daughters, six grandchildren and one great grandchild survive. He resided at 2323 North Monticello avenue. The funeral will take place at 2 p. m. tomorrow at a chapel at 3655 Fullerton avenue.

JOSEPH E. PFLUEGER, 65, noted sportsman and manufacturer of fishing tackle, died at Akron, O., last night after several months' illness.

GORDON RAMSAY IS DEFENDANT IN $150,000 SUIT

Gordon A. Ramsay, former public administrator of Cook county during the administration of Gov. Lowden, was revealed yesterday as the defendant in a $150,000 damage suit for alleged breach of contract. The suit, now being tried before a jury in Superior Judge Martin J. Isaacs' court, was brought by Charles R. Sercomb, an attorney, who charges violation of an agreement made in 1920 while Ramsay was administrator.

Through his attorney, Charles J. Trainor, Sercomb says it was agreed that he would act as attorney for Ramsay in closing estates and that he would be paid the fees set by the Probate court in each case. Sercomb alleges that between June, 1920, and August, 1928, he acted in 3,500 cases, 3,200 of which he closed. The total in fees, as set by the court, amounted to $127,046, it is charged. The suit alleges that Ramsay obtained the vouchers for the fees, which he kept instead of turning them over to Sercomb.

Ramsay, who was removed by Gov. Small on Feb. 23, 1921, took the stand yesterday and made a blanket denial of the charges. He disclaimed knowledge of the alleged contract and declared the only reimbursement Sercomb was guaranteed was a monthly salary of $190, which was paid. Ramsay is represented by the law firm of Tolman, Sexton & Chandler.

Brode B. Davis, a law partner of Sercomb, testified he understood that Ramsay had promised to pay Sercomb the fees set by the court.

The case is expected to go to the jury this afternoon.

GARAGE WORKER FEARED DYING OF HAMMER BLOWS

Edward Wagner, 35 years old, 4851 North Damen avenue, was believed near death in the Ravenswood hospital last night as the result of skull fractures inflicted by a hammer. He was found unconscious early yesterday morning in a garage at Lawrence and Damen avenues where he was an attendant.

On request of Chicago police, Arthur Maddox, 1509 Second street, Peoria, was arrested and questioned with his wife, Erma. Both Maddox and his wife offered an alibi and were later released.

A letter found in the beaten man's pockets was addressed to Maddox. The letter indicated that Wagner had been friendly with Mrs. Maddox and had aroused the enmity of her husband.

Wagner was delirious at the hospital and could not be questioned.

AUTO OVERTURNS; TWO HURT.

Vandalia, Ill., May 19.—(AP)—Two youths, Harold Satt, 17, and Fred Niccum, 20, both of Brownstown, were injured late last night when the automobile in which they were riding turned over one mile west of that city.

YERKES WIDOW IS OVERCOME BY GAS; IS REVIVED

Overcome by gas, which her son claims was released accidentally, Mrs. Mabel Yerkes, 58 years old, widow of the son of Charles T. Yerkes, Chicago transit pioneer, was found unconscious in her bedroom closet at 1313 Ridge avenue, Evanston, early yesterday. Revived by inhalator squads from the Evanston fire department she was reported resting easily last night.

According to the son, Charles A. Yerkes, 25 years old, his mother had played cards with him earlier in the evening. He left her to meet a friend at 11:30, he said, and returned to the home about 1 a. m. Passing her bedroom he noticed the room, usually open, was closed more than was her custom. He looked in, saw she was not in bed and opened the closet door. Mrs. Yerkes was insensible on the floor and close at hand was an open gas tube, ordinarily attached to a bedroom heater. The gas was on. Mr. Yerkes believes that his mother detached the hose by accident. He summoned a physician and the inhalator squads and she was revived in about an hour.

Her husband, C. E. Yerkes, son of the donor of the Yerkes observatory to the University of Chicago, died four years ago. Within the last year her daughter, who was married to Robert Yerkes, Detroit lawyer, and her mother both died.

WAR TORN TOWN HONORS WOMAN WHO REBUILT IT

SAINT REMY - LA - CALONNE, France, May 19.—(AP)—This village, near Verdun, wiped out in the war, is mourning for the recent death of the woman whose memory and whose inspiration caused it to be rebuilt.

Mrs. Thomas B. Whitney was known as the village's "godmother." After the armistice, with the first inhabitants to return, she came and helped to reëstablish homes. Under her leadership the old village was modernized with a public bath house, a laundry, a school, and an athletic field.

Mrs. Whitney, French by birth, lived in Philadelphia after her marriage but of late years had lived at Mentone, on the Riviera. During the war she was active in nursing and relief work among the French Alpine troops. She was decorated with the Legion of Honor. Troops paid her a last salute at the funeral.

$500,000 SUIT OVER PAINTING COMPROMISED

New York, May 19.—(AP)—The $500,000 damage suit of Mrs. Andree Hahn of Kansas City against Sir Joseph Duveen, internationally known art dealer, has been settled out of court. The suit was for alleged depreciation in market value of Mrs. Hahn's painting "La Belle Ferronniere," because Sir Joseph had said he did not believe it to be a genuine Leonardo da Vinci.

A statement issued today by the art dealer's attorneys and signed by counsel for both plaintiff and defendant, under date of April 11 last, said the action had been disposed of "without prejudice to the contentions of the respective parties" for the following reasons:

"The parties realize that the question of authorship of a painting is a highly technical and expert one which cannot be satisfactorily decided by a jury of laymen."

"Duty" Called for Opinion.

"The defendant's acts complained of were not inspired by any desire to injure the plaintiff, but only in pursuance of his conception of his duty to the art world when asked for his opinion upon a matter of great moment.

"The parties to this case realize that it has resulted in substantial expense to both and they are desirous of avoiding further cost involved in continuing the controversy.

"On this basis the case has been dismissed without any change in the defendant's opinion as to the authorship of the painting which, though in his judgment not by Leonardo da Vinci, is of great antiquity, and without impugning the motives of good faith of the plaintiff, who remains the owner of the picture."

George Whiteside, member of the law firm which issued the statement, refused to say whether Mrs. Hahn had received a consideration.

Reports Come from Paris.

He declared, however, that the announcement today of the settlement had been prompted by reports published in Paris in which Mrs. Hahn's husband was quoted as saying that the suit had been settled "for a consideration" and that the painting had been "vindicated."

The suit was filed by Mrs. Hahn in 1931 and was based on her contention that Sir Joseph's opinion of the authenticity of "La Belle Ferroniere" had prevented its sale to the Kansas City Art Institute.

U. S. Official in San Domingo Shelters Fleeing Politicians

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic, May 19.—(AP)—Foreign legations are popular places just now with the Allancistas, or opponents of the government party, which won Friday's election here.

Frederico Velasquez, defeated candidate for president, was arrested yesterday on charges of fomenting revolution and was imprisoned in the old fortress here. Rumor soon spread that other prominent Allancistas were wanted. Two of them, Angel Morales, unsuccessful candidate for vice president, and Martin Moya, former minister of finance, were sitting on the porch of the American receiver of Dominican customs, William E. Pulliam, when he returned home from a drive last night.

They told Mr. Pulliam they feared arrest by soldiers commanded by Gen. Rafael Trujillo, the new president. Mr. Pulliam let them in, but said they must not resist if the soldiers came. The two men spent the night there but went elsewhere this morning.

Velasquez left prison this afternoon for a long hearing before the prosecutor, returning to prison at sunset. The hearing was a routine one, in which the prosecutor reviewed the charges with the prisoner in person.

When the prosecutor was asked about these, Velasquez interrupted to say: "The only real charge against me is that I was Allanza candidate for president."

The penalty for the charges of fomenting revolution, on which he is held, is 20 years' imprisonment.

The government announced that Morales was the only one sought and that others were wasting their time in seeking to avoid arrest. The city was full of rumors today—one of them that Morales had been badly injured yesterday when three soldiers attempted to arrest him. Mr. Pulliam said Morales showed no injury last night.

Another report charged that the United States government had been informed that Trujillistas had stuffed the ballot boxes Friday; that Washington therefore had notified the Dominican minister it would not recognise Gen. Trujillo, and that the minister, Rafael Brache, would leave Washington. The Dominican government said night the report was unfounded and Brache would remain at his post.

BRITAIN CLAMPS TIGHTER LID ON DIVORCE PLEAS

New Ruling Makes Husband Tell "All Facts."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 19.—English divorces for husbands and wives who have both indulged in lapses of infidelity will be harder than ever to obtain in the future as a result of a new ruling announced today by Lord Merrivale, president of the Divorce court.

The chief ground for divorce recognized in the English courts is adultery, but the decree is denied if both parties break the marriage vows. However, the law provides a loophole through the "discretion of the court," provided either husband of wife are able to show adultery justifiable under unusual circumstances.

The new ruling makes this law more severe than ever by compelling a petitioner who asks the discretion of the court to disclose all material facts relating to his own conduct during married life.

Husband Loses Plea.

The decision to stiffen the discretion requirement resulted specifically from the petition of Frank Apted, asking a dissolution of his marriage to Maud Constance Apted, on the ground of her misconduct with Roy Bliss. The wife had already been given a decree nisi in 1919, but this was later rescinded. Apted admitted living with another woman, but requested the court to use discretion and grant him a decree to permit him to marry his mistress.

This case was before the court a fortnight ago, but judgment was postponed until after the affair had been thoroughly investigated. In announcing the decision today, Lord Marrivale said he had discovered that Mr. Apted had wilfully concealed important facts, and had actually begun his relations with the other woman before his wife's misconduct. As a result, instead of the court granting the husband's petition, it found him guilty of contempt of court—although it is not likely that the penalty will be exacted.

Demands All Facts.

Condemning Mr. Apted for falsifying his petition "because he felt that the truth would go against the case," the president said that the sole consideration in reaching a discretionary decision is to determine the best course to take in regard to the interests of the community and the general interests of morality. Thus, he said, it would be absolutely necessary to know all facts before acting.

Pointing out the importance of the new ruling, Lord Merrivale said the number of cases where discretion is asked is constantly growing. Between 1857 and 1909, he said, there were only 45; between 1909 and 1919 there were 64; between 1920 and 1929 they had increased to 690.

Ill Only a Week

NEW YORK, May 19.—(AP)—Leo P. Flynn, one of boxing's most picturesque characters, died of pneumonia at his home here today after an illness of less than a week. He would have been 51 years old on June 1.

At one time Flynn had under his wing as many as 30 boxers. On one occasion a score of them were performing on the same night. Flynn was one of the most successful matchmakers the late Tex Rickard ever had at the old Garden, promoting a number of ftitic classics that made money for Tex.

After the split between Jack Kearns and Jack Dempsey, Flynn was Dempsey's chief adviser and handler for the Manassa Mauler's second fight with Gene Tunney.

The body will be taken for burial to Providence, R. I., whence Flynn came twenty-five years ago.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

"Why, you dirty bum, are you just trying to make a mug of your manager? If you let that man smack you with another left hook tonight I will reach out and tap you firmly on the skull with this water bottle. There is the bell. Go out there now and fight him with great fury."

I can still hear Mr. Leo P. Flynn, the old carpet-bagger of the prize fight industry, muttering into the ear of some bruised and winded prize fighter in a corner of some ring. Mr. Flynn was not sentimental about his bums and I believe he was the manager who first yelled from a corner, "Tear into him, kid; he ain't hurting us."

Flynn's Type Obsolete.

Now Mr. Flynn is dead, and it is just as well, because his type was becoming obsolete and he could not compete with the new type drawn from the bootlegging, bomb throwing, and dive keeping trades. He was very rough, coarse, and mercenary, and while it is true that his gladiators sometimes fought in a reserved way, under his instructions, to suit his business purposes, he was not a man of murderous or burglarious tendencies. Mr. Flynn was a business man, and you could depend on him to protect his interests in his own way among his own kind.

One night Mr. Flynn took one of his Negro prize fighters to Boston to fight a white boy belonging to a friend, with the understanding that his Negro boy was to treat the white boy with the greatest consideration. If they put up an interesting contest they would be invited back to Boston for a return match or a series of return matches. However, it was well understood between the sportsmen concerned that Mr. Flynn's gladiator could knock out his friend's gladiator almost at will in case of necessity.

End Is Unexpected.

Understanding that this was to have been a business fight, I was somewhat surprised to note in the papers the next day that Mr. Flynn's athlete had won by a knockout in the second round.

"What happened, Mr. Flynn?" I inquired. "Did your boy let one slip out of his hand?"

"No," Mr. Flynn replied, "we found that we were being treated unscrupulously. My slasher started off showing his opponent all possible politeness and was calling his shots in the most conscientious manner when, suddenly, and without the slightest warning, his adversary let one fly from his heels, causing my boy to fall down. So when my boy came back to the corner, he said, 'Mist' Flynn, 'at boy done hit me.'

"This treacherous conduct enraged me so I said, 'He did, eh? Well, you go right out there and paste him back and we will not have any more dealings with him.' So my boy walked out and interrupted the scoundrel and that is how it happened."

Mr. Flynn was born McManus but

Another for Bobby

SUNNINGDALE, England, May 19.—[Special.]—Following are cards turned in for the afternoon round of the 36 hole medal play in which Bobby Jones defeated W. G. Brownlow, 143 to 144:

Jones—
Out	443	345	334	33
In	334	443	345	—35—68
Brownlow—
Out	45f	444	433	37
In	434	365	454	—38—75

SUNNINGDALE, Eng., May 19.—(AP)—Bobby Jones today won the gold vase offered by the magazine, Golf Illustrated, shooting a 68 in the afternoon after 75 in the morning, to beat a great field of amateurs in the thirty-six hole medal competition.

Jones' total of 143 was good enough to win by a stroke from the Hon. W. G. Brownlow, son of Lord Lurgan, who returned a score of 69 in the morning and 75 in the afternoon.

The record for the newly constructed Sunningdale course was twice broken during the day. Brownlow's 69 set a new mark in the first round and Jones shaved it by a stroke a few hours later.

Other Americans Compete.

Three other American Walker cup players entered the play, George Voigt scoring 146, George Von Elm 147, and O. F. Willing 152. Bobby Baugh, American scholar at Oxford, had a score of 154.

Until the American open champion began to burn up the course Brownlow was regarded as a certain winner. He had led the field in the morning while Jones was playing an uninspired round.

Jones suddenly struck his stride and began to shoot threes and fours, with only an occasional five. He went out in 33 in the afternoon, missing a putt at the sixth, and taking a four at the par three ninth, where his tee shot was pulled into the rough. His second also was in the rough, and he had to make a great shot to get his four when a five seemed more likely. At the tenth his tee shot was bunkered, and his second in the rough, and he took five.

Takes Three Putts.

However, he had only one more error in his system. At the short thirteenth his tee shot was 12 feet from the cup, and he took three putts to get down, when a birdie two was a possibility. He missed the long putt and had a three footer left. When he missed it he said:

"I didn't know I could miss a putt so short as that at Sunningdale."

Just in front of Jones, Brownlow took his unhurried way, playing the first fifteen holes in even fours. At the sixteenth his game collapsed and he finished with three fives for a 75, Bobby's score of the morning.

Jones then knew just what he had to do. His task was to play the last six holes one under fours to get 68 and win. This he did. He scored birdies at the 15th and 16th holes, narrowly missing a deuce at the 15th.

At the 17th came a shot bringing rare golfing drama. Jones' drive failed to bend with the wind as he expected and the ball landed under some tall pines. The champion had a choice of playing safe and sacrificing a shot to get back on the fairway or playing through a narrow opening between trees.

Shoots Through Trees.

He elected to travel the bolder and dangerous route. He played a straight faced iron and sent the ball on the green, where it stopped five feet from the pin after it seemed about to drop into the cup. Jones got his par four and now needed only a five at the home hole. This he took leisurely.

The prince of Wales and his brothers, the duke of York and the duke of Gloucester, were in the gallery.

Mastro Hands Cohen a Ten Round Beating

Fight Decisions

At Asheville, N. C.—Add Warren, Asheville, and Jack League, San Antonio, drew [10].

BY CHARLES NEVADA.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., May 19.—Earl Mastro, Chicago featherweight, celebrated his return to the ring tonight by punching out a one-sided ten round decision over Jackie Cohen of New York City. It was the windup bout on the Auditorium card. Referee Walter Houlahan and Judges Ben Steinel and Louis Schultz were in accord on the verdict.

Mastro seemed the two-fisted fighter of old despite a four months' layoff. He repeatedly clipped Cohen with rights and lefts. But only in the tenth was the New Yorker in danger. Then Mastro clipped him with a short punch that all but had him out. Mastro won every round.

Referee Houlahan disqualified Joey Medill, another Chicagoan, in the sixth round of the scheduled ten round semi-windup with Mickey O'Neill, unbeaten Milwaukee 137 pounder. Houlahan ruled out Medill after the third warning for hitting low. O'Neill left the arena apparently unhurt. Medill had a shade when the bout was stopped. He floored O'Neill for a count of nine in the third round with a clean right to the jaw.

Solly Schuman, also of Chicago, outpointed Frankie Lamping, Milwaukee 122 pounder, in four rounds. Gus De Salvo, Milwaukee Italian, won the decision over Tommy Kluth of Chicago, 141 pounds, in a second four rounder.

INJURY TO KEEP COCHRANE OUT FOR TWO WEEKS

Philadelphia, Pa., May 19.—(AP)—X-ray pictures developed today revealed a chipped bone in Mickey Cochrane's right ankle, and the Athletics' peppery backstop will be out of the game for two weeks.

Cochrane injured the ankle last Friday sliding into third base and was carried from the field. As soon as the swelling subsides the ankle will be placed in a plaster cast.

Battling Gizzy Awarded Decision Over Ruth

Wheeling, W. Va., May 19.—(AP)—Battling Gizzy, Pittsburgh, won a ten round newspaper decision tonight over Babe Ruth of Louisville, Ky. They are featherweights.

WEATHER JINX PURSUES WHITE SOX AND INDIANS

Meet Again Today in 2d Double Header.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Tommy Thomas, whose crazy bone has been acting crazier than a good pitcher's crazy bone should act, may start in the second game of this afternoon's White Sox double header with the Cleveland Indians.

Tommy left the club in the east for a wrestling match with Doc Reese, the venerable bonesetter of Youngstown, O., and after clamping an arm lock on him, the doc advised the star right hander to rest for a week or ten days.

It so happens, however, that Tommy's roomie and pal, Ted Lyons, has hung up a total of six victories, whereas Tommy has only two. Ted is not a gent as would give his roomie the needles, of course, but it is easy to figure out that Tommy would rather be going along neck and neck with Ted than otherwise. And a pitcher can't build up his record nursing a crazy bone. If Tommy doesn't feel ready at game time, Ed Walsh will get the assignment.

Play Two Today.

The Indians and the Sox were to have played a double header at Comiskey park, but the field was in such shape at noon that the management decided to call off both games and move one of them over to be paired up with today's game.

It has been many a season since two clubs jointly have been beset with such consistently ornery weather, both here and in Cleveland.

When they resumed in Chicago Saturday, however, they played under arctic conditions and on Sunday cold blasts held the gathering down to 6,000 and threatened all the athletes with pneumonia.

Play 6 Games in 4 Days.

Some nice weather is expected between now and Sunday, when the Sox again go to Cleveland to play six games in four days, causing Lake Erie shippers to look forward to another highly unseasonable cold snap.

Old Red Faber, who has lost five games while winning one, will try his hand again in the first game of this afternoon's program. Red won the only bad game he pitched and he figures he's about due to get a break, it is said.

Tomorrow the Detroit Tigers will come to town for four games—their first visit to Comiskey park this season. The Tigers have lost two games to the Sox and have won one on their home lot.

CUBS MEET CARDS

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., May 19.—On the possibility that it might rain or snow or do something, the officials of the St. Louis club decided not to attempt a meeting this afternoon between the Cubs and the Cardinals.

The postponement brings about another change in the Cubs' traveling plans. Originally they were supposed to go home last night and rest for two days. The washout of Saturday made it necessary to play today and arrangements were made accordingly to carry the Cubs to Pittsburgh this evening.

Now the scheme is to stage today's affair here tomorrow, which in the schedule was an open date for both teams.

The only plan Joe McCarthy, the Cub boss, has for tomorrow is to let Pat Malone pitch. He will be opposed by Willie Sherdel or Al Grabowski.

Whether or not they play tomorrow the Cubs are going to get out of town at six o'clock. This early departure is necessary so as to reach Pittsburgh in time to open a four game series with the Pirates on Wednesday. From Pittsburgh the Cubs will go back to Wrigley field for a week's work, prior to settling forth on their first eastern jaunt of the season.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

EXPENSE ACCOUNT WORRY.

FRIEND ARCH: Well, Arch, I'm back from Louisville and feeling pretty well, too, considering what I've been through and all the hard work I did for you. But I thought I better gather up the accumulated mail, go home and look it over, and then go to work on my expense account. Really, I'm rather worried about my expense account, and I think you will be when you get it. Perhaps we better go into a huddle and arrive at some satisfactory compromise.

Now, I'm very economical in my habits, especially when I'm spending the paper's money. Don will tell you that. But after roughly computing what I can charge, I'm over a century to the bad on this trip, and it rather depresses me, because we didn't do any particular good against the mutuels.

No, I didn't lose money betting, but we always figure to win a pretty fair chunk down here considering the modest amounts we wager. You see, my interest in racing is to improve the breed of thoroughbreds, which is in the charter of all the jockey clubs. I'd never be willing to commercialize my turf knowledge after all the confidences received from these Derby candidates. But they were pretty hard to pick, for some reason. However, we put over a three horse parlay Derby day, so I'm about $25 or $50 ahead on my speculation. That's just chicken feed, however, when charged water charged is right—is 75 cents a pint and our suite was Chicago headquarters.

Another thing: Pegler pulled out Saturday night without paying any hotel charges. The cashier asked me if I knew him and I said no, but she said he occupied part of our room and my baggage couldn't leave the hotel unless I paid it, so I figured I better pay it and trust to your fairness. Then there's a long distance call to Los Angeles. It isn't mine and it isn't Jack's, but the operator said some fellow talked to his wife, but I don't see why any one should talk to his wife in Los Angeles at my expense.

You see, Arch, what complicates this situation is that the auditing department kicked so hard last year when I charged only $20 for "good will." I had planned all along to charge it as "experience" this year, but I don't know whether it will go over.

Well, Arch, I'll go to work on this expense account and charge everything I can legitimately, and then we'll talk it over about the "experience" charge. It sort of worries me, though, especially as the first letter I opened was a bill for 1928 taxes, and after looking at it I felt just as you do after being nosed out on a good bet.

I'll go to bed early tonight and get a good rest, if I can sleep after thinking of my expense account, and I'll see you early tomorrow. Regards.

HARVEY T. WOODRUFF.

ORVAL MARTIN.

Orval Martin, Purdue's track captain and one of the west's best distance runners, has won seven championships in five Big Ten meets, but does not hold an outdoor record. He'll make a bid Saturday to put his name on the record books in either the two mile, mile or half mile events when he runs in the Big Ten games at Evanston.

Martin holds the Western conference indoor marks for the mile and half mile. He established the Drake record for the two mile this spring in 9:26.2, outracing Manning of Wichita, his greatest rival.

Holds Illinois Relay Mark.

Martin also holds the Illinois relay record for the 1,000 yard run. His Indiana state record for the mile was broken last Saturday by Joe Sivak of Butler, who was timed in 4:19.8. Martin's record was 4:20.6.

Martin has an excellent chance to break the two mile record of 9:23.7, established by Abbott of Illinois in 1928, but he may pass up this event and enter the mile. Fall of Oberlin set this mark in 1917 at 4:15.8. Martin's best time for the event would tie the record, but he hasn't run within six seconds of it in competition in this spring.

Likely to Win Eighth Title.

Scott of Mississippi A. & M. holds the 14 year old record for the half mile at 1:53.2. Martin's best time is 1:55.5. He was timed in 1:55.5 May 10 in a triangular meet among Indiana, Chicago and Purdue.

Whether or not he sets a record, Martin is expected to win his eighth Big Ten championship Saturday. If so he'll have the additional honor of never losing a conference championship start.

No Hit Game Is Lost on Walk, Error and Wild Pitch

Fayetteville, Ark., May 19.—(AP)—H. P. Crawford, University of Arkansas student, pitched a no hit baseball game here today, but lost the game. Pitching in a university intramural game, Crawford lost his game, 1 to 0, when he walked a man, his team mates fumbled on an infield relay, a sacrifice advanced the runner to third and a wild pitch brought him home.

British Champion Enters U. S. Open Golf Tourney

New York, May 19.—(AP)—H. H. Ramsay, chairman of the championship committee of the United States Gold association, today announced receipt of the cabled entry of Cyril J. H. Tolley for the open gold championship of the United States. The British amateur champion will play in this event for the first time at Minneapolis July 10-12.

WHITTEN, STAGG MEET TO DISCUSS PREP TOURNEYS

Federation Puts O. K. on Track Meets.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

C. W. Whitten, secretary of the National Federation of State High School Athletic associations, and Coach Stagg of the University of Chicago yesterday discussed their differences over invitational interscholastics at a luncheon at the Windermere hotel.

Mr. Stagg is waging a fight to continue his interscholastic tournaments. Mr. Whitten represents the federation in its program to abolish interstate basketball tournaments. He was the author of the resolution presented to the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, which proposed to prohibit invitational meets by colleges and universities unless requested by high school associations.

Sanctions Track Meet.

Between courses Mr. Whitten gave his sanction to the University of Chicago's interscholastic track and field meet which will be held at Stagg field May 30 and 31. The track meet was approved at Mr. Stagg's request with the provision that it be conducted as in former years with member teams of state associations competing together.

Mr. Whitten and Mr. Stagg presented arguments for and against invitational college meets. Mr. Stagg proposed such meets should be subject to "home rule" with each state determining whether its members could enter invitational contests, including those of national scope.

Mr. Whitten outlined the federation program to which he and his associates are committed.

"The federation has voted against sanctioning national basketball tournaments," Mr. Whitten said. "This applies not only to the University of Chicago tournament but also to the tournament conducted at the University of Pennsylvania.

"We also have taken a definite stand in reference to adopting any measure which we believe will eliminate the recruiting of high school athletes by colleges.

Track Meets O. K.

"The federation has taken no action on interscholastics in other sports, and as long as state members compete against one another there is no reason why interstate track meets such as the one conducted by Chicago should not be sanctioned."

Mr. Stagg and Mr. Whitten commented on the resolution offered the North Central association, which, if adopted, would prevent any member of that association of colleges from holding a meet without request of the high schools. This was the question submitted by THE TRIBUNE to the high school principals in its poll.

"I take full responsibility for writing the resolution," Mr. Whitten said. "I did so at the invitation of the committee. It was approved by the committee and recommended to the commission on higher institutions of learning. This commission, one of the two through which the North Central conducts its affairs, returned the resolution to the committee to be revised since it believed in its present language it might be unfair to parochial schools.

Resolution Fails to Pass.

"That resolution did not pass, and I do not believe it will pass in its present form. The matter is entirely out of my hands and distinctly belongs to the committee."

Mr. Whitten intimated that he would not appear before the committee if requested, but rather that the college men could handle the problem in any manner they chose.

"However, the federation has definitely instructed me as its secretary not to sanction invitational interstate basketball meets," Mr. Whitten continued. "The federation will not take any action on invitational basketball meets which draw teams of one state. Such meets as Illinois Wesleyan holds in Illinois come entirely under the jurisdiction of the Illinois State Athletic association, and our organization has no rule against such a meet."

Novice Golfer Turns In 54 Over 1st Nine

The best pupil in The Tribune's golf school will be determined at the Mid-City course 9 o'clock Saturday morning when the four novices engage in 18 holes of medal play.

BY HARLAND ROHM.

These boy golfers are coming along. Now Randall Granquist, George Knox's pupil in THE TRIBUNE'S novice golf contest is threatening the mark that it was thought doubtful any would reach in a month of playing—breaking 100. Granquist's best so far is 54 over the first nine at Mid-City, easily within striking distance with a week to go.

Knox continued to correct minor faults in Randall's swing as he hit balls in his sixth lesson yesterday at Calumet. Starting again with a brassie, the professional cautioned him his swing was a bit flat and added, "Don't be afraid to get your right hip into the shot. Time the stroke, and don't rush it so," he added as the boy jerked one a bit fast.

Then Randall was given a midiron and Knox told him to take the same grip he used on the mashie and brassie, relaxing as he stood up to the shot. "Drag the club back gently," Knox told him, "keep the left arm straight and break the wrists at the top of the swing.

"Don't try to scoop up the ball," the professional continued as Randall hit shots. "Any club will pick up the ball. Carry on when you hit, any club will pick up the ball if you hit through it."

Randall wasn't getting his left heel back to the ground on his downswing, and Knox told him it was necessary for balance at the finish. He also had a tendency to open his hands a bit at the top of the swing instead of breaking the wrists, thus losing control of the club, and that common fault of many golfers to swish the club upward too fast on the backswing.

Switching to chip shots, Randall was hitting them very well and mashie shots fairly well, though he still had to be corrected to keep him hitting from the inside out. Changing back to the brassie once more Randall hit a few more drives. He sliced some because he wasn't going through with the clubhead, but trying to steer the shot. "You can't steer any shot," Knox told him. "Let the clubhead go through the ball, get the right hip into the shot, stay down to it and wait for the clubhead."

TIGERS DEFEAT BROWNS TWICE, 5 TO 4 AND 4 TO 2

Rally to Win First Game in Ten Innings.

Detroit, Mich., May 19.—(AP)—The Detroit Tigers stretched their winning streak to four straight games today, defeating the St. Louis Browns twice in the only games played in the major leagues. The Tigers took the first, 5 to 4, in ten innings, and then won the nightcap, 4 to 2.

Stewart held the Tigers helpless for seven innings of the first game, but a four run rally in the eighth tied the score. Two singles and a fielder's choice put across the deciding run in the tenth.

The second contest developed into a pitchers' battle between Sam Gray, Browns' mound ace, and Ansley Wyatt of the Tigers. Each yielded ten hits, but the Tigers bunched seven of their total in the third and sixth innings to score three runs in the former and one in the latter. Scores:

Forty Golfers to Compete for Big Ten Titles Today

Forty leading golfers of the Big Ten will tee off at the Westmoreland Country club this morning on the first round of their 72 hole march in quest of the Western conference team championship and individual title. For the first time in the history of the event every school in the conference has entered a team.

All the teams were on hand yesterday and played a practice round on the course, which is in fine shape for tournament play. The course has been retrapped since last year with larger and deeper traps and will provide a real test.

Minnesota, winner of the team championship last year, lost an 18 hole practice round to Northwestern yesterday, 7 to 5. Oliver Rogers, the Wildcats' captain, was in fine form, shooting a 74 for the low score of the match. He won over Fowler, his Minnesota opponent, 2½ to ½. Whitaker and Arnold were the other Purple golfers to win their matches, while Walker of Minnesota upset Damaske of Northwestern, 2½ to ½.

Judging from performances this spring, Illinois appears to have the edge over the rest of the field. The Illini have four seasoned golfers in Martin, Lyons, Alpert, and Crowe. Lyons won the Western Junior championship last summer and Alpert is a former holder of the same title.

Among the leading contenders for the individual title are Martin and Lyons, Illinois; Rogers and Damaske, Northwestern; Bassett, Purdue; Stewart, Wisconsin; McCardell, Iowa; Howard and Hicks, Michigan; Keppler and Loop, Ohio; Chatterton, Indiana, and Burrus and Fowler, Minnesota.

Officers of the Daily Fee Golf association and owners of courses will play 36 holes at Pickwick Suburban in the opening tournament Thursday. Billy Langford of Mid-City has been elected secretary and Jim Loye, treasurer.

The Prosperity club also will open its schedule with a tournament at St. Charles Country club on Thursday.

The Yale club of Chicago will hold a 36 hole medal play tournament at Onwentsia Thursday.

The week will end with the famed Midlothian Derby, the twenty-sixth consecutive year this party has opened the invitational golf season, on Saturday and Sunday.

Entry of amateurs "without a hope" in the Western Open probably will be curbed a bit by the new rule of the Western Golf association making the entry fee for amateurs $20. The entry for pros remains $5. The tournament will be held at Indian Wood, Detroit, Aug. 20-23, inclusive. The 72 players who qualified for the final 36 holes last year are exempt from qualifying.

MAROONS UPSET MICHIGAN STATE BALL TEAM, 4 TO 3

Chicago upset Michigan State yesterday on the Midway, 4 to 3. It was only the second defeat in twelve games for the Lansing nine.

CARNERA KNOCKS OUT 1 OPPONENT, BOXES 2 OTHERS

Des Moines, Ia., May 19.—(AP)—Primo Carnera lugged his 267 pounds through four and a fraction rounds of fighting here tonight, polishing off one opponent after several seconds of sparring and staging two round boxing exhibitions against two others.

Carnera toyed with his last two opponents after pushing Texas Ranger, El Paso, Tex., through the ropes for a knockout.

Seal Harris, 240 pound Chicago Negro, tried to make a scrap of it in the final go and carried the fight at times to the giant Italian. Carnera inflicted some damage to the Negro, but was contented to give the crowd a demonstration of his footwork and boxing ability most of the time.

Want Two Golf Courses for Forest Preserve System

The forest preserve board of county commissioners yesterday ordered the acquisition of the Tam o'Shanter and Bunker Hill golf courses along the north branch of the Chicago river east of Milwaukee avenue, to fill gaps in the forest preserve system. The two golf courses comprise 151 acres. If the board and owners of the property cannot agree on purchase prices, condemnation proceedings will be ordered by the board.

Golden Gloves Champions on Amateur Fight Card

An all star card of eight bouts, including many of the winners who participated in THE TRIBUNE'S Golden Glove tournament, will be presented tonight when Pep Kerwin opens his Western Athletic stadium, Devon and Western avenues.

Becker Finds Trout Fishing Can Be Cold

BY BOB BECKER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Blaney, Upper Peninsula, Mich., May 19.—When a cold wind is coming down from the north and the thermometer skids to 36 at night it's no time for an ambitious trout fisherman to slip and fall into a stream.

Anglers up here in the northland have found these unfavorable weather conditions during the last few days because spring suddenly checked out of this country leaving behind many evidences of her former visit. The forest floor is covered with trilliums, violets are in blossom, and along the streams there are vivid splashes of yellow where the marsh marigolds hug the shoreline.

Although the aristocratic brook trout have been sulking considerably because of the cold spring weather and show no great enthusiasm to strike a lure, there are trout in the skillet tonight just the same. But it takes plenty work to lure them from their hideouts around the logs and near the alders.

With the fish in the pan and nobody falling in the river today, the score in that respect is satisfactory. Carroll Gray Jr. and F. N. Bard, two Chicago anglers in this party, successfully negotiated the Fox with its deep holes and many snags and no one took the count for an ice water bath. In company with G. L. Cox we floundered down the Crow river, which is literally filled with a submarine forest of old logs and stumps.

The north wind whistled around our collar and the cold water rolled past our rubber incased legs, but these numbed members found enough firm footing to keep us from taking a tumble. Such is the life of the seagoing trout fisherman when the weather man pulls the wrong lever and gives you autumn days instead of balmy spring weather.

We found one log jam on the Crow today which certainly make us forget about chills and chilblains. The trout were loafing around these snags and what a circus we had trying to hook them and land them. This one spot yielded five fish for our noon day lunch and then we went back and bothered the "loggers" again.

Sonnenberg Wins on Foul from Lewis in Mat Bout

More comfort, better appearance, longer wear. Because it is made on a new principle, the Collarite Shirt offers men new comfort, and, like the Van Heusen Collar, makes a new contribution to their good appearance. It is the only collar-attached shirt with the collar in one-piece. The fold is woven in, as in a Van Heusen Collar! And, instead of nine plies of fabric at the fold line there are but three. The fold is only one-third as thick, therefore two-thirds more comfortable and good-looking. It is the most comfortable, the best-looking, and the longest wearing shirt yet made.

BUICK DEDICATES ITSELF TO THIS BASIC SERVICE POLICY..

"Satisfy the customer." This has been the service policy of the Buick Motor Company throughout the twenty-seven years of its history. And so faithfully has Buick followed this policy that today the familiar blue and white emblem of Authorized Buick Service is a guidepost to prompt, efficient and courteous maintenance to more than 1,500,000 Buick owners. Buick has twice as many owners as any other company selling cars priced above $1200.

Here are just a few of the many important provisions of Buick's Service Policy:

More than 4,000 factory-supervised Buick Service Stations—equipped with genuine factory parts and tools—assure all Buick owners the same fine standard of skilled Buick service.

A written Warranty, covering the first 4,000 miles or the first 90 days of ownership, whichever shall accrue first, guarantees every new Buick car to be free from defects in material or workmanship.

Should parts or workmanship prove defective at any time during the Warranty period, Buick dealers will supply the parts and perform the necessary labor free of charge.

In addition to careful pre-delivery tests, the Buick owner receives two major inspections without cost—one after 500 miles and another after 1500 miles of driving. These include a thorough road test of all elements of performance.

The "Tourist" and "Change of Residence" clauses permit the Buick owner to change his residence as frequently as he desires or to tour any part of the U. S. or Canada and still receive the full Warranty benefits from the nearest authorized Buick dealer.

The basic underlying principle of Buick's service policy can be summed up in these three words—the creed of the entire Buick organization—satisfy the customer. All Buick dealers dedicate themselves to the task of serving promptly, efficiently and courteously—providing maximum service at minimum cost—that owners of Buicks may remain friends of Buick always.

somewhere back in the past and for reasons not definitely known to me he became known as Leo P. Flynn. I am told of a time, early in his career, when he boxed his own brother, Splash McManus, and not only knocked him out but deducted one-third of his brother's purse of ten dollars, as the manager's fee. Mr. Flynn, or McManus, was promoting small bouts in Providence, R. I., at the time and had given Splash a place in the star bout. But the entertainment was a commercial failure, so Leo scratched his brother's opponent from the card and boxed Splash himself.

In his later years Leo was prosperous and more devoted to his golf, which was a very good grade of golf, than to his gladiators, but by this time he had systematized his business and, in many cases, managed his boys on the absentee system, sending deputies out to tote the bottles, swing the towels and collect the money. His was the first large stable of prize fighters, numbering more than thirty head at a time when more than three or four prize fighters were considered to be enough for any one manager.

One New Year's day several years ago, Mr. Flynn had nineteen boxers fighting under his colors in half a dozen cities. He developed a card index system of records and kept a close account of the battles of the most obscure pugilists in the most remote outposts of the industry, whereby he could readily tell just how good a man some fighter of his was called upon to meet when a telegram came from some distant point offering a bout with some one to most fight managers utterly unknown.

Leo Started Modestly.

If Mr. Flynn had been the manager of Michael McTigue when Michael first held the light heavyweight championship, Michael never would have been lured into his distressing match with Willie Stribling, at that time known as the fighting schoolboy, in Columbus, Ga. Willie Stribling beat Michael severely that afternoon, and Mr. Flynn doubtless could have told Michael that the chump he was about to meet was no chump at all but a dangerous party.

In the beginning of his career Mr. Flynn was very poor and for some years he traveled up and down the land in day coaches with groups of fighters, carrying several days' rations for himself in a wicker satchel to economize. His wife, My Kate, as he called her, prepared these meals for him, helped with his accounts, studied the prize fight news. She was a very determined and not at all dependent type of person. She also owned a few pugilists and booked matches for them. Mr. Flynn said he used to carry a carpet bag on his tours because a carpet bag tossed out a hotel window into an alley in the dead of night landed with an inaudible thump, contrary to the alarming boom of a leather or papier mache suitcase so disposed of, when he wished to check out quietly. Sometimes in Mr. Flynn's early days it was inconvenient to pay his hotel bills.

Was Defiantly Honest.

He was paunchy and untidy, his hair stood up in a gray, toussled crest and when Mr. Flynn was arguing business matters, his eyes narrowed and his lower lip drew down, showing his teeth to the gums, a very sinister expression indeed. But, although he was full of guile, he had a strange defiant honesty and did not select his enimies by judicious discrimination. Mr. Flynn was always ready to stand up and be counted against any man he didn't like, regardless of that person's power to harm him in print or boycott his fighters.

Starting with a small bundle of second-hand sticks on the public links at Van Cortlandt park a few days ago, Mr. Flynn became a low handicap man and a remarkably fine amateur instructor within two years. He learned golf from a caddy at the rate of ten cents a hole for instruction, provided the caddy brought him in each time at least one stroke under his score for the last previous round. Otherwise the caddy received only his regular fee.

I am afraid that when Mr. Flynn began to shoot in the low eighties and joined the Grassy Sprain club at Yonkers he stooped to deception in some of his matches. He would lift his left foot and gyrate for a spell, then swoop down on the ball and lacerate the turf with terrific swipes until he had his opponent hooked in a wager for serious money.

Pool Gave Him Putting Touch.

Then he would suddenly begin to shoot smooth, graceful golf and even, at times, would whistle or carry on a conversation while executing his shots. His putting touch he had learned on the pool table, at which he had earned his rent many a week in his early days, and he had such an eye for flaws in golf that dubs who played with him improved their games by half a dozen strokes in a single round with him.

The prize fighting racket will miss Mr. Flynn, standing on the margin of the ring platform, resting his abdomen on the lower rope, leaning calmly over the top one, and muttering encouragement between lips that didn't move.

"Listen, stupid, are you trying to humiliate me? How many times have I told you to jab? And do you jab? No, you do not jab. I work my brain to the bone to get you fights and you will not jab for me. Bell. Go on out there, you bum, and jab."

More Football, Less Crime, Is Judge's Plea

How many college football players turn out to be criminals?

In the opinion of Judge Walter P. Steffen, now sitting in the Criminal court, participation in football has precluded a great number of crimes. As coach of the Carnegie Tech eleven, Judge Steffen believes he is qualified to answer the question.

He discussed football and its advantages toward development of young men yesterday at the weekly meeting of the Advertising Men's post of the American Legion.

"Playing football requires all your surplus energy," Judge Steffen said, "and at the same time gives you a clear mind. The cause of crime today lies in the fact that too many young men have too much energy which they do not know how to exert in the right way. Instead of selecting a rigorous pastime to 'let off their steam,' they loll about until evil thoughts creep into their minds. Then they blow up.

"Young men who come before me in the Criminal court seldom, if ever, played football. They exerted their energy in a different way, undermining their health and mentality. Most of them are weaklings.

"You can't be a weakling and play football, although you can be physically handicaped when you start to learn the game and build yourself up learning to play it. Football is a game that develops will power. Few criminals have wilt power."

NEWS FROM THE RACE TRACKS

Watch On, Allegretto Win Aurora Races.

BY FRENCH LANE.

The Nash brothers—Dick and Pat—were slightly subdued after their colt, High Foot, failed to beat anybody but Dick O'Hara in the Kentucky Derby last Saturday.

They lost a few bets, of course, and so did their friends. But it wasn't the money they lost that counted. The Nash boys were keenly disappointed at what they believed was going to be a great race horse.

The Nashes and their friends still were selling slightly under par when they returned from the Derby, scene yesterday morning. "How could High Foot finish fourteenth in a field of fifteen?" Dick asked Brother Pat, and Brother Pat refused to answer.

Plunge on Watch On.

But a lot of the High Foot backers journeyed to Aurora during the afternoon, where the Nash brothers had two horses running. When they saw Watch On step out on the muddy track in the first race wearing the same silks which High Foot carried in the Derby, they forgot about the Kentucky race, and started to plunge on Watch On. They made him a short priced favorite.

Old Watch On galloped into the lead and never left the result in doubt. He ran as if he wanted to say, "I'm sorry my little stablemate was so fond of Dick O'Hara in the Derby that he refused to go up and associate with the leaders."

Watch On won by eight lengths and in the mutuel betting paid $4.54 to win. It bolstered the Nash forces until they were ready to do most anything now to get even on High Foot's Derby failure. In the third race the peach green jacket of the Nash boys was carried to the post by the 2 year old colt Allegretto.

Allegretto Outruns Field.

But like Watch On, Allegretto seemed to be feeling sorry or was trying to show up High Foot, for the son of Damrosch also made a show of his field. He trailed in the early stages, but smothered his rivals at the head of the stretch and went on to win by twelve lengths from Red Tam, with Dick Price third. Allegretto paid $7.70 and from the way the friends of the Nash stable cheered, it looked as if amends had been made.

The honest reason

THERE IS ONLY one real reason for smoking and that's pleasure. A pretty good reason after all. The cigarette you select in the long run will be the one that can contribute most to your enjoyment.

Camels are made with that idea in mind—the idea that genuine smoke pleasure is what you want in a cigarette.

When you try them you will find a refreshing difference—a mild, mellow richness of choice tobaccos—a blended harmony of fragrance, silky smooth—that makes smoking a delight.

The fact that more millions have chosen Camel than any other cigarette is a tribute to an honest product, marketed for an honest purpose.

MAJORITY OF CHICAGO STOCKS SLIP BACKWARD

Majestic Household Up Against Trend.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

A few issues moved forward but the majority of stocks slipped from one to three points in the highly selective trading on the Chicago exchange yesterday.

The lopsided nature of the market was apparent throughout the day. Interest was concentrated in a small group of stocks, transactions in which accounted for a large percentage of the day's total sales volume.

The few shares which did advance represented no particular group. Majestic Household was bought freely and proved the best ground gainer of the session. Touching a high at 54½ the issue closed slightly under that figure with a net gain of 3½.

Bullish Rumors Help.

Grigsby Grunow was strong in sympathy most of the day, but failed to hold all of its gain and finished about a point to the good. Transactions in both issues were comparatively heavy and among the largest of the day. Bullish rumors helped Majestic. It was reported that production will be started by the company much earlier than previously anticipated.

Zenith Radio was actively traded in but lost most of its advance in the late trades and closed only a shade higher. Super Maid though not in the trading spotlight, pushed its way up moderately on sales of about 1,600 shares.

H. O. Stone common made partial recovery from its Saturday low, moving forward 4 points on sales of 2,000 shares.

Utility stocks were conspicuous on the weak side of the market. Losses for the most part were narrow, however. North American Light and Power with a drop of 2¼, and Edison, of 2, were the chief sufferers. The real trading in the group was centered in Middle West and Cities Service and each was down about a point at the end of the day. Central and Southwest sustained a similar loss.

Motor Trading Listless.

Trading in the motor shares was listless and about the only significant movement was in Auburn which fell to a new low at 160, rallied 4 points to close with a net loss of 5 points. Bendix lost 1⅝ and Modine, 1¼.

As a group the industrials put up a poor front. General Theatres, which has been subject to pressure for some time, eased around a point on light trade. Short selling in the issue, which reached a peak during the recent sharp decline in the market, has largely disappeared and the issue has been well supported by its backers. Jefferson Electric and Libby were others to suffer small reverses. U. S. Gypsum dropped 2 and Winton Engine sold off to 61½.

CHICAGO CURB APPOINTS THREE FOR CONFERENCE

Three members of the Chicago Curb exchange were named yesterday to meet with President John A. Bunnell of the Board of Trade to iron out differences over the dual listing of securities. The curb representatives are John E. Wheeler of Moses & Wheeler, William D. Kerr of Bacon & Whipple and Richard C. Thalen of Thalen & Co. They will confer with Mr. Bunnell Thursday afternoon.

Some difference of opinion is said to exist among curb members as to how far the exchange should go in attempting to come to an understanding with the Board of Trade. One faction believes that the curb should resist any effort of the board to establish a curb market, or in expanding its unlisted department to where it invades the claims of the curb exchange. This group consists mostly of curb members who are not also members of the Board of Trade.

A milder view is said to be taken by others. Inasmuch as a majority of the curb's governing committee are Board of Trade members also, it is believed that no serious conflict will result.

SOLID CARBON DIOXIDE.

The rapidity with which the new dry refrigerant, solid carbon dioxide, is being accepted for commercial usage is evidenced by the fact that 44,000,000 pounds were sold during 1929, as compared with 14,000,000 pounds in 1928 and 200,000 pounds in 1925, according to an analysis of the Solid Carbonic company issued by Hanson & Hanson.

France's Imports Show Decline from Last Year

PARIS, May 19.—(AP)—Imports of the first four months of this year were 18,582,385,000 francs ($46,430,462). This is a decrease of $4,440,550 from the same period last year. France's exports in the same time were 15,578,371,000 francs ($38,695,920).

Chicago Board of Trade Stocks

Electric Bond and Share security furnished an active market for outsiders and floor traders on the Board of Trade yesterday and more than 50 per cent of the total of business centered in this security. From an opening ⅝ lower than Saturday's close at 102⅞, it declined to 98¾, only to rally and close at 99¼, with sales of 8,700 shares. Ford Motor company of Canada was bid up early, but met selling pressure and declined to 35½ at the close, a net loss of almost 2 points.

United States Rubber.

Will you kindly give me what information you have on United States Rubber and advise me if you consider it wise to continue holding either common or preferred stocks?—S. K. J.

United States Rubber company, second largest manufacturer of rubber products in the United States, reported for last year gross income about the same as the year before. Early in the year it seemed that the company might be able to cover its preferred dividend in the last six months, but later developments resulted in wiping out this anticipated profit.

Net loss for 1929 was $3,378,412, against net loss of $10,781,255 in 1928. The number of tires sold last year was larger than in 1928, but prices were lower. The company lost between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000 on tires alone last year. Low prices for crude rubber during the latter part of 1929 prevented the company from deriving much income from its plantations.

Losses last year are largely accounted for by heavy expenses incurred in consolidating manufacturing operations, the drop in crude rubber prices in the latter part of the year, and the decided falling off in original equipment business owing to the smaller number of automobiles turned out by manufacturers.

The conservative bookkeeping policy adopted in 1928 was continued last year. This has resulted in large write-offs for inventory losses and depreciation charges.

As part of the program of plant concentration, six factories were closed last year and plans call for further steps toward consolidation of producing and distributing operations.

At the close of 1929 current assets were $116,752,339 and current liabilities were $37,303,973, leaving a net working capital of $79,448,366, which compares with $104,997,593 on Dec. 31, 1928.

The preferred is speculative and the common more so.

Greek Government 6s.

Will you kindly give me such information as you can regarding the government of Greece 6 per cent bonds, due in 1968, listed on the New York exchange? Are these bonds considered sound?—S. P.

Greek government secured sinking fund stabilization 6s of 1928, due Feb. 1, 1968, are a direct obligation of the republic of Greece and are secured by a charge on revenues under the control of an international financial commission, including receipts from the salt, match, and other monopolies, and from customs, tobacco, stamps, and alcohol duties. Receipts from pledged revenues in 1927 were $49,526,507.

These bonds are somewhat speculative.

Receiver for Shoe Company Is Asked by Chicago Bank

St. Louis, Mo., May 19.—(AP)—Suit for appointment of a receiver for the Hamilton-Brown Shoe company, with assets placed at $7,000,000, was filed in United States District court late today by the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company of Chicago. The petition says the bank holds a claim for $360,000 for money loaned the firm and other claims total more than $3,000,000.

The bank says the shoe company is believed solvent, but certain creditors are threatening to sue for collection, which, the petition says, would cause a loss to creditors and stockholders through a forced sale. The suit asks the court to keep the firm and its branches intact and either operated or disposed of as a going concern.

DU PONTS SLICE ANOTHER MELON WORTH MILLIONS

Will Use Proceeds for Expansion.

BY O. A. MATHER.

It's just one melon after another for the stockholders of the Du Pont company, biggest of the chemical concerns and also part owner in other corporations, including General Motors. Just to keep the record good, the directors of the company (whose official name is E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co.) announced stock purchase rights with a total value of more than $16,000,000.

Common stockholders of record June 6 will have the right to subscribe to one additional share at $80 for each thirty shares held. At yesterday's market price around $170 for the present stock, the rights would be worth about $1.52 and their total value on 10,712,130 shares outstanding would be $16,282,437.

The rights will expire on July 15. Proceeds from the sale, amounting to $231,565,650, will be devoted to capital outlays in connection with expansion of plants and business of the company's various industries.

Basis for Payments.

Stockholders may pay for the new shares in full or in three instalments —$30 on July 15 and $30 on Sept. 30, and $29.25 a share on Dec. 20, this year. The final payments is adjusted on the basis of dividend payments and interest on the first two instalments. The directors elected A. B. Echols a vice president, Dr. C. M. A. Stine a member of the executive committee, and J. B. Ellason as treasurer. H. F. Brown and William Coyne retired from the executive committee.

Business leaders made mildly cheerful predictions yesterday. W. B. Story, president of the Santa Fé, spoke of favorable agricultural conditions and normal business prospects as a result for the year as a whole. Fred W. Sargent, president of the North Western, regards conditions as improving. S. M. Hastings, director of the International Business Machines corporation, said net profits and sales for the first quarter of this year compared favorably with recent years and that general business should be normal by the first of next year.

Herbert French, vice president of the Procter & Gamble company, said business during the last three weeks has been considerably above normal.

Celotex Earnings.

The Celotex company is endeavoring to expedite dismissal of a suit for receivership recently filed in Delaware, according to a letter sent to stockholders yesterday by President B. G. Dahlberg. He also issued an earnings statement. Net profits for the six months ended April 30 were $237,955, or 19 cents a share on 221,208 common shares, compared with $170,338, or $1.03 a share on 178,033 shares, for the six months ended April 30, 1929. Net profits for the three months ended April 30, 1930, were $467,229, or $1.69 a share, compared with $416,000, or $1.81 a share, in the first three months of 1929.

"The first quarter of our fiscal year is usually slack," Mr. Dahlberg said. "The second half of our year has uniformly yielded the bulk of our earnings. Our total volume of business for the second quarter proved satisfactory."

Progress Is Reported in Exchange of Air Stocks

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 19.—Approximately 130,000 shares of National Air Transport, Inc., out of 650,000 shares outstanding has been tendered in exchange for United Aircraft and Transport corporation, it was learned today. The offer of United to exchange one share of common for each three shares of N. A. T. has been extended indefinitely, with the right reserved to terminate the offer at any time. The expiration date previously had been set for May 15. Acquisition of 530,000 shares of N. A. T. by exchange of stock would mean the issuance of about 176,000 additional shares of United.

Inequalities in Power Demand, Scrutator's Theme

BY SCRUTATOR.

In practically all the talk of how power and its economical use have changed living conditions for the better in the United States there is little recognition of the fact that demands for power vary widely and that its production and distribution require organizations that can shift objectives quickly to meet changed conditions.

It is this uncertainty that furnishes a potent argument against the socialization of power production. The cry for such socialization is loudest when hydro-electricity is being considered. It could almost be said that there is an instinctive feeling on the part of the public that power from falling water in rivers partake of the nature of a free good, like air, and should be held by all the people equally.

Distribution Costs.

In a hydro-electric plant, once the capital investment is cared for, operating costs are small. The machinery used is highly efficient. Some instances possibly could be quoted to show that the best hydro plants, with natural falls of water to begin with, can produce electric power more cheaply than any other plants. It is more difficult to show that such power can often be distributed to customers at very low rate.

Power at the plant switchboard, whether it be a hydro or a steam plant, usually costs only a fraction of the cost to transfer it in usable form to the consumer. The distribution cost gains added weight when it is realized that in general it has been found necessary to take power to the consumer than for him to move to the primary source of it. In other words, factors like markets, labor supply, and transportation of materials are usually more weighty in the location of industries than the lone factor of cheap and abundant power.

Not True of All.

This is not true of all industries. Certain ones, particularly those dealing with chemical changes of materials, find it profitable sometimes to locate at the scene of power production on a big scale. Aluminum, for example, is concentrated around Niagara Falls. But for most industries the cheapness of power production is less important than distribution cost, and this in turn is less important than the efficient use of it by better machinery or devices for home use.

To the industrial user, as to the home user, the certainty of an elastic supply of power is the prime necessity. Manufacturing as it is conducted today involves more than it did in the past the use of small, individual motors, which can be shut off immediately they are not required. The manufacturer's great advantage in the use of central station power is that he does not have to build up a great reserve capacity to produce more than he can use except at the peak load times in his business.

Cites Commonwealth Edison.

The equalization of power use over broad areas has been of value to the central stations. It has enabled them to cut down on coal, where they use steam generation. From 1921 to 1929 plants making electricity cut coal consumption per kilowatt hour from 3.2 pounds to 1.69 pounds. It is reasonable to assume that the profit motives of private enterprise were more powerful than any political motive would have been.

Inequalities in demand are shown in the last Commonwealth Edison year book. In 1907 this company sold half its production to street and elevated railways and 40 per cent to retail customers. In 1929 transportation power had fallen to 25 per cent, retail sales to 27 per cent, and wholesale use had grown to 48 per cent. It would be difficult to persuade political appointees to meet such shifts in demand or to work for greater economy when economy meant loss of jobs to hand out.

Allot World Bank Stock to 100 U. S. Institutions

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 19.—Approximately 100 American banks and trust companies will be the recipients of new Bank of International Settlements shares allotted by J. P. Morgan & Co. out of the American proportion of the issue, it became known today.

Principal banks interested in world finance in this and other cities are on the list receiving these shares. They will thus have a participation in the ownership of the chief vehicle set up under the Young plan to mobilize German reparations payments, commercialize the nonpostponable portion thereof and handle the annual payments.

The American underwriters comprise J. P. Morgan & Co., the First National Bank of New York, and the First National Bank of Chicago.

The names of the local and out of town banks to which allotments of the Bank for International Settlements stock were made today were not revealed, nor was the amount allotted in individual cases.

Reserve Banks Debarred.

In all other countries except Japan, where the Bank of Japan is, like the federal reserve banks here, debarred from subscribing to the issue, the Bank for International Settlements shares are issued to central banks of issue, which may sell portions or all of the issues to other banks or to the public.

The American portion of the issue, like those issued in the other six countries whose central or private banks are participating in organization of the International bank, consists of 16,000 shares of 500 Swiss francs par value, 25 per cent paid.

Initial Stock Sale.

The total initial sale of stock in all the seven countries will be 280,000,000 Swiss francs par value of an authorized total of 500,000,000 or 56 per cent. The remaining unissued portion of 44 per cent will be reserved for central banks in other countries of the world which in the next two years may wish to subscribe.

The cash raised from the sale of the initial offering of B. I. S. stock, because of the partly paid feature, will be only approximately $2,000,000 for each country, or $14,000,000 for all seven. The seven countries and the subscribing banks or banking groups are: England, Bank of England; France, Banque de France; Belgium, Banque Nationale de Belgique; Germany, Reichsbank; Italy, Banca d'Italia, and Japan, a private banking group the names of which have not yet appeared.

J. H. KEMPNER IS SUSPENDED BY STOCK EXCHANGE

Jean H. Kempner of the brokerage firm of Kempner Bros., 166 West Jackson boulevard, was suspended yesterday from the Chicago Stock Exchange by action of the board of governors. The suspension follows the action taken several days ago by the exchange in prohibiting Kempner from trading pending an investigation of his firm's affairs.

While no announcement was made by the firm, the action of the exchange was interpreted as meaning that the firm was unable to clear up its obligations. Yesterday's action prevents the firm from trading on the exchange for one year.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 19.—The stock market folded up and gave the bored brokers a chance to catch up on their spring whittling today. There was a spell of pretty heavy selling from the bear camp toward the last, but taken as a whole it was about the dullest five hour trading session of the year. Only 2,413,930 shares changed hands.

Prices fell off steadily—mainly from sheer inertia rather than from any organized pressure. Traders seemed to take it for granted that a period of dullness had set in and that—like Mark Twain's weather—there was nothing to be done about it. Some of them were opining that better conditions could not be expected until congress has finished its tariff tinkering and gone home, and possibly not until some time after that.

News Fails to Interest.

No use at all paying any attention to lesser developments in the meantime. Such as, for instance, the news which came early in the day that the central banks of Germany and Italy had lowered their rediscount rates, thus affording still further evidence of the world-wide relaxation of credit con-

HULSWIT MAKES REPORT ON 1929 NET FOR SYSTEM

The annual report of the American Commonwealths Power corporation and controlled system for the year ended Dec. 31, shows earnings of $3,855,779, available for reserves and taxes. This compares with $1,276,148 in the preceding twelve months.

F. T. HULSWIT.

In his report, President Frank T. Hulswit says that gross revenues of the corporation during 1929 amounted to $25,593,046 as compared with $17,871,714 in 1928. The system now serves a population of 2,562,305 in 376 communities in 25 states, he states. The increase over the population served in the previous year was 725,305. Mr. Hulswit says that the diversity of the corporation's operation makes for further stability of earnings and future growth.

Washington, D. C., May 19.—Building up of manufacturing industries in the central states will be made almost impossible if congress passes the Pittman bill forbidding transcontinental railroads to make rates in competition with Panama canal boat lines unless the competitive rates are applied to the intermountain country, according to the Minnesota railroad and warehouse commission.

Speaking for that commission today before the senate interstate commerce subcommittee on the Pittman bill, A. L. Flinn, rate expert, said if the railroads serving Minnesota were not allowed to try to obtain additional tonnage and their earnings fell below a reasonable return in the central states, they "will be called upon to make up any deficit, through the medium of increased freight rates.""

F. H. Plaisted of Chicago, freight traffic manager of the Southern Pacific Rail and Steamship lines, assailed the Pittman proposal on the ground that it was a plea for established freight rates on the distance basis.

OUTSIDE BUYING IN WHEAT EBBS; PRICES DECLINE

Pressure Develops in Other Grains.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

An overbought condition was disclosed in the wheat market yesterday and it was not easy to execute selling orders without depressing the price.

Last week's upturn weakened the technical position, and left the market in a position where an increase in the pressure was quickly reflected in a lower level of values. At no time were prices above Saturday's finish and the close was about the bottom, with net losses of 1⅜@2¼c, May being $1.04⅛, and July, $1.04⅞@1.05.

Many of the pit element who covered last week were inclined to be bearish due to the failure of outside buying to develop and there was considerable disappointment over the decrease of only 4,064,000 bu. in the domestic visible supply, although the total is down to 122,146,000 bu. against 103,376,000 bu. last year. Winnipeg was heavy and 1⅛@1⅜c lower, with a limited export demand reported from abroad, despite the fact that supplies on ocean passage were reduced 1,584,000 bu. for the week to 33,064,000 bu, the smallest at this time in over 23 years.

Winter Wheat Improving.

Support in the wheat market came mainly from commission houses on resting orders and from holders of bids, but buyers lacked the confidence they showed last week, and there was some reinstating of recently covered short lines. July was sold and September bought by spreaders.

Winter wheat crop is improving and the trade is starting to look forward to the next reports showing a larger yield than a month ago. The Nat C. Murray-Clement Curtis midmonth report suggested a crop of 265,000,000 bu. in Kansas, Oklahoma, Nebraska and Texas, or 10,000,000 bu. in excess of the government May returns, and only 9,000,000 bu. under last year's harvest. The Nebraska midmonth report was also construed as bearish. Further rains were reported in the American and Canadian northwest.

Corn Futures Weaken.

A belief that fair weather would follow the recent heavy rains and permit resumption of field work had a depressing effect on corn futures and the close was ⅝@1¼c lower, with May, 79⅝c, and July, 81¼@81¼c to 81⅝c. Commission houses and locals were on the selling side while support came mainly from holders of bids and on resting orders. A decrease of 3,072,000 bu. in the visible supply had some effect at one time as the total is 13,787,000 bu. against 19,481,000 bu. last year. Country offerings to arrive fair, and eastern demand a little slow. Buenos Ayres finished ½c lower to ¼c higher.

Scattered liquidation was on in oats and prices declined to close at net losses of ⅛@1¼c, May being 41⅞c, and July, 40⅞@41. Receipts of 145 cars reflected the arrivals of grain brought here from Milwaukee and other points for delivery on May contracts and offerings in the sample market were small. The visible supply decreased 1,238,000 bu. for the week.

Bulk of the trade in rye was in spreading between the various deliveries. Some stop loss orders were caught on the way down with the finish 1⅝@1⅞c lower, with May, 59¾c, and July, 63⅛@63⅝c.

PRODUCE MARKETS

Spot butter prices were lowered ¾c to make sales while fresh eggs were ½c lower. Live heavy hens were steady to 1c higher and ducks, 1c lower. Receipts 5 cars by freight. New potatoes easier with a less aggressive demand. Sales were at $3.40@3.70 per 100 lbs. Receipts, 139 cars with 186 cars on team track. Old potatoes steady with russets at $3.65@3.75 per 100 lbs. Receipts 76 cars with 99 cars on team track.

NEW LOW ON BUTTER

Closing at 37⅜c November butter contracts touched a new low since 1921 on the Chicago Mercantile exchange. Heavy receipts and a drop of ⅜c in the spot market also drove May deliveries down ⅝c. Sales were 90 cars and receipts 18,724 tubs.

Early bullish enthusiasm in egg futures was nipped by reports of heavy storage and an easing spot market, resulting in a net decline of ⅝c in May and ¼c in November contracts. Sales were 108 cars and receipts, 44,861 cases.

Business Manager Lloyd S. Tenny of the exchange will discuss future trading in butter, eggs, and cheese at 7 p. m. tonight over WIBO. Prices follow:

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

An increasing disposition in favor of lower prices for wheat was more noticeable at the close. It was said that the short interest, the covering of which was largely responsible for last week's bulge, has been well evened up and the point was made that there was little help coming in from the outside to sustain the recent gains.

A feature in the visible supply statement in wheat was the reduction of 5,306,000 bu at the five largest points, of which 1,720,000 bu were at Chicago and 611,000 bu at Duluth. Some of this wheat may show up again in eastern lake ports and possibly part of the 970,000 bu reduction at Kansas City may reappear at gulf ports in a week or ten days. The total decrease in the visible for the week of 4,064,000 bu made a total reduction for two weeks of about 10,000,000 bu, the largest decrease for such a period so far this season. The total visible is 122,246,000 bu, against 103,326,000 bu last year. The high point of the season, reached Nov. 2, 1929, aggregated 194,915,000 bu, against 134,244,000 bu the same time last year. Reduction from the high point of the visible this season has been 72,669,000 bu, against 31,589,000 bu for the same time last season.

A proposition to have storage on grain in public houses collected monthly instead of when the grain is withdrawn from store was before members of the Board of Trade yesterday and was adopted by a vote of 406 to 89. This is subject to approval by the Illinois commerce commission.

ABANDONS PLAN TO LIQUIDATE AS REALTY OUTLOOK IMPROVES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 19.—Because of recent improvement in the real estate outlook, with which its remaining subsidiaries are chiefly concerned, the National American company's plan to liquidate, repeatedly postponed, has been finally abandoned, John A. Dilliard, vice president, revealed in the 1929 annual report, out today.

Coincidentally, the report revealed net income of $1,645,534 after taxes and writeoffs for losses and depreciation in investments, the latter totaling $1,250,000. The net income is equal to $1.68 a share on the 977,047 shares of capital stock outstanding. The stock has been selling around $8.25 a share on the curb. A book value of $20.24 a share is shown for this stock in the balance sheet.

Denies Any Reciprocal Agreement with Armour

Washington, D. C., May 19.—(AP)—The Waugh Equipment Co., Depew, N. Y., today filed a statement with the federal trade commission denying that it had profited through a reciprocal agreement with Armour & Co. The commission had issued a complaint charging that Armour & Co. had promised railroads additional traffic if the road would purchase draft gears and other equipment from Waugh.

What Is Capital?

Improvements or enlargements in plant facilities are capital investments. When they accrue in large units, they are recognizable. But what of the thousands of small units swelling into a portentous total in a year's time? American Appraisal Service, continuous and precise, recognizes, checks, and controls both the small and the large, assures accuracy of plant accounts and of earnings.

AMERICAN COMMONWEALTHS POWER CORPORATION

Annual Report

The Annual Report of American Commonwealths Power Corporation and its five major subsidiary companies reflects the extent of its operations as one of the major public utility systems of the country.

The development of gas and electric generating and distribution facilities has continued throughout the year at an unprecedented rate, in response to a steadily increasing demand for gas and electricity for domestic and industrial purposes in the areas served.

The acquisition of additional utility properties, conservatively financed, has added to the diversity of services and the stability of earnings which make for strength in the investment of securities of this System, now serving a population estimated at over 2,600,000 in 383 communities.

The expansion of the System has been made only after careful analysis and selection of properties with a view to operating in territories offering potential opportunities for growth, both as regards population and industry.

A history of American Commonwealths Power Corporation, its earnings, statistical data, and services rendered are contained in the Annual Report for the year 1929, just issued, which will be sent to those interested upon request.

America's steady customer and a good neighbor

BRAZIL has an estimated national wealth of 16 billion dollars. The value of her annual imports from the United States has mounted steadily to $117,511,000 in 1928.

A large increase in the use of electric power has accompanied the commercial expansion of Brazil, which has available water power estimated at 25,000,000 horsepower. With the turning of this great natural resource into electrical energy vast undeveloped areas will be released to agriculture and industry.

Plants of Intercontinents Power Company, located at points of great commercial activity, serve 112 cities and towns in Brazil, Argentina and Chile. An investment in the securities of Intercontinents Power Company is an investment in the steadily mounting prosperity of these principal South American republics.

STOCKS APPEAR TO DRIFT DOWN FROM INERTIA

ditions. Also the announcement that Du Pont had extended rights to stockholders to buy new shares. Or other bits of industrial news. None of them got a tumble.

Issues which always assert their leadership when the market is going somewhere were soggy—or worse. U. S. Steel managed to keep around 170 most of the day, but finally gave way and finished at 168½, a net loss of 4¾ points. General Electric found the going tough from the outset and slid off more than 3 points. Radio, Johns-Manville, American Can, Consolidated Gas, Westinghouse and most of the other pivotals took a pommeling, losing from 2 to 5 points.

Nondescripts Tumble.

Nondescript stocks went tumbling all about. U. S. Frenght dipped 9¾ points. American Machine and Foundry declined 5.

The amusements as a group sold rather steadily. Loews, Inc., was called upon to absorb a good deal of selling in the way of realizing from all appearances. The stock has recently been one of the outstanding strong spots among the amusement shares on reports that an increase in the dividend was in prospect at the directors' meeting held today. Evidently some traders sought to "cash in" in advance of any good news that might develop. Fox and Warner were both on the run.

Radio showed strong resistance to recurrent efforts to bring about fresh reaction in that issue. The stock ruled in a narrow range, with sporadic selling being absorbed in more or less confident manner. According to a report current in some quarters, interests who have long sponsored the stock in the market stand ready to afford it stanch support against any bear effort. One story had it that support orders are in the market in large volume not far under present prices.

Rail Profit Taking.

Profits were taken somewhat freely also in low priced rails by those who felt the recent rise had been a bit premature and who feared the adverse effects of unfavorable earnings statements which will appear later in the week. Missouri-Kansas-Texas was an exception to the general weakness, some traders being willing to bet on a dividend at the directors' meeting next Wednesday.

Farm implement shares took a hard flop. Case Threshing Machine dropped 12 points, International Harvester dropped more than 3.

Crumbling money rates furnished about the only interesting development of the financial day. Call money was pegged at 3 per cent in spite of inability of banks to place funds outside the stock exchange at 2½ per cent. Elsewhere rates tumbled. Commercial paper settled to 3½ per cent for best names and two months time money softened to 3 per cent, the rate heretofore applicable only to thirty day money. Longer maturities also weakened. Meanwhile the bill market showed signs of declining again.

FORD MOTOR OF CANADA TO PAY EXTRA DIVIDEND

EAST WINDSOR, Ont., May 19.—(AP)—Directors of the Ford Motor company of Canada, Ltd., today declared a regular cash dividend of $1.20 a share and an extra cash dividend of 30 cents a share on common stock, payable June 23, to holders of record, June 2.

Net earnings of the company were $5,232,819 for 1929, compared with a net loss of $3,400,651 in 1928, Wallace R. Campbell, president, reported at the annual meeting of stockholders.

The increase in earnings, he pointed out, resulted from the return to normal operations in 1929 after abnormal charges in the preceding year incident to the introduction of new model cars and trucks.

The company's surplus as of Dec. 31, was $29,762,904, compared with $24,454,784 on Dec. 31, 1928. Total sales and other income in 1929 amounted to $59,840,535, compared with $47,083,132 in 1928.

Underwrite $34,020,000 Indian Government Bonds

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 19.—The underwriting of an issue of $34,020,000 worth of 6 per cent bonds by the government for India was announced today and took the stock market by surprise, causing a mild reaction among gilt edged stocks. The bonds were issued in 1919 and are redeemable at the latest in 1935, with the option that the India government may repay in 1933.

Estimated receipts at Chicago today, 6,000 cattle, 24,000 hogs, and 10,000 sheep.

A decrease in receipts sent all classes of live stock to higher price levels yesterday. Total arrivals at 71,000 were smallest of the year for Monday and compared with 91,900 a week ago. Cattle scored the sharpest "comeback" on abbreviated supplies, some classes of steers regaining as much as 25@50c of the recent loss.

Although trading in hogs on the cash trade was slow, prices were forced 10@15c higher and bulk of the day's sales were made on this basis. The extreme top showed 15c advance at $10.40, while the general average gained 10c at $10.10. Small packers and city butchers were fairly active buyers at the upturn, taking a combined total of about 11,000 hogs.

Larger houses bought sparingly, having about 14,000 direct from other points. Buyers were unable to erase the gain late, in view of the additional decrease in the supply estimated for today. Five markets expect 61,000, against 67,000 the previous Tuesday.

Hog Futures Steady.

Buyers were willing to pay steady prices for contracts on the hog futures market yesterday, but offers were all held higher in sympathy with the upturn in the cash trade.

May light were bid $10.35 and offered at $10.45. Bids for July ranged up to $10.30 and for September, $10.50, which was also bid on September mediums. Light weights for today's delivery were bid $10.40 on the "to arrive" market.

Mediums and heavy steers showed most gain on yesterday's sharp bulge in the market, while plain quality light weights were up the least. Prime 1,550 lb steers topped the price list at $14.35, and 1,408 lb averages were sold at $14.10. A load of 1,090 lb yearlings reached $13.75.

The bulk at $10.25@12.50 was above any day last week. Butcher stock sold strong to 25c higher. Best calves held steady, while others sold weak to 50c lower. Stockers and feeders were slow to sell.

Lambs in Demand.

Lambs met good demand at strong to 25c higher prices yesterday, resulting in an early clearance of all good grades. The shortage was general, the seven principal points showing a decrease of nearly 20 per cent compared with a week ago.

A scattering of native spring lambs of choice quality reached $11.00@11.50, while desirable California springers sold at $10.75@10.85 and well finished shorn lambs brought $9.75. The supply of wool lambs consisted largely of "tail end" shipments of Colorados that sold at $9.00@9.85. Aged and yearling sheep were scarce and steady.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 6,000 cattle, 24,000 hogs, and 10,000 sheep, against 4,220 cattle, 22,137 hogs, and 20,312 sheep, the previous Tuesday, and 5,396 cattle, 15,657 hogs, and 14,129 sheep a year ago.

SURFACE LINES REPORT APRIL DROP IN RIDES

There was a decrease of 7,851,663 rides on surface car lines in April as compared with the same month in 1929, according to the monthly report of the Chicago Surface Lines. The total rides for the month were 129,466,296.

Gross earnings for the month were $4,981,987, a decrease of $302,274 as compared with April, 1929, and residue receipts were $904,616, a decrease of $218,192.

During the first four months of the year there has been 7.38 per cent decrease in riding as compared with the first four months of 1929. The total of all wages paid during April was $3,749,883. Divisible receipts were $108,330 as the city's 55 per cent share and $88,633—the company's 45 per cent share.

INCREASES SCHEDULE.

The Electric Auto-Lite company of Toledo, O., has increased its May production schedule 15 per cent over April, in which, it was announced, a new record for the company was established in producing lighting, starting, and ignition units.

HIGH COURT MAKES IMPORTANT RULING ON RAILROAD RATES

Washington, D. C., May 19.—(AP)—The important ruling was made today by the Supreme court that federal courts are without authority to prevent state railroad rates from taking effect pending action on them by the interstate commerce commission.

The decision was handed down in an appeal brought by the North Dakota board of railroad commissioners, to set aside an injunction granted by a federal court, preventing North Dakota from putting into effect in July, 1929, lower distributing or jobbing class rates between certain points in that state.

The North Dakota commissioners were supported by the public service commissions of thirty-seven other states.

The court pointed out that injunctions by federal courts restraining state railroad rates from taking effect until acted on by the interstate commerce commission would have the effect of indefinitely tying the hands of such state commissions.

The Great Northern and other railroads challenged the new state rates before the interstate commerce commission, contending that the reductions ordered would discriminate against interstate commerce.

The new rates were to take effect in July, 1929, but the railroads obtained from a statutory three judge federal court an order suspending them until the interstate commerce commission could pass on them.

COTTON CLOSES HEAVY

Strength in the cotton market was mainly at the start yesterday, due to higher Liverpool cables and reports of light to heavy rains in the western belt, and light to moderate precipitation in the eastern section. Apparent lack of new buying power, with a little more pressure from the selling side, depressed prices irregularly and made a close at around the lowest figures of the day, with net losses of 24 to 31 points in the new crop futures, of which 24 to 30 points were in Chicago. Old crop deliveries were off 15 to 27 points in Chicago and 8 to 12 points in New Orleans, 18 to 22 points in New York.

A government report, giving the revised cotton acreage for 1929, will be issued today. Exports of cotton since Aug. 1 aggregate 6,396,840 bales, against 7,549,021 bales for the same time last year. Prices follow:

BUSINESS TREND SEEN "BETTER" BY SECY. LAMONT

Basic Commodity Prices Indicate Conditions.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 19.—[Special.]—Underlying business conditions, as indicated by stocks and prices of basic commodities, are "getting better," Secretary of Commerce Robert P. Lamont declared today in an interview setting forth his interpretation of the latest statistics gathered by the commerce department.

At this time of year in 1921 business was approximately 22 points below the line of normal growth, while today conditions are only six points below that line, which itself is at a higher point than it was nine years ago, Mr. Lamont said. Basic conditions now, he averred, "are much better than they were in 1921 and if business improvement continues at its present rate we shall be back to the line of normalcy within a few months."

Points to Department Stores.

Asked how the buying public is reacting to President Hoover's call to carry on as usual, Secretary Lamont pointed to recent federal reserve board statistics showing that department store sales in April were 8 per cent larger than in April, 1929.

Bituminous coal stocks were the lowest this spring of any spring back to 1920, while wool prices were better than for many years, Mr. Lamont asserted. He added that metals were showing "a decidedly stiffening trend and that the curve of commodity prices was showing" a decided tendency to flatten out, preparatory to an upturn. The steel industry, he said, he expected to carry on for some time at the present rate.

"Contracts awarded in April for public works and utilities construction projects amounted to $149,670,000, compared to $105,350,000 in March and $152,127,000 in April, 1929, which was an unusually high month," the secretary continued. "For the year to date, this type of contracts has totaled $452,910,000, an increase of more than 30 per cent over the total of $347,750,000 for the first four months of 1929.

Gives Building Figures.

"Total construction contracts in April amounted to 483 million dollars, representing the largest month since August of last year. The total was, however, 25 per cent less than the unusually large record for April, 1929, and for the first four months of the year total awards declined 17 per cent from the corresponding period of 1929."

On the subject of foreign trade, Mr. Lamont expressed the opinion that recent decreases reflected lowered world purchasing power and in this connection pointed to depressed prices for staple imports, such as rubber, coffee, sugar, wool, and tin.

INSULL, WRIGLEY, AND M'CULLOUGH WATCH DIGGING

John R. Thompson Starts Expansion Move.

BY AL CHASE.

Samuel Insull, William Wrigley Jr. and Charles A. McCulloch watched John R. Thompson Jr. yesterday afternoon dig the first shovelful of dirt in the ground breaking ceremonies for the new two story John R. Thompson building at the northwest corner of Clark street and North avenue. Mr. Insull shook hands with Mr. Thompson and congratulated him on his $1,000,000 expansion program, when the shoveling was completed.

"We believe the employment of labor in our expansion program will contribute a measurable share toward prosperity," said Mr. Thompson, president of the John R. Thompson company. "During the last six weeks the increase of our business in the forty-two cities in which we operate indicates that business has turned the corner and we can reasonably expect a return to a more normal basis within the next few months.

To Be Ready in Four Weeks.

The site selected as the initial activity in the expansion program is valued by Mr. Thompson at $600,000. It extends from Clark to La Salle, on the north side of North avenue. The new building will occupy the corner and extend north to the Moody tabernacle. It will front 160 feet on North avenue. The cost is placed at $175,000. Loebl, Schlossman & Demuth are the architects.

The Krahl Construction company has the general contract and according to William F. Krahl, head of the concern, 200 men will be employed in three shifts with the expectation of having the building completed in four weeks. The new Thompson restaurant, to be in black and gold, will open on Aug. 1st.

To Build 43 Flats.

Royal O. Mortensen, architect, is drawing plans for a forty-three apartment building which he and Harry Gould are to erect at the southwest corner of Hermitage and Thorndale avenues, on a site 60x148. The building probably will cost in the neighborhood of $225,000, according to the Westman Mortgage and Investment company, which represented all parties in the site acquirement.

The corner, which is valued at $45,000, was secured by Mr. Mortenson in exchange for the twenty-one apartment building at 5628-36 North Spaulding avenue, lot 90x125, from B. John Hultgren. The new apartments to be erected by Mr. Mortenson and Mr. Gould will probably be ready for occupancy by December. The suites will have four and five rooms.

Some 5,000 visitors, including many leading Chicago bankers and several from New York, were guests yesterday at the formal opening of the Northern Trust company's enlarged home at La Salle and Monroe streets. A number of the bank's oldest customers exchanged reminiscences as they wandered through the various departments. Martin A. Ryerson, the only member of the bank's original board of directors still to be on the job, was one of the most interesting figures at the opening. One feature that drew the attention of the visitors was the officers' dining room. The walls and fireplace of this room were taken from the dining room of the old Prairie avenue mansion of Byron Smith, founder of the bank and father of the president, Soloman A. Smith.

Another ceremony took place at Wabash and Congress when the doors were opened of the newly merged Congress Trust and Savings bank and the Transportation bank for business. The institution is to be known by the former name. Many people dropped in during the day to congratulate Philip F. W. Peck, chairman of the board, and William Fuller Gregson, president. Incidentally, two officers are among the youngest bank heads in the loop. Mr. Peck is 40 and Mr. Gregson is 32.

A. K. Atkinson, St. Louis, assistant to the president, has been added to the board of directors of the Wabash railroad company.

The highest price paid for a Board of Trade membership in recent months was reached yesterday on a sale at $20,500, or an advance of $4,400 in two weeks, and $500 over the previous sale. Bernard S. Ettelson, Chicago insurance broker, was the buyer.

J. W. Flannery, general traffic manager of the Kroger Grocery and Baking company, has accepted the position of assistant traffic manager of Frisco lines at St. Louis.

Associated Dyeing & Printing Corporation

PLAN AND AGREEMENT

Substantial amounts of Notes and Common Stock have already been deposited. In order to afford a further opportunity for holders of Notes and Common Stock to participate, the time within which Notes and Common Stock may be deposited without penalty has been extended until the close of business on JUNE 2, 1930. Deposits must be made with Bank of Manhattan Trust Company at its principal office, No. 52 Cedar Street, New York City.

Subscription rights, as provided in the Plan, may also be exercised at the time of deposit until the close of business on June 2, 1930.

The Corporation has defaulted in the payment of the interest and sinking fund instalment due May 1, 1930, on its Ten Year 6% Notes. In the judgment of the Committee, any proceedings which may be taken to enforce the Corporation's obligations, without a Plan agreed upon by the owners of the mass of the securities, will be greatly detrimental to the interests of noteholders and stockholders. Concert of action on their part is urgently required.

Holders of Notes and Common Stock who desire to participate in the benefits of the Plan should deposit the same with the Depositary at once.

Copies of the Plan and Agreement may be obtained from the Secretary of the Committee or from the Depositary under the Plan.

SYNOPSIS.

Catherine West of Boston, on her way to Paris, meets Geoffrey Macadam in the Havre to Paris train. Macadam is an Englishman who lives in Paris. Catherine tells him that she is going to visit her cousin's widow, Mme. Belmont Bender. She is a little apprehensive about the coming visit because she had received, just before sailing, a letter from Germaine Cushing, who tells her that Mme. Bender is far from well. Macadam is a banker, and he tells Catherine that his firm handles Mme. Bender's affairs, but he doesn't know the widow very well. He had heard that she was ill. Arrived in Paris, Catherine is a little disappointed when her cousin's chauffeur is not at the station to meet her. Geoffrey sees her into a taxi, giving her his address and telephone number. He tells her that he will be anxious to know how things are at the Bender apartment and she promises to call him. Arrived at Mme. Bender's apartment, she is treated coldly by the servants, and Jeanne, Mme. Bender's maid, suggests that she go to a hotel. Catherine insists on staying in the apartment, as she is suspicious of the servants. Jeanne tells her that Mme. Bender attempted to commit suicide the night before. The next morning Catherine goes in to see Germaine Bender, who is pathetically glad to see her. She tells Catherine how she had taken poison by mistake.

Geoffrey invites Catherine to dine with him, and it is a relief for her to get out of the apartment and to tell him of her vague fears. He is disturbed, too. Geoffrey escorts her back to the apartment. The door is locked, but Geoffrey arouses Eduardo, who says he thought Miss West had come in long before.

The next morning Catherine calls on Miss Cushing, who takes her to her milliner, then she sees a man she has noticed hanging around the Bender apartment. Back in the apartment, she finds the gallery open for the first time and she goes in, only to discover a number of pictures and tapestries missing. She asks Jeanne about them and the maid says they were sold shortly before Mr. Bender's death. Catherine feels she is lying and believes she and Eduardo are thieves. She finds Jeanne is exerting a baneful influence over Mme. Bender. She denounces Catherine to the invalid. Catherine is determined to stay on in the apartment.

INSTALLMENT XLIV.

INVESTIGATION.

Catherine wondered if she were making a foolish mistake. Perhaps she was wrong to meddle in things which did not concern her. If so, now was the moment to withdraw.

For a moment Catherine wavered, meanwhile putting her lingerie into a drawer, laying the crisp plaits in place with fingers which shook. Then as she straightened up she caught sight in the mirror of Jeanne's close set brown eyes watching her every moment with an attention all too acute. In a flash her spirit rose to arms. Turning, she met the steadfast gaze with a kind determination to fight the affair to a finish.

"I am not going to Italy, Jeanne," she declared shortly. "In fact, I do not intend to leave for some time. I do not intend to trouble madame, but I expect to remain in this apartment for some months."

She saw the ragged brows shoot up, the nostrils widen with displeasure. A brief pause ensued while, like two fencers, the two eyed each other, wary and watchful. When the delayed reply came it was uttered in a tone of studied indifference, cold and calm.

"Ah? Ca m'étonne. . . . Bien—c'est entendu, alors."

Meantime in the Rue Auber investigations were going on with commendable thoroughness. Macadam himself telephoned to various well known picture dealers to inquire, first, the approximate price a still-life of Manet was likely to fetch in the market, and, second, whether at any recent time a Manet belonging to Harry Belmont Bender had passed through their hands. To the former question he received definite figures, quoted from sales, while the answer to the latter was an unequivocal negative. One of the dealers expressed surprise to learn that the painting had changed hands.

"I have discovered the young person, monsieur," Bernard began in his hollow accents.

"Monsieur Bender made a number of deals through me," he said. "In 1924 I sold a Renoir for him and got an excellent price for it. At the time he asked me to value his collection, including the Manet you speak of, and it was my impression that nothing was further from his thoughts than to part with it. As a matter of fact, I made him an offer, which he refused."

The dealer went on to say that if M. Bender's widow had disposed of the picture she must have done so with extraordinary secrecy, for when a work of so great importance changed owners all the world of art connoisseurs got to know about it. As to the possibility of its having left the country, it was rare nowadays that such a thing could happen without being found out. The port authorities were exceedingly strict. Occasionally some canvas slipped through, but each year it became increasingly difficult.

Macadam hung up the receiver and scratched his ear thoughtfully. It began to look as though there were something in the American girl's story after all, though he must not jump to conclusions. He had yet to hear the notaire clerk's report following his perusal of certain files, and there remained the study of his late client's pass book, about which he had written to the bank in the Place Vendome. If any sum sufficiently large had been deposited during the weeks preceding Bender's death it would tell a different tale. However, for the present there was nothing more to be done.

He had no suspicion of the fact that his son was pursuing another line of inquiry, and if he had been aware of it would have censured him severely for what he would have considered quixotic conduct. However, that the mysterious Blom was not altogether absent from his thoughts was proved by a remark he made to Geoffrey the following day.

"This notary fellow," he observed ruminatingly. "Thinking things over, it occurs to me there may be a fairly plausible explanation for his behavior the other night."

"What's that?" inquired the young man sharply.

"Why, blackmail. He may have something on those servants which he's using to force them to pay up. Have you thought of that?"

Geoffrey's eyes gleamed.

"Then you admit they are thieves," he replied shrewdly.

"I'm admitting nothing yet. I only say it's a possible solution." Whereupon he detailed for his son's benefit the result of his conversations with the dealers.

Geoffrey listened with interest.

"Good!" he exclaimed. "I confess that's what I expected. If you knew Ruth—Miss West as well as I do you'd know she's not a girl to be easily flustered."

His father offered no comment on this, contenting himself with saying, "At all events, we are still a long way from proving our case, and till we do so we can't make any arrests. It's ticklish trying to prosecute a woman's servants when she herself thinks they are perfect. We may not be thanked for our pains."

Alone, Geoffrey considered the blackmail suggestion and rejected it. The idea was firmly rooted in his head that Blom was in league with Jeanne and Eduardo, but that the latter two had exceeded his instructions. The crafty, enigmatic face of the Alsatian fitted in well with his theory of the receleur, as did the man's recent visit to Bordeaux.

It was not till Saturday, however, that he heard anything from the inquiry agent, Bernard, and meanwhile, although he had spoken to Catherine on the telephone, there had been nothing to tell her. As soon as the agent's message reached him he hurried to the Rue Blanche to find his funereal visitor awaiting him in the dusty office.

"I have discovered the young person, monsieur," Bernard began in his hollow accents, "and have made her acquaintance. In fact, I have seen her twice. At first she was inclined to be a little offhand and suspicious, but I believe I have overcome all that. So far she has told me nothing of use, but I have strong hopes that she may know something, if only I can get at her properly. She has promised to accompany me tomorrow evening to a café, on which occasion I shall do my best," and he coughed modestly behind his hand.

They discussed the matter for a few minutes, then on a sudden inspiration Geoffrey made a suggestion which the other after a little thought agreed to.

"Ah, that, monsieur, is hard to say. But, while she does not seem to be a young woman of very deep feelings, I take it that in her position she may easily be vindictive. If so, it may mean luck for us."

It was with a feeling of adventure that Geoffrey arrived at one o'clock on Sunday to find Catherine ready and waiting for him. It was a warm, glorious April day, and after the outer sunshine the apartment struck him as gloomily depressing, but the girl herself appeared the very embodiment of spring. She had put on a frock of delicate green crêpe de chine, the color of young leaves, and her face was framed by a small felt hat of the same shade. Round the base of her throat lay the flat necklace of plaited gold which suited her so well, while her gloves and slender plain pumps were of gray suede. No one, Geoffrey reflected, had ever looked so fresh, so neat, so irreproachably immaculate. His head swam a little as he took her hand in his and let his eyes wander over her from head to foot.

Good Morning!

"Mamie was a girlie, Mamie was her name;
Everywhere that Mamie went, something went the same.
She took well at parties, very well in fact;
Mamie was a klepto-mamie—klepto-maniac . . ."

Remember that old one?

Well, Gertie of this picture is a girlie and Gertie is her name and everywhere that Gertie [or Marie as she is known] goes, something goes the same—only Gertie is no kleptomaniac. She's just a pretty thief who, in the guise of a French lady's maid wins the confidence and loots the safes of her various mistresses.

All goes merrily till Gertie meets a handsome blade, who, also has taking ways and who gallantly spends a year in jail to save her alluring self from pining behind prison walls. THEN she does some thinking. She decides she would like to be good and, with Jimmy travel the straight and narrow way. Jimmy approached, is not agreeable. He loves to open safes. But—well—Detective Kelcey is on the side of Gertie and right . . .!

Talkies Change Star System, Producing Organization Finds

Problems of the moving picture world are being discussed by some 250 members of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer organization which is holding its seventh annual convention at the Drake hotel. The first meeting of the convention, which is to close Wednesday, was opened yesterday by Felix F. Feist, general manager of the company. He paid tribute to the memory of Marcus Loew, its former president.

Members attending the convention are from the production, sales, and theater operating departments. One point was emphasized in yesterday's discussion. It was said the public now demands plays with actors best suited to the rôles they are to take, rather than scenarios built to show off a popular star to the best advantage.

LONDON, May 19.—[Special.]—Simultaneously with the arrival of Adolph Zukor, president of the Paramount-Famous-Lasky corporation, in London tonight, there were revealed big American plans afoot to make films in Britain.

First in the field is the Fox Film corporation, which is credited with a $20,000,000 scheme for linking up with the Gaumont-British company in the construction of two super studios to produce films of the same quality as those shown in the United States. Many English artists now working for the Fox company in Hollywood, it is said, will come to England to assist in the production of the latest talkies.

Meanwhile British film renters are initiating a movement for increasing the quota of British films in movie theaters here.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 19.—[Special.]—Richard Bennett, conservative leader, suggested to the Candian government on the floor of the dominion house of commons here today that by legislation it prevent the absorption of the Famous Players Canadian corporation into any American monopoly.

Mr. Bennett asked if the present condition were not an infringement of the Canadian combines act. The prime minister declared the labor department was investigating.

The Inquiring Reporter

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Question.

Would you like to live your sweetheart days over again?

The Answers.

Mrs. Frank Wood, La Grange, Ill., housewife.—Yes. Why not? I was young and those were sunny days twenty years ago in Kansas where men are men, but of course the moon and the flowers had something to do with it.

John F. Walsh, 6 North Clark street, stocks salesman.—Yes, for they are among the finest and most influential experiences that come to man. Those days build an emotional reserve that keeps during the stresses and storms that enter at times into every married man's life.

Mrs. A. G. Pernin, 1590 North State street, French teacher. — I certainly would. They meant a lot of good times. I have been married twice: once in France and once here. The one in America was much the happier of the two. It was a crushing blow when Mr. Pernin died only eighteen months after we were married.

Robert W. Hoffman, 622 Gary place, landscape engineer. — Though married, I am still living in my sweetheart days. Some persons in their sweetheart days pass through many vicissitudes—temporary disagreements. Ours were happy. I married a southern woman, and they always are romantic.

Mrs. Marie Taylor, 3118 Sheffield avenue, pantry girl. — Who wouldn't? I am a divorced woman, that is why I realize it fully. My sweetheart days were those romantic days when as a girl in the hills of Kentucky I was in love with a man whom I thought was ideal. But he was not to be my husband. The man whom I later married was a mistake.

North Shore's Musical Fete Lutkin Triumph

BY EDWARD MOORE.

This is Peter C. Lutkin's commencement week, as far as the North Shore music festivals are concerned. Consequently, the festival in progress at Patten gymnasium of Northwestern university this week is to be even more in his honor than in past years.

They made an unusual event of it for last night's opening. For one special feature, Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink came on to sing, a tribute to Mr. Lutkin and the fact that she had sung in the first festival given in Evanston in the year 1909. For another Allen Albert appeared on stage during the intermission to announce that the university plans a special memorial to Dean Lutkin—it is to be in the form of a new music building, a cathedral of music, under the name of Presser hall, but an important part of the interior will be the Lutkin auditorium.

There will be the university musical events of the future, continuing the work so energetically carried on in the past by Dean Lutkin. The building is to cost $700,000. Of that sum, it was said, more than half already is in sight.

Musically, the important item of the evening was the appearance of Mme. Schumann-Heink. Before and after that Mr. Lutkin conducted the festival chorus of 600 and the Chicago Symphony orchestra in a series of excerpts from some of the world's most famous choral compositions by Handel, Brahms, Bach, and Verdi. Before and after that, also, Nanette Guilford, soprano of the Metropolitan opera, had sung solos.

A scene from "Elijah" was given with Frederic Baer as soloist. The orchestra and these two artists combined with Alvene Resseguie and William O'Connor in a quartet from Verdi's requiem mass. Also, and this was particularly charming, Mr. Lutkin had directed his a cappella choir through a series of motets by Palestrina.

But when Mme. Schumann-Heink, famous veteran of the state of opera and concert, appeared, audience and chorus with one accord rose to their feet, just as they had risen to their feet when Mr. Lutkin appeared at the beginning of the concert. The great contralto sang arias from "St. Paul" and "Elijah," both by Mendelssohn, but the audience refused to let her go. After repeated recalls, she summoned her accompanist and began upon another composer for whom she is a renowned specialist, in other words Schubert.

If I am asked how she sang, I can only answer that she sang like an angel. Perhaps there is not as much power in her voice as there was when she sung Delilah upon that stage 21 years ago, but the extraordinary quality was there and so was the no less extraordinary art.

The nobility, the breadth with which she announced her melodic phrases probably are her own secret, and only an artist such as she is could hope to equal them. But it would be a good thing for every young singer in the land to observe the respect with which she treated the English language, how clearly she wrought each syllable, how plainly she projected it to the back rows of the enormous hall in which she appeared.

There will be a concert by the symphony orchestra tonight with Frederick Stock conducting and Claire Dux, soprano, and Percy Grainger, pianist, as soloists. Mr. Grainger will also direct the orchestra in two works by himself.

THE STAGE

"SOLID SOUTH."

THE CAST.

Geneva.....Elizabeth Patterson
Bam.....Mary Thayer
Leila Mae.....Jessie Royce Landis
Maj. Follonsby.....Richard Bennett
Patience.....Georgette Harvey
Rex.....Owen Davis Jr.
Elijah.....Richard Huey
Edward Garrison.....Arthur Hohl
Jasper.....Lew Payton

The three acts take place in the living room of the Follonsby home in a southern city.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

RICHARD BENNETT, vivid actor of virile and voluble rôles, is here again, displaying his picturesque art of characterization in a comedy of light irony called "Solid South." Last night's première at the Harris suggests that the waning list of playbills has secured a title that may stand until well into the summer.

The piece is cleaner and quieter than Mr. Bennett's rough and roaring vehicles of the last few years. It has charm to compensate for the shagginess of "Jarnegan" and "The Barker." It is slender of structure; there is not much dramatic meat upon its bones; but it gives Mr. Bennett opportunity for a fine full length portrait of a choice type of the vanishing American, Dixie style, which he paints with fidelity and gusto. Here, then, is one of our best actors, admirably suited. If the play were by Chekhov and given in Russian, fashion would require that the opening be reported in esthetic ecstasy.

This piece, staged with distinction and interpreted with skill, lays the impertinent hand of modernism upon some of the most sacred ideals of the deep south—in particular, the chivalry and grace of her decadent aristocracy. It deals with a family of slack, run down gentility, and especially with the head of the clan, Maj. Follonsby, a fire eater of the old school. It reveals the worthy major as a old dotard full of fine, hollow phrases and selfish motives; as a domestic tyrant, a nagger of his relatives, a cadger of drinks from his colored servants, a dead beat, a drunken bully, and when in his cups with a kink about the sex relations of his women folk in his moth eaten mind, a dangerous ruffian. But with all his faults, you continue to like him, for the rôle has been written, in spite of its irony, by a man who seems to respect his southern forebears, and Mr. Bennett acts it with amiable and ingratiating bravura.

The Follonsbys are a family that has followed the lead of its absurd and shiftless chieftain to the edge of ruin. The old home has been stripped of its finery; the ancestral plantation is mortgaged beyond redemption; and there is nothing to do but keep on borrowing until Miss Alabama, the granddaughter, finds a rich suitor. But they are content in their futile and hopeless way, feeding upon the major's gorgeous nonsense, until a pair of northerners, father and son, come visiting.

The young man's immediate infatuation with Miss 'Bam was like manna from heaven, but when his father begins to spark up to Leila Mae, widow of the major's war-lost son, the old war-horse snorts fire. Leila Mae's destiny, according to the major, is to consecrate her lovely matronhood to the memory of his boy and to be the prop of his declining years; so he gets drunk as a lord at dinner and draws a pistol on his guests, between speeches about southern hospitality.

But in the last act the ladies rebel and elope; and the major, fuming bitterly against Yankee vermin, condescends to accept from Leila May's new husband a sum of money in payment for his plantation grossly in excess of its value. In other words, he turns his southern buncombe into profit, but still keeps on sputtering the old line of nonsense. No shaft of satire was ever able to pierce the hide of the spavined war-horse. As the curtain fell he was still voting for Jefferson Davis, and talking like Joseph Hergesheimer about the moonlight and roses of the deep south.

Ms. Bennett's company gives him excellent support. Jessie Royce Landis plays Leila Mae with a delicate perfection of gush and flutter. Elizabeth Patterson is excellent as a spinster sister of the terrible major's. Every one in the cast is in an effective vein of realism blending into light satire.

John Morse, 14, Looks Back at His Tiger Hunts

Just Home from India, He Resumes Studies.

At fourteen young John Morse has behind him an adventure which most men never will experience in a lifetime—save through books about hunting.

Yesterday he arrived in Chicago after five months spent in traveling half way around the world to hunt tigers in India, to go a hundred miles through Nepal on the rolling back of an elephant with a Gurkha soldier perched in a houdha behind him and a retinue of natives beating the bush in search of man eating tigers.

On his way home he left his father, Col. Robert H. Morse, millionaire Chicago sportsman and official of Fairbanks, Morse & Co., in London and hurried on here to go to school. In London, too, he left a dozen pelts of tigers, leopards, deer and bear which had fallen before his gun. They will be cured and sent on to him here—handsome trophies for a boy of 14.

Today he will take up his studies where he left off last January when he left Chicago with his father.

The Morses, father and son, went first to Calcutta and then overland to Samalpur, 150 miles southwest. There they spent three weeks and bagged two sloth bears, captured two bear cubs, and shot a tiger, and some deer. It was there that John shot at his first tiger.

"Fun? It was great," he said as he talked of his experiences at his home at 179 Lake Shore drive. "But I have yet to see a tiger that doesn't make my knees knock together."

Back in Calcutta after this campaign the Morses renewed their supplies and hiked off 150 miles north to Nepal, a native province lying between Bengal and Tibet. Nepal is called the Forbidden country. White men are barred, except by special commission.

"Wonderful country; virgin timber, enormous trees for miles," John reminisced. "We passed some time at the home of a native general who was visiting his hill province—Shumsher Jung Bahadur was his name, a funny little fat man who had been at Oxford, I think.

"How many tigers did I get? Let's see—I got three; father got four, but I got the first one—a man eater. I might have got more, but my shaking knees interfered with my marksmanship. We rustled up the tigers by moving our elephants forward in the same direction and beating the bush. They figure that by this method the tiger has a 5 to 1 chance against the hunter. It's more sporting. Ringing or circling the tiger isn't sporting.

"I got one leopard, too. Father and the provincial officials with us passed him up. I spied him lying along side a log switching his tail and looking up at me about ten feet away—one leap away from me, really. I was thinking of letting him go for father, but there wasn't time. It took three shots to down him, but I hit him with all three. We were three weeks traveling across Nepal. Besides our elephants we had a new flivver. It was the first the natives had seen and they called it 'rallkabutcha'—cub of a steam engine."

From Nepal John and his father went to Peshwar which is 12 miles east of the Khyber pass. They left that city the night natives burned two British soldiers in an armored car.

"We saw some of the minor uprisings there," John said. "Once, mingling with the natives in a bazaar, we heard them singing their songs. They laughed and pointed and spat at us. They do nothing that would cause them to get arrested—you see, there's no law against spitting. But you'd die if you saw the 'gov'nor' being spit at!"

Staring at a tiger down the barrel of a gun has little terror for young John, but riding in an airplane is another matter. On the way back, flying from Marseilles to Paris, their French plane experienced engine trouble over some mountains and the pilot tried to land, decided against that and went on to Lyons.

"Think of trying to land in the Pyrenees" laughed John. "We got through all right. But I don't like flying."

A reporter last night left as John was thumbing through the amusement section of a newspaper in search of a jungle movie.

Healthy Boys City's Need for Future Success

Although not as spectacular as other observances of Boys' week, perhaps the most important was Boys' day in health yesterday.

Speakers from the Chicago Medical society, sponsoring the day's program, hammered at one basic theme to boys in schools, parks, playgrounds, settlements, boys' clubs and other institutions. That was the importance of a boy's health in relation to his future.

The leaders of tomorrow, it was pointed out, cannot be very successful leaders if their health is not up to normal.

Hundreds of boys visited the Coliseum, heard lectures, and viewed the exhibits at the health exposition yesterday.

Today will be Boys' day in school. There the value of an education will be stressed.

Teachers will turn their jobs over to boys for a part of the day at Crane Technical High school. At McKinley High school a band concert and a demonstration by the R. O. T. C. and the Boys' Athletic association will be given at 11 o'clock.

Morris Schwartz has been selected to act as principal at the Hibbard Junior High school. He also will preside at a special community meeting tonight. Irving Taff will act as assistant principal.

At the Lewis-Champlin school the annual Parents' day and exposition will be held today, with a pet show and other exhibits. At Ebinger school patrol drills, a play, music, and an address by Milton J. Cohler are planned.

Ever Overhaul Your Cosmetic Shelf? Try It

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

If you haven't your spring cleaning all done yet, it may not be too late to advise an overhauling of the cosmetic shelf or dressing table, or whatever you happen to keep your stuff on or in. In fact, whether the overhauling season is done or not, there is good reason still for getting order out of cosmetic chaos.

Just like your hat closet and your dress closet, your cosmetic shelf is probably loaded up with things you'll never use. Their presence on the shelf worries you. You ought to be using the tissue builder, the skin toner, the super-astringent—but you don't known which one of the products there you should use. So, to show no favoritism, also to alibi yourself, you say, "I'll use them all—tomorrow."

It is a notorious fact that the most heavily stocked wardrobe guarantees a badly dressed woman. So, the piled up cosmetic shelves almost as truly insure physical carelessness. The same confusion about what to take down to put on confronts the overstocked one. Fewer, better chosen articles in each case would turn out a smarter looking woman.

Find out first, if you do not know already, just what cosmetic articles you need. You won't need everything that's sold on the market. Set the chosen ones down in a row, in the order of their use, and when you sit down before your table have the orderliness of mind that the shelf now offers. There'll be your cleansing cream, your astringent, a skin freshening lotion, maybe, your powder jar with fresh white puffs, your makeup stuffs, your manicure outfit, and for the average one that's a sufficient supply. Additions to the row of jars and bottles are determined by the individual need.

Little Show Off Takes Over Years Between 3 and 6

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Yesterday was devoted to the almost babies of from 1 to 3 years of age. Today let's think about the next one of these changing aspects of childhood, which is from 3 to 6. Excepting exceptions, which we must always do to be at all safely general, let us see what it is normal to expect of children through these years, as far as their social life is concerned.

Having mastered his muscles pretty well, including the subtle ones of speech, and having satisfied his senses to a certain degree, the small child now discovers himself to be quite an individual. He likes other children, but hasn't mastered the technic of playing with them. He loves to be among them, but often playing as an individual; that is, he often likes to play alone while among others. He naturally likes his kind, but they don't necessarily understand each other.

Up to this point in his life he's been taken care of, protected—necessarily—by some one older than himself. That relationship of himself and an adult he understands. And so, for companions to really do things with, he's likely to have strong preferences—he's likely to choose for play or friends congenial grown people or older children, because with them he doesn't have to battle for his own way, while children of his own age show him little of the consideration he's been used to.

Often during these three years from 3 to 6, but usually during the latter part, comes a show off period. Personality develops apace—and that may require his being much in the picture.

So, if your little girl or boy shows characteristics like some of these, don't let them worry you. Don't think they're permanent. Provide for them the natural companionship of children their own age, even if they do continue to play separately, and let them feel their oats or show off a little without calling them silly or noticing it too much. They will eventually come to play smoothly together with children their own age. They will slough off the self-importance. But it all takes time.

Little Children Need a Tonic Now

Growing children use up much of the nutriment obtained from their food in building new bone and muscle and consequently often suffer from lack of nourishment.

Father John's Medicine contains the extra nourishment your child needs. It is a pure food tonic that builds new tissue, flesh and strength. Safe because free from alcohol and harmful drugs and proven by 75 years of success.

Miss Schmidt Junior League's New President

BY THALIA

Miss Dorothy Schmidt, who has been such an able guide of the destinies of the Junior league's children's theater for several years past, was elected the new president of the league at the annual meeting yesterday at the Woman's Athletic club. She succeeds Miss Helen Bournique who has been acting president since the resignation last December of Miss Sarane Otis.

Miss Helen Tieken is to assume Miss Schmidt's tasks and responsibilities anent the theater program. She is well qualified for the job as she is established in the technique of the drama in her studies at the University of Chicago. She also worked with the theater personnel this last winter.

The league's other new officers include Mrs. Press Hodgkins and Miss Roberta Harvey, vice presidents; Mrs. Robert Morrison, secretary; Miss Laura Jacoby, treasurer.

The new board of directors includes Miss Bournique, Mrs. James Beach Cyer, Mrs. John L. Cochran, Mrs. Stephen Y. Hord, Miss Angela Johnston, Mrs. Catherine Bartholomay Osborn, Mrs. John R. Winterbotham jr., Mrs. Edwin Welch, Miss Dorothy Wagner, Miss Tieken, and Miss Marianne Stevenson. Miss Stevenson is the only one of those who have not qualified for membership, to have a place on the board.

Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick is to open her residence at 1000 Lake Shore drive on Friday evening at 8:15 o'clock for a meeting of the Chicago chapter of the American White Cross antituberculosis association, at which Dr. W. A. Matthews, national president of the organization, is to speak. In the absence of Mrs. Hollister Sturgis, Charles S. Peterson is to preside.

About 20 of the Lake Forest boys, 12 to 14 years old, have finished work on the model yachts they have been working on all winter. They are to enter their handiwork in an intercity miniature regatta to be held at the Great Lakes Naval Training station next Saturday.

Other entrants are from Kenosha and Woodstock. There are to be several events, and many prizes, the Edward L. Baker trophy among them. The Lake Forest boys who are to be among the participants include Albert Dick III, Henry Preston, Lawrence and Edmund Dawson, John King, Billy Mann, Gordon Potter, John Bensinger, Edward Bluer, Jack Noble, Henry Hansen, Ralph Meyer, Kenneth Monahan, and John Bollinger, and several others.

Miss Edith Cummings and Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick are members of the board of governors of the National Woman's Country club in Washington, D. C. Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman, an outstanding figure in Washington society, was recently elected president. The club was organized less than a year ago, and its golf course is now under construction.

Other Chicago women who are members are Mrs. Ogden Armour, Mrs. Barry Channon, Mrs. Harry C. Holloway, Mrs. Frank J. Loesch, Mrs. Dana Miller, Mrs. William S. Monroe, Mrs. Ira Nelson Morris, Mrs. James W. Morrison, Miss Marjorie Ward, and Mrs. Wallace Winter.

Miss Martha Sarver of Lake Forest, who set out with Mrs. Albert L. Berry, a former Chicagoan, for a trip to the orient last September, has covered much territory since then, and will soon be sailing for home. Mrs. Berry went on to Paris several months ago, leaving Miss Sarver to dally a while in Italy. The latter spent Easter in Berlin, in company with Mrs. David Cook of Chicago and Miss Alice Gade, daughter of the Herman Gades.

Miss Caroline Kirkland of 175 East Walton place has moved out to her Lake Forest house. Her brother, John V. Kirkland, formerly of Johannesburg, South Africa, is to occupy her town apartment, and his daughter, Miss Esther Kirkland, is coming on from New York to be with him. Miss Kirkland's fiancé, Diarmud Russell, son of the famous Irish poet and writer, A. E., is engaged in business in Chicago now, with Mr. Kirkland.

The George D. McLaughlins and the Augustus A. Carpenters also have opened their respective Lake Forest places and moved out for the summer months.

Mr. and Mrs. John Coleman Jr. of Lake Forest have returned from a sojourn at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.

The William Burrys Jr. are back from a 6 months' trip in Europe and expect to be in their new Lake Forest residence in a short time. The new home is on Westminster avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. John R. Montgomery of Evanston announce the birth of a son, John Rogerson Montgomery III, at the Washington Boulevard hospital last Friday.

North's Woods Beckon to You in This Exhibit

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

John A. Spelman is the painter par excellence of the north woods. Some twenty canvases by him hang now in the Carson Pirie Scott gallery and form one of the most colorful and intriguing exhibits to be found in any Chicago gallery today. He paints in brilliant colors the beauty of autumn on the camping trail. He paints with a warm, rich palette the romance of the trout stream in midsummer.

In a few of the paintings Mr. Spelman breaks away from the forest and handles water, particularly water at night broken by the silver path of a shy moon, in a manner that has something of Blakelock and something of Ingerle in it. "Early Moonlight on Lake Superior" is filled with a radiant beauty, a poet's sonnet sprung to color, with its rippling waves fingered by the beams that break from a moon in hiding behind white fleecy clouds.

"Summer Day—Lake Superior" dawns on you like a trumpet call. The waves rush in and crash upon the rocks, doing away with all mystery and haunting thoughts by the direct challenge of their attack. "Forest Reflections" gives us water again, but this time a tranquil expanse lying at the feet of gorgeous trees. Like a vast tapestry this picture is and the water is crowded with reflections. Patterns in the trees, shadows in the water, the combination makes for an extremely decorative canvas.

More of the poetry of the artist is found, however, in some of the slighter paintings. For instance, there is a deep-woods glade with a trout stream bubbling over brown rocks to fall in cheerful surrender into a tantalizing pool where large trout love to hide. The yellows and greens and browns of the woods make it a laughing picture of summer at its best. "The Brook" again has deep warm color and an enthusiastic appeal to the fisherman.

"Old Home in the Smokies," "The Lone Traveler," "In the Blue Ridge Mountains," "Mountain Home," "Early Snow," these with the paintings of stream and lake sum up rather well the gamut Mr. Spelman's talent runs. They make a colorful, decorative, romantic and striking exhibit which will remain a long while in one's memory.

The exhibit will remain on view to June 1. The dog etchings by Marguerite Kirmse are in an adjoining room.

Birthday Cake.

Any cake base may be used, and the icing, garnishes and the symbolic items added to make a birthday cake. In other words, it is the decorations and not the cake that make it a birthday affair, and these vary all the way from the changing interests in childhood to those of old age. If a man loves horses, his birthday cake may have on top of it a sugar horse. If he is a banker his birthday cake may have on top of it a horn of plenty. If he is an automobile maker there will be signs and symbols representing this. If he is a governor the cake may be a replica of the state capitol. These are all statements of real facts that have occurred and it would be possible to make the list much longer. Suppose, then, we give at once a recipe that will produce a cake like one that was made for the President of the United States. We give this because we know this cake can be highly edible, and we have seen many a birthday cake that was like straw in the mouth.

Almond Sponge Cake: Chop one cup of blanched almonds, beat the whites and yolks of five eggs separately, beating into each half of the cup of well sifted sugar used. The yolks should be beaten until the mixture will ribbon and then the chopped nuts added to them. Fold the cup of flour which has been sifted with or without a teaspoon of baking powder several times into the beaten whites of the eggs. Put the two parts together lightly, add a half teaspoon of vanilla and the same of almond essence and bake about thirty-five minutes in an oven between 325 and 350. With large and strong ovens a temperature of 300 degrees might do.

The President's cake, which was made with these ingredients, was baked in layers, which were put together with marmalade. Most people prefer a cake with a cream filling.

When people were a little fussier about telling their age than they seem to be today, it was sometimes a custom to put one candle on the cake, and it was called "a long life candle," but when a man is a hundred and seven years old he likes to see all his candles aflame.

Man Tells Story of Wife Who Failed, Yet Got All the Breaks

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"How is it that women can go to court, tell terrific lies, be believed and get alimony they don't deserve?" asks Joseph, whose case, if true and it indeed may be, might inspire judges to put investigators to work on the worthiness of alimony claims.

Joseph's story is that his wife left him the first time for Europe, where she was gone two years. Before leaving, she sold all the furniture. Joseph was forced to live in a furnished room and eat in a lunch room, but he managed to save $1,500. Then the wife came back. She pleaded for a chance to start all over again.

The fifteen hundred was used to set up another menage. Pretty soon the cry Joseph got used to was for more money and more money. Joseph discovered that some of his money was being sent to a man in Europe so that he could buy a ticket to come over to this country.

There was a row. Again, the wife sold the furniture and left. One of the two boys she took with her, telling her husband the child was not his. The other she left behind with Joseph.

Again Joseph got a place to board, paid off the bills his wife had accumulated, and was getting on his feet when an appeal to be taken back again was received from the wife.

Joseph refused, this time. Refused to have anything to do with the woman. So off to court the lady went, told a story of abuse the judge believed and Joseph was ordered to pay $10 a week, the child that was not Joseph's, by the wife's own admission, being a consideration in the alimony sum.

With all of his domestic trouble, Joseph's work got bad, he tells, and he lost his job. His wife had him sent to the workhouse for failure to pay the alimony. She claimed to have no work though she was holding a job at the time and earning good pay.

When Joseph got a job again, he started paying the alimony, but he had been made out such an undesirable character that he was deemed unfit to take over his own son. Some children's society is holding the little boy.

"I'm paying her ten a week. I have to live in a garage to make expenses, and eat where I can. All my money is gone and I don't even get a home, and they give a woman like that the breaks."

Compton of Princeton university, President Glenn Frank of the University of Wisconsin, Coroner Bundesen, and Martin Insull.

Gardeners Respond to Flower Guild Plea for the Sick

Hundreds of donations of cut flowers spelled the formal opening yesterday of the Chicago Plant Flower and Fruit guild campaign asking flower growers among the guild memberships and women's clubs to share their flowers with the sick and the poor of Chicago.

The North Western station booth yesterday morning was in charge of Mrs. W. S. Underwood, secretary of the guild and general chairman of the booth; Miss Marie Doherty, in daily charge for the summer; and Mrs. W. J. Rowland and Mrs. C. A. Mumford of the Elmhurst Garden club.

Bouquets were distributed to the Visiting Nurses' association headquarters; thence they were carried into the homes of the sick; the Church Home for the Aged; Billings hospital and the University of Chicago settlement. The North Western booth will be open Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of each week this summer. Additional booths at other stations have this schedule: Illinois Central at Randolph street, every Tuesday; La Salle street station, Wednesdays; Aurora, Elgin and Chicago, Thursdays; and Union depot, every Friday.

If Baby has COLIC

A cry in the night may be the first warning that Baby has colic. No cause for alarm if Castoria is handy! This pure vegetable preparation brings quick comfort, and can never do the slightest harm. Always keep a bottle in the house. It is the safe and sensible thing when children are ailing. Whether it's the stomach, or the little bowels; colic or constipation; or diarrhea. When tiny tongues are coated, or the breath is bad. Whenever there's need of gentle regulation. Children love the taste of Castoria, and its mildness makes it suitable for the tiniest infant, and for frequent use.

And a more liberal dose of Castoria is always better for growing children than some needlessly strong medicine meant only for adult use. Genuine Castoria always has Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper. Prescribed by doctors!

Pique Ruff Collar Smartens Blue Suit

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—The scenery along the Paris streets is getting interesting, with the return to Paris of fashionable women. Chestnut trees on the Champs Elysées have new dresses of green leaves, and many chic ladies are coming out in green also. The brighter greens of fresh foliage make their appearance in sartorial street scenery, and these, with marine and firmament blue, are the preferred colors of the smartest women here.

Street costumes are trim and simple in effect. Skirts are moderately short. Jackets and jumpers are fitted and belted around Nature's waistlines.

Dark blue, which is the greatest favorite of all for street wear, comes in soft, smooth woolens, and is given a new air by the addition of some contrasting color. Wine red hats and flowers worn with dark blue make this a stunning and novel spring color harmony. Greens are treated to brown accessories and this also is a smart combination.

Many women, however, prefer white washable touches because of the daintiness they give to simple street clothes. A great deal of the artistry of Paris dressmakers is directed toward giving to white details a fashion news interest, and one of the best and newest ways of adding white details to the dark blue street dress is shown in the Augustabernard frock sketched here. This frock of dark blue wool crêpe has a fitted jumper blouse with a ruff collar of white piqué, arranged in bands.

WOMAN'S AND MISSES' DRESS.

The sleeveless capelet frock is probably one of the most wearable types of the season, especially if one of the lovely printed silk crêpes is chosen for it. The fitted basque bodice with button trim, and the snug line through the hips of the circular flaring skirt suggests the princess silhouette.

Plain crêpe silk in lobster red or iris blue chiffon, voile and georgette are also lovely for this dress.

The pattern, 2507, comes in sizes 14, 16, and 18 years, and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3¾ yards of 39 inch material with ¼ yard of 35 inch contrasting.

Willie came home from school one day while a visitor was talking to me and announced loudly that he had made 100 in geography that day.

Billy, observing his hostess arrange a plate of crackers in a most methodical manner, asked her, "Do you always fix your crackers like that?"

"Why, yes," she replied. "Doesn't your mother fix hers that way?"

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Paying the Bus Fare.

I had broken the catch on my handbag and left it downtown to be repaired. When I got ready to go to work I distributed several articles—lipstick, compact, memo, handkerchiefs, etc.—in my pockets. I took a dime out of my coin purse for fare, put the purse in my stocking and pinned it fast with a big safety pin. I had to stand in the bus aisle, well up in front—the only one standing. When the conductor came to collect my fare I tried to put my coin in the slot, but it wouldn't go. Imagine my surprise when I saw that my "dime" had turned into a "penny."

Then I had to unfasten the safety pin and get my purse. That was a hard thing to do with the bus going at top speed and every one staring at me. Then the worst happened! I tore a big hole in my new hose with the safety pin and sent a big runner down the front. Every one laughed then as though much amused.

FARM and GARDEN BY PAUL POTTER

How to admit that one is an amateur and yet go out into the garden area to study, plan and produce beautiful flowers is not difficult, if one follows the outline presented in a booklet, just recently revised and now off the press. It is a Chicago Tribune publication called "Flower Gardening," and can be obtained for 13 cents mailed to the Tribune Public Service Office or purchased for 10 cents at any Tribune Public Service Office.

Chasing the cucumber beetles out of one field into another is largely the secret of successful production where the insects are numerous, according to H. C. Huckett, entomologist of the experiment station farm at Geneva, N. Y.

That experimenters can easily outwit the pests despite the cucumber beetle's many sisters and brothers and cousins, was shown in trial control systems. Squash seedlings were planted in the cucumber field as "trap" plants. They were not treated with spray or dusted with poison powder and naturally the beetles congregated largely on the tender squash leaves. Then a blowtorch was used to destroy them.

Dusting is the easiest method of protecting the cucumber plants, it has been found. From the time the seedlings break ground until they are four to six weeks old is the period of greatest concern. The best mixture, it was found, was composed of one pound of calcium arsenate and 15 pounds of gypsum or land plaster. Hydrated lime may be used, but this increased the danger of plant injury where it is used in place of the gypsum.

Follow These Simple Rules

1—Every week-day for 48 consecutive days, (not including Sundays) the Chicago Daily Tribune will print a "Game of Counties" picture. Each picture will represent a County in one of these five States: Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan and Wisconsin. You are invited to name the Counties.

2—The Chicago Tribune will pay $5,000 in Cash Prizes to the persons who send in the nearest correctly named and neatest complete sets of pictures in accordance with these rules. See prize list at right.

NOTE:—You do not necessarily have to name each of the 48 pictures correctly to win. The prizes will be paid to the persons whose entries rank the highest.

3—This offer is open to everyone—men, women, boys and girls, except employes of the Chicago Tribune and their families. You pay nothing. Just prove your skill.

4—Pictures are to be submitted only in complete sets. Do not send in each picture separately. Hold all pictures until you have the complete set of 48. Then send them to "Counties," Chicago Tribune, Post Office Box 1539, Chicago, Ill. All entries must be in by midnight 15 days after Picture No. 48 has been printed.

5—Each entry must be sent by First Class Mail, postage prepaid. Entries with insufficient postage will be returned by the Post Office Dept. Contestants may submit as many sets of pictures as they wish, but no contestant will be entitled to more than one prize. Accuracy will count. Neatness will count.

6—You need not buy the Chicago Tribune. You may copy or trace the pictures and send them in. The Chicago Tribune may be examined at any of its offices or at Public Libraries free of charge.

7—Judges will be appointed by the Chicago Tribune. Their decision will be final. In case of ties a duplicate award will be paid to each tying contestant.

Don't fool yourself!
Since halitosis never announces itself to the victim, you simply cannot know when you have it.

Halitosis makes you unpopular

If you are not as popular as you wish to be, look for the cause. Possibly it is halitosis (unpleasant breath)—the unpardonable social offense.

It is impossible for you to tell when you have halitosis. It never announces itself to you.

The one way to be sure of not having it is to rinse the mouth systematically every day with full strength Listerine — especially before meeting others.

Being an active germicide capable of killing 200,000,000 germs in 15 seconds, full strength Listerine checks mouth fermentation and infection—both a cause of odors. Then it gets rid of the odors themselves; it is an instant deodorant.

Keep a bottle handy in home and office. Use it every day. It puts you on the polite, popular and profitable side. Lambert Pharmacal Company, St. Louis, Mo., U. S. A.

NORTH SIDE MEN

Waiting list will soon be established for applicants seeking position with a large international organization. These lists already exist in many of the 46 countries in which we operate over 600 branch offices. We are just commencing operations in the United States, and our expansion program calls for about forty men in the Illinois territory alone.

These men will be assured of a splendid income and a remarkable future with a financially strong old company. Inasmuch as we are the only ones in our particular field, we cannot get experienced men, and the qualifications are loyalty, intelligence, and aggressiveness.

If you are selected you will be expected to start at once by attending factory branch school at our expense.

Personal interview May 20 and 21, from 9 to 12 only.
MR. W. J. BILLINGS,
